One Drugged, Left In Path of Train

Assailants Lure Both From Their Homes in St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., July 12 (A.P.).—An amazing story of a gang that kidnaped a prominent physician, tried to torture him into operating criminally on another doctor and finally left him drugged in an automobile in the path of an approaching train supplied police with a bizarre mystery tonight.

The intended victim of the mutilation, Dr. W. H. Hedberg, 34, was shot through the ear, knocked insensible and beaten cruelly. A woman who found him by a roadside said he gasped to her: "Go ahead and finish me; you've gone this far."

The other physician, Dr. E. G. Engberg, 44, prominent in church, social and medical circles, escaped death when the train tossed his automobile into a ditch. Both doctors were recovering tonight.

A personal enemy or a disgruntled former patient with a fiendish desire for vengeance was believed by police to have engineered the plot. At least three men participated in it.

Lured From Homes.

Both men were lured from their homes last night by fake emergency calls. Dr. Hedberg was yet unable to give a clear story of his experience, but said he could identify the assailants.

Dr. Engberg told how a man accosted him while he was trying to locate the place to which he had been directed by a telephone call.

"The man leaped into my car," he said. "He stuck a gun against my side and warned me that I would not be harmed if I did as he directed. We drove a while and then met a car with other men. They told me that I had to operate on a man. I refused. They threatened to kill me. That is all I remember."

The strange affair was revealed after a Duluth-bound passenger train grazed the front end of a car four miles north of St. Paul. A front fender and headlight were smashed and the machine was hurled into a ditch.

Millionaire Walks Into Police Station at La Grange, Ill.

La Grange, Ill., July 12 (A.P.). John Factor, millionaire market plunger, held prisoner twelve days by kidnapers, was released here tonight after payment by his friends of ransom estimated at $200,000.

He walked into the La Grange police station and reported that he had been freed by his captors a short distance away and instructed how to reach the place by street car.

Factor was held by the officials pending arrival of a squad of Chicago detectives and Federal agents.

Factor, according to the sergeant, appeared little the worse for his experience. He was clean shaven and neatly attired.

Writ Is Granted To Halt Shift Of Comic Pages

D. C. Supreme Court Issues Order Regarding Use of Features.

An order restraining the Washington Times Co., which publishes the Washington Times and the Washington Herald, from printing in either paper "The Gumps," "Dick Tracy," "Winnie Winkle" and "Gasoline Alley," and certain other features, was issued in the Supreme Court of the District yesterday by Justice James M. Procter. This order runs until Tuesday of next week.

"The Gumps" and most of the other features have appeared in The Washington Post for a number of years.

The action of the court was in response to an application made by The Washington Post Publishing Co.

Restraining Order Issued.

A few hours later an order was issued in the Supreme Court of New York by Justice B. F. Schientag, restraining the Chicago Tribune and its syndicate department from refusing to furnish these features to The Washington Post. This order is returnable tomorrow.

The application made by The Washington Post Publishing Co., stated that the Chicago Tribune, through its syndicate department, made a contract with The Washington Post in February of last year, whereby The Post would buy a group of features, and the Tribune syndicate would furnish the features, for a period of five years.

Shortly after The Washington Post Publishing Co., acquired The Post, it received word that the Chicago Tribune's syndicate would not go ahead with the five-year contract made sixteen months before, but that these comics and other features would go to the Washington Times Co., which publishes the Washington Herald.

Popular Post Features.

The four comics had been printed for a long time by The Washington Post, and had become popular among Post readers. The Post's management was ready to continue printing these features, and notified the Tribune Company and its syndicate to that effect.

However, the Washington Herald, within the last week, has widely announced, by posters and otherwise, that the Post's old comics would appear this coming Sunday in the Herald. Incidentally, the Herald suggested that the Post's readers should follow the comics into the Herald fold.

Under these conditions The Washington Post Publishing Company applied to the courts and asked that the Tribune Company and its syndicate, on the one hand, be required to adhere to its contract made last year, and that the Washington Times Company, on the other hand, be restrained from printing the features in either of its publications.

The attorneys for the Washington Times Company have an opportunity to come into court and ask for a review of the order.

The Washington Post Publishing Company was represented in court by Attorneys Hamilton & Hamilton, of Washington, and by Cook, Nathan & Lehman, of New York.

Ship Runs Aground in Shallow Water and 50 Passengers Are Safely Removed; Three From Capital Are Aboard During Disaster.

Baltimore, July 12 (A.P.).—The City of Baltimore, flagship of the Baltimore Mail Line, collided with the Standard Shipping Co. tanker Beacon in broad daylight in the Chesapeake Bay late today.

A jagged hole, 60 feet long, was ripped in the starboard bow of the Mail Line vessel and she was run aground in shallow water after her 50 passengers had been safely removed. The crew remained on board.

The Beacon, less seriously damaged, was able to proceed under her own power to Baltimore.

The accident occurred off Gibson Island, about 25 miles south of Baltimore, as the City of Baltimore was starting a transatlantic trip to Germany.

The passengers were brought back to Baltimore and were to be transferred to the city of Newport News tomorrow to resume their interrupted journey.

The cause of the accident had not been determined late tonight. A wireless message to the mail line headquarters here from Capt. Francis E. Cross gave the simple statement:

Some time later a second message was received as follows:

"Aground forward west of No. 9 Craighill Channel buoy. Passengers disembarking. Will attempt to back off."

Passengers who arrived here tonight on the Pennsylvania Railroad ferry, the Philadelphia, which had come to the rescue shortly after the collision, could shed little light on the accident and, for the most part, regarded the whole thing as a lark.

They said there was little jar from the impact of the vessel and that at no time was there any panic among them.

Edward C. Hall, of 4100 Sixteenth street northwest, Washington, secretary to Representative Dennis Chavez, of New Mexico, said he ran

Mail Theft Linked to Texas Slayings; $100,000 in Narcotics Found.

Fort Worth, Tex., July 12 (A.P.). A triple slaying resulting, officers believed, over quarrels as to the division of the loot in a $72,000 robbery of a mail clerk last February 21, was disclosed tonight with the finding of the bodies of three men beneath a bridge.

Officers tentatively identified the bodies, badly decomposed, as those of Jack Sturdivant, 24, of Eula, Tex.; J. B. Rutherford, 30, of Dallas, and Harry Rutherford, 28, of Abilene, Tex., missing since their blood-stained clothing was found last Sunday in the Trinity River.

Deputy Sheriff German Rhodes came upon them wrapped in hog wire and floating in 3 feet of water, as he was driving home alone after a futile search in a creek in another section of the city.

O. D. Stevens, M. T. Howard, M. D. (Blackie) Howard and W. D. May were charged with murder soon after the disappearance of the three, and the search for the bodies had gone on uninterruptedly since last Monday.

Stevens, May, the Howards and Weldon Routt and Claud Hill all stand charged with the mail robbery.

Officers said a search of Stevens' country home yesterday likewise indicated they had stumbled into a huge narcotic ring. In a secret panel they found narcotics they estimated to be worth $100,000.

Authorities have been working on the theory that the three missing men were slain when they pressed for $9,000 as their share of the robbery spoils.

The clothing was found near Ray Crossing, between Fort Worth and Randol Mill, early Sunday night. It was in a basket crudely shaped from hog wire and sunk in the shallow water of Trinity River. The clothing and the bodies were found in different parts of the river, but on the same road.

Racket Brew Quiz Hits at Wealthy Ring

High Officials Said to Be Facing Indictments in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, July 12 (A.P.).—The Record says a Federal grand jury investigation of racket breweries will be opened in Philadelphia tomorrow.

The paper says Special Deputy United States Attorney General Norman J. Morrison, now in Newark, N. J., will appear before the jurors in the Federal Building tomorrow and lay the groundwork of the Government's case.

Mr. Morrison, who has been directing the Government's efforts to revoke the legal 3.2 beer permits granted to breweries reputedly owned by the late Max Hassel, slain Reading, Pa., beer baron, and his associates, "is expected to make revelations that will startle the Nation," the Record continues, adding:

"He has been fighting racket breweries for 10 years, and is said to have amassed a wealth of evidence that should result in the indictment of many high officials, as well as racketeers on conspiracy charges.

"Enforcement authorities are authority for the statement that a powerful and well-financed ring is behind the racket breweries in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York."

The paper says an "Illinois representative, from Chicago," who was alleged to have attempted to halt the present revocation proceedings against the Health Beverage Co., of Reading, may be involved before the grand jury tomorrow on conspiracy charges.

U. S. Delegates Bar Bank Plan From Program

London, July 12 (A.P.).—The United States, the American delegation informed the World Economic Conference today, is unable to consider one of the three subjects left on the financial agenda of the parley—central bank cooperation.

Indebtedness, silver and central bank cooperation were left yesterday as contemplated subjects for discussion, along with "any other subjects * * * which may, by general agreement, be considered suitable" for further talks.

Senator Key Pittman, of Nevada, reported to a private meeting of a monetary subcommittee that a pending resolution calling for central bank cooperation has been found unacceptable by the Federal Reserve Board.

As word leaked out of this development the conference was thrown into a new uproar the very day after a truce had been called on controversial subjects to open a way for peaceful expiration of the World Congress within two or three weeks.

European circles asserted this effectively killed the gold clauses of the Pittman resolution already accepted and brought the conference near its final gasp.

The senator's resolution, among other things, called for an eventual return to the gold standard, reduction of the gold cover to 25 per cent and optional use of silver for one-fifth of this cover.

Ousted U. S. Workers Will Be Employed First In Recovery Agencies

White House May Fix Pay For Industry

President Also Is Likely to Set Maximum Work Hours.

Cabinet Board Awaits Draft of Plan by Gen. Johnson.

By J. Bernard McDonnell.

Minimum wages and maximum working hours for all the Nation's industries may be prescribed by President Roosevelt next week in the most gigantic move to boost wages and cut hours ever undertaken in one swoop.

The plan, which has been stewing in the industrial recovery pot for days and is, as yet, indefinite, has found favor with the President and Brig. Gen. Hugh S. Johson, recovery administrator, has been told to draft a definite program.

Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper, chairman of the cabinet industrial recovery board, expects Gen. Johnson to submit the program to the board at its next meeting on Monday. Approval by the board will be followed, it is expected, by prompt sanction by the Chief Executive.

The program probably will be divided into three or four or maybe more parts, allowing for varying conditions and normal scales of wages and working hours and the differences in various industries. Employers will be asked to accept these minimum proposals as a patriotic duty to speed economic recovery and to forestall a disastrous sag in the existing incipient boom because purchasing power is lagging far behind increased production and rising prices.

Temporary Measure.

Acceptance of the general standards would be asked only temporarily pending the adoption and official approval of industrial recovery codes for individual industries. Under the recovery act there is no authority to enforce a wage and hour code against any industry until a public hearing has been given.

Disclosure of the President's tentative approval of this scheme was accompanied by a conciliatory statement designed to calm industrial leaders whose alarm might mean a court action that would upset the whole governmental machinery working to speed recovery.

President Roosevelt said that he was pleased with the cooperation which industries had offered the Government and believed that good progress had been made already and the work will go even faster.

New Codes Submitted.

Two new codes were submitted to the recovery administration yesterday. One, that of the electric industry, was the first to propose less than a 40-hour work week. It provided for a 36-hour week. The other was that of the shipbuilding and ship repair industry.

Gen. Johnson made public a

Engineer, Lost Nine Years In Amazon Jungle, Returns

Recounts Thrilling Tale of Rescue From Death by Native Woman.

Guayaquil, Ecuador, July 12 (A.P.).—A thrilling story of nine years' wandering in the deepest jungles of the Amazon, where he saw a companion burned as an Indian sacrifice and many others fall victims of disease, was told today by Herman Huth, a German chemical engineer.

Huth arrived here from the interior, which he said he entered as a member of a scientific expedition in 1924. His account of his adventures covered two pages of the newspaper El Telegrafo.

The German said the expedition, headed by Dr. Otto Shulze, set out to study principally the curative properties of plants and seeds. They crossed the Chaco region and high Peru into the Amazon Valley. Tropical illnesses reduced the party of 24 Germans to only 11 in three years, he said.

After some time among the pacific tribes of the high Amazon, principally the Ocainas Tribe, Huth said he and Dr. Shulze, with Indian guides and bearers, decided to enter the zones inhabited by savage Indians in the Pastaza region.

Either through treachery or in a surprise attack, they were made prisoners of the cannibal Boras Tribe, while their guides escaped or departed, Huth said.

The two Germans were tied to trees, while the Indians burned bonfires around them and Huth said he looked on while Dr. Shulze was burned to death as a sacrifice. The

Stimson to See Hull On Rest Trip Abroad

London, July 12 (U.P.).—Former Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson arrived tonight from the United States, happy that he was not burdened with the cares of state at the Economic Conference.

"No business this trip," Col. Stimson remarked during an interview, adding, with a broad smile, "thank goodness. Only a little pleasure—and that I am going to find in Scotland."

However, he expects to see Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

Gets State Post

Many Seeking Envoys' Posts, Says President

Jefferson Caffery, Minister to Colombia, was yesterday appointed Assistant Secretary of State as President Roosevelt announced that he was having no difficulty in finding deserving Democrats who wanted diplomatic posts.

The President's statement was made in denial of newspaper stories that Democrats rich enough to support themselves in diplomatic offices were not asking for the jobs. At the same time he outlined the procedure he will follow in filling posts now held by Republican political appointees.

From 250 to 300 applicants, so anxious for jobs they might even take them without salary, are listed in the diplomatic folder, the President said. All these are rich enough to maintain the splendor of this country in foreign capitals. Not all of them are as well qualified personally as they are financially, it was stated.

To Retain Career Men.

All career diplomats will be kept in the service, the President assured them. These are men who have studied particularly for foreign service work, and were appointed on a merit basis without regard to politics.

Republican appointees who are doing special jobs in the countries to which they are accredited also will remain in office until these jobs are finished. The jobs include studies which they may be making, or mediation efforts which are under way. When the tasks are finished their resignations will be politely accepted.

As the political hold-overs are eliminated there will be a general shifting of foreign service officers. The empty legations and embassies may be filled with career men, or Democratic political appointees may get the posts. The foreign service roster may not be completed before the end of the year, the President said.

Caffery Takes Office.

The new Assistant Secretary of State was born in Louisiana. He has been representing this country abroad since 1911. Much of his time has been spent in Latin-American countries, and he will have direct charge of the Latin-American division of the Department of State. He was sworn in yesterday immediately after his appointment was announced.

Mr. Caffery's service includes tours of duty in Tokyo, Berlin, Madrid and Stockholm. His original appointment was to Venezuela. He has filled Central American posts since 1926. He was a member of the special Russian Mission. During 1919 he was assigned to the Department of State in connection with the visit of the King of Belgium and the Prince of Wales.

German Church Crisis Agreement Is Reached

Berlin, July 13 (A.P.).—Chancellor Adolf Hitler tonight telegraphed President von Hindenburg at his summer home at Neudeck that "negotiations for settlement of the church conflict ended satisfactorily today."

Roosevelt Asserts Civil Service Groups Will Get Preference.

Also Proposes Board to Review Complaints on Ratings.

By Robert C. Albright.

One clear declaration of policy from the White House yesterday dragged a muddled Federal personnel situation from its bog.

President Roosevelt, first, made clear that preference will be given all legitimate Civil Service employes who have been discharged in the past four months because of the economy law, in making appointments to the new emergency agencies.

Later, he proposed to President William Green of the American Federation of Labor creation of a board of appeals to review employes' complaints of unjust efficiency ratings.

Favors 30-Hour Week.

He declared himself favorable to a 30-hour week for all Government employes, and professed sympathy for the organized employe front against widespread dismissal of Federal workers, Mr. Green said.

At about the same time, he called on Postmaster General Farley to prepare legislation to be presented to the next session of Congress, placing all postmasterships by law under the Civil Service.

Coincident with this announcement, an Executive order was issued authorizing nomination without examination of any regularly commissioned postmaster or person in the classified service. Lacking such candidates for postmasterships, the order directs the Civil Service Commission to hold open competitive examinations for all classes of postmasters.

Following the White House declaration of reemployment policies, Secretary of Commerce Roper, chairman of the Cabinet advisory board to the National Recovery Administration, said that agency hereafter will give preference to civil service reemployment lists.

Ickes to Cooperate.

The comment of Secretary of Interior Ickes, who as public works administrator directs the policies of that phase of the broad emergency program, was typical.

"We always do what the President wants us to do," he said.

Only one class of civil service workers appeared jeopardized by the President's stand—those employes covered over into the civil service by Executive order. There are more than 5,000 of them. An order is known to be pending to "unblanket" them by another Executive fiat.

In making known his views, Mr. Roosevelt took the position that this latter group received their civil service status through political intervention, and are not civil service employes within the strict meaning of civil service provisions.

Green Makes Plea.

His new supercabinet decided that in employing new workers, such a stenographers and file clerks, lists giving preference to civil service employes in the old sense of the word would first be obtained, the President said.

In other words, the Cabinet decided that any man or woman who was discharged from a department in the last four months, who was a civil service employe in the strict sense, whether Republican, Democrat, Socialist or anything else, would be listed by the Civil Service Commission to get first preference for reemployment in the new Government agencies.

Three hours after the President had made known his policy, a spe-

U. S. Will Vie For Trade in South America

By Harold J. T. Horan.

The United States will shortly begin diplomatic negotiations to develop trade relations with South America and several European countries, it was formally announced at the White House yesterday. The anouncement created a sensation in the World Economic Conference at London and was hailed by many diplomats here yesterday as President Roosevelt's reply to the "economic evangelism" which Great Britain has been practicing in Argentina and in several northern European countries. It was recalled here that while Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald had been promoting international harmony here with Secretary Hull, the British Board of Trade had been quietly going ahead making new trade agreements with Argentina, Sweden, Denmark and Holland.

President Roosevelt has decided to follow the course of American self-sufficiency. The State Department has invited the Argentine, Brazilian, Chilean and Colombian governments to an informal discussion of the trade possibilities which may be developed between the nations. Eventually, it is hoped to broaden the scope of the new agreement to include as many nations as possible. Experts of the Department of State are studying the problem now with the view of presenting an outline of what may be accomplished and the quickest way to do it when Acting Secretary of State Phillips and Argentine Ambassador Espie sit down together.

It is not expected that any special delegations will be sent for the economic conversations. In all cases it is hoped to confine the discussions to the diplomatic representatives of the country concerned with perhaps one or more economic experts. The same representation will be used by this government.

Exports Fall Off.

The trade statistics of the South American countries reflect to a degree greater than perhaps any other similar statistics the fall of the world markets in all commodities. The total number of American exports to the Argentine fell from $216,000,000 in 1929 to $136,000,000 in 1931 and the decline was still more perceptible last year. Argentine exports to this country were likewise in a similar unfavorable position. They fell from $89,000,000 in 1929 to $49,000,000 two years later.

There eventually may be some lessening in the quarantine restrictions that now prohibit entirely any Argentine beef from coming into this country. The first step in this direction will be in the case of Patagonian mutton. The restriction against Argentine meats also affects this product and it is felt that there is no more reason for embargoing mutton from Patagonia than there would be of striking off Alaskan products in the event of the hoof-and-mouth disease in the United States. In the case of apples it is hoped to be able to effect a satisfactory arrangement. The Argentine government would like to send its apples to this country in the off season for the domestic product. A seasonal tariff would be able to bring about this compromise.

The President announced yesterday that he had been informed by Senator Harry Byrd, of Virginia, that his State would have no objections to the seasonal tariff, particularly as the Argentine growers intend to send their product in the months of June, July and August, and then will take back any of the apples that are left over in September. This will leave the field in full possession of the American apple grower for the normal fall crop.

Means Greater Opportunity.

The apple crop of the Argentine farmer is perhaps the most natural commodity for the new economic development between the two nations. However, there will be attempts to increase the trade in casein and flax, two other products from the South American nation.

The predominating idea in the President's mind is that a closer economic union between the republics of this hemisphere will mean greater trading opportunities for the American exporter. If the balance of trade between this country and any of its Southern neighbors increases by such a hypothetical figuse as $50,000,000, it is hoped that this sum will mean that much more business for the American business man with a branch office in that country.

The implications in this most recent incident in the war for world markets transcends the negotiations at the London Conference and can be interpreted as a warning that this country is prepared to concentrate on the development of markets right at its own doorstep if the trend of the representatives at London is toward further economic determinism.

An important figure in the development of the Latin American market will be Ambassador Hugh Gibson, formerly at Brussels and now named to Brazil. At the same time the appointment of Jefferson Caffrey, formerly American Minister to Venezuela, was announced as assistant secretary of Latin American affairs. Mr. Caffrey has a deep knowledge of the economic conditions that prevail all through South and Central America and he and Ambassador Gibson will constitute the driving elements in the new directive of American foreign policy. It is expected that Ambassador Gibson will make a tour to visit several of the more important South American capitals before taking up his residence in Rio. This will give him an opportunity of surveying the extent of other economic penetration and making his plans accordingly.

Ohio Mine Announces 12 Per Cent Wage Boost

Martins Ferry, Ohio, July 12 (A.P.).—Wage increases averaging about 12 per cent and affecting some 850 men were announced today by officials of the Powhatan Mining Co. The increase, voluntary on the part of the company and ranging from 8 to 16 per cent to day men, who now draw $3.20 a day, and loaders, who receive 85 cents a ton, will be effective July 16.

Unemployment Reserves Stressed by Miss Perkins

Public Affairs Institute Listens to Address by Secretary.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., July 12.—Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, spoke tonight on "the philosophy of unemployment insurance" before the Institute of Public Affairs at the University of Virginia, and was greeted by an appreciative audience that filled the McIntire Amphitheater.

Miss Perkins reached Charlottesville late this afternoon and motored at once to the Farmington Country Club, located on the Jefferson highway 2 miles west of the city, where she was the guest at a dinner given by Dr. Charles G. Maphis, director of the Institute of Public Affairs.

Covers were laid for 22 persons at the dinner given Mrs. Perkins. In addition to Dr. John Lloyd Newcomb, acting president of the university, and Dr. Charles G. Maphis, director of the Institute of Public Affairs, there were present a number of leaders of the round tables at the institute and a few prominent residents of the city and county, including Judge A. D. Dabney, of the corporation court; Mayor and Mrs. Fred W. Twyman, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Winston Johns, of Pittsburgh, who have converted Ash Lawn, home for 26 years of President Monroe, into a national shrine.

Also present were Mr. and Mrs. Murray Boocock, of Castalia, the former a member of the Republican national committee; Dr. Wallace McClure, of the State Department, Washington; H. M. Groves, professor of public finance in the University of Wisconsin, who will speak at tomorrow's round table at the institute on the subject of "Unemployment Compensation in Wisconsin;" Felix Morley, of Brookings Institution, Washington; A. B. Dinwiddie, well-known educator of New York City; Miss Andree Emery, professor of sociology at Fordham University and former minister of education in Hungary.

Dr. John B. Andrews, secretary of the American Association for Labor Legislation; Spencer Miller, of New York, leader of the institute round table on unemployment insurance; Richard Olzindam, personal director of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., and William J. Rucker, of Charlottesville.

In her public address, delivered tonight before the largest audience that has attended any session of the institute, Miss Perkins elaborated upon the outline of her address that had been read before this morning's session of the unemployment insurance round table, where it was given whole-hearted approval of many who participated in the lively discussion that followed.

In advocating unemployment reserves, Miss Perkins said she realized that its adoption would not mean the throwing up of economic bulwarks for all wage-earners. If such a system is to succeed, she said, politics must be kept from entering into its definition of benefits and its administration.

Miss Perkins suggested that a group of industrial States might set up an insurance authority like that of New York and New Jersey.

Such a group, vested with the power to underwrite insurance in the States participating, could administer one fund with savings in overhead. The experience of New York and New Jersey with their port authority, a non-partisan group, indicates, said Miss Perkins, that such bodies can function free of politics and strictly on sound business lines to the mutual advantage of the States.

"The technique of prevention of unemployment, as laid down by the national recovery act, is a long stride in the direction of stabilizing conditions," said Miss Perkins.

Closer international cooperation has brought a new argument in favor of American participation in the League of Nations, Dr. Wallace McClure, of the State Department, told the institute. Dr. McClure, chief of the treaty division of the State Department here, spoke on "The Relations of the United States with the League of Nations."

He cited four arguments that contain the essential reasons for membership by the United States in the league. They are:

"First. Planned economy requires international cooperation, as is notably indicated in current efforts to control the production of such commodities as sugar and wheat.

"Second. Differences in climate and productive capacity found in the various portions of the earth leave no country complete in itself and scarcely any country without capacity to produce some things more economically than most other countries.

"Third. Fear of international competition by nations planning their economies is inconsistent with the obvious fact that planned economy, to succeed at all, must be more efficient than unplanned economy.

"Fourth. There is no reason based on unity of interest or of desirable control, for national as opposed to international economy."

Canada May Protest Soviet Lumber Trade

London, July 12 (A.P.).—The Morning Post said today Canada would make representations immediately to the United Kingdom urging that importations of timber from Soviet Russia be stopped.

The action, the newspaper added, would be based on an article of the Ottawa trade agreements specifying that if imperial preferences were endangered by goods subsidized or produced by state control, importations of such goods should be prohibited.

Legion's Radio 'Job Auction' Gets Work for 100 Idle Men

Holding a "job auction" by radio and telephone yesterday evening and last night, the District of Columbia Department of the American Legion, through its committee on unemployment, headed by Samuel Rose, of the Sergt. Jasper Post, succeeded in finding temporary employment for nearly 100 destitute Washington men.

Using the facilities of the National Broadcasting System, with time donated by D. J. Kaufman, "Radio Joe," the committee told of the availability for work of the men whose cases had been investigated by it, and requested that listeners needing any kind of help telephone station WMAL. The committee then arranged to have a man report this morning for the work to be done.

A half-hour evening program proved so successful in finding work at the homes of sympathetic Washingtonians that the management of the radio station arranged for an additional fifteen minutes to be given the committee at 9 p. m. last night. During this period approximately 50 jobs were "auctioned," each one assuring some sort of work for men long without something to do and in great need of assistance.

The Legion plans, with the cooperation of its supporters, to continue the series of "job auctions" through the period of unemployment distress.

Appearing on the program with him are well-known local radio and concert artists, including Evalyn Tyner, Gretchen Hood, Theodore Tiller, jr., and Romaine Stephens. The Dixie Trio, the Duff Saxophone Quartet, Estelle Hunt Dean, the Capital Hill Billies and the Arts Club Players.

Service Status Asked for All Postmasters

Roosevelt's Plan Likely to Result in Rush for Patronage Jobs.

(Associated Press.)

The placing of all postmasters under civil service was asked yesterday by President Roosevelt as he signed an Executive order changing the age limit and residence requirements of new appointees.

Publication of the order was regarded as signaling a rush of patronage appointments from the White House within the next few days. A long list of names for jobs ranging from postmasters to collectors of internal revenue and United States attorneys has been prepared by Postmaster General Farley, the patronage dispenser.

A complete survey of the postmastership situation has been made by Joseph C. O'Mahoney, First Assistant Postmaster General, including salaries paid and time devoted to the service by postmasters of the first, second and third classes which are not now under Civil Service.

Large Savings Foreseen.

In a letter transmitting the executive order to Postmaster General Farley, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"The studies which you have made show that there would be large savings to the Government if the existing law were changed and all present postmasterships were placed on a strictly Civil Service basis, as is the case under the existing law relating to fourth class postoffices.

"Will you, therefore, be good enough to prepare for me proposed legislation to this effect in order that I may submit it to the next session of Congress?"

The executive order raised the maximum age limit from 65 to 66 years and reduced the minimum requirement for residence in the area served by the postoffice from two years to one.

Competitive Examinations.

Another change made in existing rules is that if Mr. Farley does not submit for renomination the name of an incumbent of a first, second or third class office, or the name of some person of the classified Civil Service list, the Civil Service Commission is directed to hold an open competitive examination "to test the fitness of applicants not in either of the above-mentioned classes to fill such vacancy."

In addition, the Postmaster General is given virtually blanket authority to reject the names of those certified by the commission after the examintion "if he shall find that such person or persons is disqualified."

At first it was reported that the new order would permit the nomination of some 1,500 acting postmasters who have been named since March 4 without examination, but later it was explained that acting postmasters do not hold commissions and must take examinations with the others.

White House May Fix Industry Wage

statement in which he said that "word has reached me that codes carrying substantially all of the bituminous coal industry are nearing completion and will be submitted to the administration early next week.

"In spite of reports to the contrary, the leaders of this great industry have been working night and day for weeks to effect a compromise of their differences, and I am particularly pleased with the program which has been made in the last few days."

Although the steel industry, which had been expected yesterday, did not arrive, it was believed it would be submitted today or tomorrow. Several additional minor codes have been received, but these are being laid aside pending disposition of the larger industries. One of these, yet to be officially heard, is the oil industry which has been in dispute about its code.

Acts in Oil Battle.

President Roosevelt yesterday took a hand in the oil industry battle by prohibiting transportation in interstate or foreign commerce petroleum and petroleum products produced in excess of State regulations. Secretary of Interior Ickes has estimated that oil produced in excess of State limitations amounted to something between 250,000 and 500,000 barrels per day, most of it coming from so-called flush oil fields located in Texas, Oklahoma and California. California has no State restrictions.

Indication of the vast amount of work involved in considering the various industrial codes is to be found in the fact that three public hearings will be running simultaneously next week. Hearings on the lumber code already has been fixed for July 20. Gen. Johnson yesterday fixed next Wednesday for beginning hearing on the electric and shipbuilding codes.

How the field offices of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce spread through the country can help in the recovery drive was the subject of a conference between recovery officials and field agents yesterday. There has been a big ballyhooing campaign under consideration, but so far the right keynote has not been struck and officials are afraid of making the work appear ridiculous. The field men, however, will serve as key man in their sections.

Two Plans Studied.

Use of some of the $25,000,000 provided for so-called subsistence farms to provide for surplus coal industry labor has been suggested by President Roosevelt. The industry has a normal surplus.

Another plan under study is the purchase of South American products which do not compete with American products on a sort of reciprocity basis, the country from which we purchase being likely to respond with purchases of American goods.

The shipbuilding and ship repair industry bucked at the 30-hour work week prescribed in the law for naval construction. In transmitting their code they explained:

"In our opinion it does not seem in the public interest to engage in the new naval program on a 30-hour week basis, as this will unduly increase its cost.

"It will also increase the cost of other naval vessels and of merchant vessels now under construction in the private shipyards of the United States which are under fixed price contracts, and will discourage, if not entirely destroy, the normal demand for merchant shipbuilding during the emergency."

Extend Navy Program.

Naval building will extend beyond the two-year period of the recovery law and the 30-hour provision would penalize the shipbuilder beyond the emergency period. The code provided for a 40-hour work-week basis, and it was estimated this would increase employment 250 per cent.

Shrine Officer

Almas Temple Wins Honors in Shrine Parade

L. P. Steuart Elevated to Imperial Chief Rabban at Atlantic City.

Special to The Washington Post.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 12.—Almas Temple, of Washington, D. C., made such a spectacular showing in tonight's electric-lighted Shriner procession on the specially dimmed boardwalk that tomorrow morning the Capital delegates plan a parade of their own by way of celebration.

Part of the joy came also from the fact that today's imperial council session moved Leonard P. Steuart, of Almas, up to imperial chief rabban, which means that at the 1935 gathering of the North American jurisdiction, Noble Steuart will become imperial potentate, ruler of all the 500,000 brethren of the ancient Arabic order in the United States, Canada, Mexico, the Canal Zone and Hawaii.

The officers stood out in the procession tonight through distinctive dress; a white linen mess jacket, modeled after navy full dress, with the balance of a tuxedo outfit. The band of 40 pieces took all honors in the exhibitions of marching, playing and singing in the convention hall which climaxed the demonstration.

Float Wins Applause.

The Washington Shrine also won applause with its huge electric-lighted float, mounted on rolling chairs and bearing a large illuminated model of the National Capitol.

Potentate Warren W. Grimes led his delegation which included band, drum corps and legion of honor. The parade by the Washington men tomorrow follows a party tonight for 250 guests on the Madison Hotel roof. The visitors plan to entrain for home tomorrow evening, reaching their destination at midnight.

Mr. Steuart, who was elected to the post of imperial assistant rabban at the San Francisco convention last year, is interested in varied undertakings in Washington.

Mr. Steuart's Affiliations.

He is a director of the Hamilton National Bank, senior member of the firm of L. P. Steuart & Bro., president of L. P. Steuart, Inc., president of Firestone Service Stores, Inc., a director of Acacia Mutual Life Insurance Co., a director of Congressional Country Club and a member of Columbia Country Club.

His fraternal affiliations in the Capital include membership in the Washington Centennial Lodge, F. A. A. M., of which he is a former master; Adoniram Council, Royal and Select Masters; Orient Commandery, Knights Templar; Albert Pike Consistory, the Kallipolis Grotto and LaFayette Chapter, Royal Arch Masons.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 12 (A.P.). The imperial council today selected John H. Sebrell, city attorney for Norfolk, Va., as imperial potentate to be supreme ruler of the 500,000 Shriners in North America.

To Meet in Minneapolis.

Another high spot in the day's activities was the selection of Minneapolis as the city where Shrinedom will hold its 1934 convention on June 19, 20 and 21.

The new imperial potentate will be installed with other officers at induction ceremonies tomorrow. He will succeed the retiring head of Shrinedom, Earl C. Mills, of Des Moines, who has been the presiding officer at the convention.

Contest for Outer Guard.

The selection of the new imperial potentate shared election interest with the contest for the office of imperial outer guard. This last office is annually vacated by the Shrine custom of advancing each of the supreme officers one step with the retirement of the potentate.

Albert H. Fiebach, 54-year-old Cleveland, Ohio, lawyer, general convention favorite for the post, was sweepingly victorious in the outer guard balloting. In one of the greatest landslides in two decades of Shrine history, he polled 520 of the 626 votes cast at the council session.

The council returned to office its imperial recorder, James H. Price, of Richmond, Va., and its imperial treasurer, James C. Burger, of Denver, Colo.

$100,000,000 Work Project Gets Approval

(Associated Press.)

President Roosevelt gave final approval yesterday to the first big batch of Federal construction projects under the $3,300,000,000 public works program, the entire group totaling less than $100,000,000 and comprising chiefly items recommended by the reclamation service and the Agriculture Department.

The items will be made public today or tomorrow together with about $1,000,000 in advances to municipalities whose projects were approved by the Cabinet advisory board yesterday in its first consideration of non-Federal items.

The program approved by the President was far less than the total favorably passed upon Tuesday by the board because a large number of river and harbor projects were held up to be submitted to him later with other army funds.

Approval Chiefly for Irrigation.

Many of the projects given by Mr. Roosevelt were for the reclamation service. They were chiefly for Boulder Dam and other big irrigation projects, amounting altogether to more than $40,000,000.

The Chief Executive gave close scrutiny to the list of projects at a luncheon conference yesterday with Secretary Ickes, his public works administrator, and cut down a good many of the board's recommendations.

Seeking to speed up the construction program by which it is hoped to provide jobs for millions of unemployed, the Cabinet board arranged to meet again today to go over the War Department recommendations, which called for more than $500,000,000.

Officials of the Public Works Administration announced that pressure was being exerted to get the program under way, and predicted additional projects would be approved daily for submission to President Roosevelt.

Involves Every Section.

Ickes announced after his conference with the President that the list involved almost every section of the country, but he refused to disclose the total or the nature of the items. Nor would he speaks after the meeting of the Cabinet board later of the nature or size of municipal projects approved.

Associates said, however, they were of a minor nature, chiefly water works and sewer improvements which had been approved by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation before that organization turned the task over to the Public Works Administration.

Ickes announced the board had tentatively approved a map submitted by New York State showing how it expects to spend $22,330,101 road allotment. This approval, he said, cleared the way for the State to advertise for bids and get the construction work under way.

Other States must submit similar map plans, the public works administrator said, before spending funds alloted to them for road construction.

Preference Given Ousted Workers

cial delegation, headed by President Green, of the American Federation of Labor, and including John P. Simpson, chairman of the new Civil Service Reinstatement League, and John Arthur Shaw, president of the American Federation of Government Employes, called at the White House to appeal for increasing numbers of ousted workers.

To Review Ratings.

The President restated his views to this group. Afterward, Mr. Green made known the President proposed a Board of Appeals made up of one representative of the Civil Service Commission, one Government employe and one neutral citizen. This board would pass on complaints of unfair efficiency ratings. Mr. Green said the board "would not have the power of decision, but would have the right to review or recommend."

Proposals that Federal employes be placed on a six-hour day and five-day week, met a favorable response from the President, the labor chief said. The latter predicted the Government eventually will come to the 30-hour week.

The labor group asked that dismissals for economy reasons be limited, and objected to extensive application of a payless furlough in addition to the pay cut, particularly in the Postoffice Department.

A nine-day furlough for the first three months of the new fiscal year already is in force in the postal field service. The President, Mr. Green said, thought further furloughs in this field can be dispensed with after the first three months.

Works Funds Approved.

Secretary of Commerce Roper said the President's personnel program is the first manifestation of a study by a special Cabinet committee of which Mr. Roper is chairman. He said the second phase will be creation of jobs through public works funds advanced to departments. It was learned a large proportion of the money of the Public Works Administration for departmental purposes has been approved

Preceding yesterday's White House pronouncement, a definite statement of the President's personnel policy several times had been called for by the National Federation of Federal Employes, as well as the American Federation of Government Employes. Early yesterday, the National Women's Trade Union League of America called on Mr. Roosevelt to minimize the number of dismissals and to arrange for reemployment of dismissed employes.

Despite clarification of the issue, the Communist party of Washington continued to call for a mass parade of Government employes to the White House.

President Green estimated the number of Civil Service employes, who will be given preference in reemployment, represent 75 per cent of those "let out" of the Federal service.

Hazardous Hop To Labrador Is Made by Balbo

Cartwright, Labrador, July 12 (A.P.).—Italy's Chicago-bound seaplane squadron completed the largest mass formation ocean flight ever made today, sweeping down on Cartwright Bay after a 1,500-mile hop from Reykjavik, Iceland.

Roaring down the curve of the world from the Icelandic capital, the 24 flying boats of the eleventh Fascist year crusade were all safely down on the bay 14 hours and 30 minutes after the take-offs began at Reykjavik.

Thus ended the fourth leg of the projected seven-stop journey to Chicago and the longest and most hazardous jump of the 6,100-mile cruise. They left Reykjavik a week after their arrival there from Londonderry, northern Ireland, and the twelfth day out of Orbetello, Italy, their home base.

The last of the squadron dropped down to moorings in this Labrador port at 6 p. m., local time (4:30 p. m., Eastern standard time). Aviation Minister Italo Balbo, commanding the flagship, and 15 other planes zoomed over the bay at 4:40 p. m. (3:10 p. m., Eastern standard time) and six more ships arrived 55 minutes later. Two arrivals at 6 p. m. brought the flotilla to its total strength.

Six hundred twenty minutes out of Reykjavik, Gen. Balbo and his hundred "men of flesh and hearts of steel"—as he described them—crossed the halfway mark on their long journey to the Century of Progress Exposition.

Tonight the 24 ships lay at their moorings while Gen. Balbo, Gen. Aldo Pellegrini and their men rested ashore. But work went on. The planes must be refueled for the next flight of 800 miles to Shediac, New Brunswick. Never before had this outpost been the scene of such activity as supplies, brought here by the steamer Alice some weeks ago after a long battle with northern ice, were hustled aboard the planes.

There were voluble greetings between the Fascist aviators and their countrymen who came here to make the port ready.

Shediac Bay was ready, also, for the flotilla's arrival. Stores and fuel have been there for days and permanent moorings are down in the sheltered water. Canadian and provincial government officials will greet the fliers there. Montreal is the next stop before the final hop to Chicago.

Balbo's Men Give Him Fascist Salute

Engineer Returns From Jungle Stay

Indians danced and sang around the flames, he said.

Watching the barbarous spectacle without being able to aid his friend, Huth declared he lost consciousness. When he recovered he said he was with an Indian woman of the Jibara Tribe, who made him understand she had saved him in order that he would be her husband.

They were married, Huth said, at a ceremony in which the woman extracted her eye teeth as a sign of her married condition. From that moment, Huth said he sought to obtain all possible information from the woman and at the same time gain the confidence of the witch doctors and the chiefs of her tribe. They believed he had supernatural power, he said, because of his superior knowledge.

After some time they discontinued guarding him, and Huth said he finally made his escape.

After three months of traveling in the jungle, fleeing from savages and beasts, Huth said he came to the limits of the Amazonic region.

He claimed to have learned various secrets of the Amazonian Indians, among others, a method of reducing the size of human heads and of bodies.

Huth brought with him from the Morgan Evangelical Mission a Jibara Indian woman who was baptized with the name Lucinda Matanzas. The German said he was undecided whether to return to Germany or to the savage life of the jungle. He is accustomed to going without clothes and claimed a knowledge of various Indian dialects.

Bank Plan Barred By U. S. Delegates

discussing plans for an early return home. Among the delegates, Senator James Couzens, of Michigan, had a reservation to sail July 20, and a substantial part of the secretarial staff was expected to leave at the same time.

Gold Bloc Happy.

The gold bloc, after having been defeated in an effort to adjourn the conference last week, seemed quite happy with the turn of events, for they have been anxious to avoid the stigma of ending the parleys, although insisting continuance was useless.

Georges Bonnet, French finance minister who has headed the gold bloc, and Charles Rist, French financial expert, left for Paris tonight, leaving behind only a small French representation. Several of the Swiss, Belgian and Dutch delegates already have gone.

The American delegation itself was thrown into confusion by the latest instructions from Washington, although Pittman insisted this did not kill the gold clauses of his resolution and that silver discussions would continue.

It was understood that the veto of the Central Bank cooperation resolution was on the grounds it restated principles of the old prewar gold standard as an objective for future attainment and that it might be construed as committing the United States too far in that direction.

Director's Wife Seeks Divorce.

Reno, Nev., July 12 (A.P.).—Mrs. Rose Sedgwick, wife of Edward Sedgwick, Hollywood film director, has established divorce residence in Reno, it was learned today. Mrs. Sedgwick, who formerly appeared in musical comedy, arrived July 9.

Balbo's Pilots To Have Busy Time in Capital

Armada Is Expected Here Next Week; Will Call on Roosevelt.

By Morgan Baker.

Relaxation will have little part in the schedule of Gen. Italo Balbo and his fliers from the time the 24 planes reach Montreal and on through their Chicago, New York and Washington visits.

The transatlantic armada fliers expect to stay overnight in Montreal, then hop to Chicago, where they hope to land Sunday, according to a tentative schedule released here last night by Italian officials and United States officers.

Ambassador Augusto Rosso and attaches from the embassy here will go to Chicago to participate in the ceremonies there in honor of their countrymen.

After three busy days in Chicago, the squadron will fly to New York. From there United States Army and Navy planes will bring the airmen to Washington. Here they will call on President Roosevelt on the morning of their arrival. That afternoon they will place a wreath at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Gen. Balbo and his staff will be guests at a dinner at the Italian Embassy on the night of the first day here.

The morning of the second day, American planes will take the Europeans on an inspection trip to Langley Field, Va., where they will be guests at a luncheon by the Langley Field staff. A visit through the aeronautical laboratories will complete the program at Langley Field. That night, Cabinet members and high Army and Navy officers will be hosts to the fliers at a banquet in Washington.

Gen. Balbo plans to return to New York the next day, where he will call on Mayor O'Brien. Later, the Italian consul general and leaders in the Italian community will be hosts at a gala banquet. On the following day, the New York Advertising Club will give a luncheon and that evening Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam will be hostess at a dinner.

A visit to the Standard Oil Co. refinery in New Jersey and greetings from the Italian community of Newark will complete the program.

Brewery Aids U. S. and Soviet In Safe Return of Mattern

A New York brewery is acting as the liaison between the United States Government and the Union of Russian Socialist Soviet to arrange the return of the stranded American aviator, James Mattern, the State Department announced yesterday.

The action of the brewery owner, I. Friedman, of New York, has undoubtedly created a precedent in diplomatic history. So far as is known, Mr. Friedman is an entrepreneur in the brewery business and this is his first venture into the field of world politics.

Among the telegrams delivered to the Department of State yesterday morning was one signed, "I. Friedman Kings Brewery, Inc.," from New York City, requesting permission from the United States Government for landing a Soviet plane at Nome, Alaska. The Acting Secretary of State, William Phillips, was taken aback at the informal nature of the brewery's good offices in handling a delicate situation involving two sovereign States, which do not entertain diplomatic relations and are technically ignorant of the other's existence.

However, he telephoned Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes and arranged with Secretary Ickes to have the Governor of Alaska permit the landing of the Soviet plane with Mr. Mattern.

The New York brewery, it subsequently developed, guaranteed the return of Mattern from Nome as a publicity stunt, but the State Department's policy of nonrecognition of Soviet Russia prevented the two governments from exchanging information about Mattern's safe delivery in this country on a Soviet plane.

Khabarovsk, Eastern Siberia, July 12 (U.P.).—Pilot Levanevsky, of the Soviet flying force, said today he expected to reach Anadyr, on the northeastern extremity of Siberia, by Friday to rescue James J. Mattern, marooned American world flier, waiting for him there.

"I expect to be at Anadyr, the late evening of the 14th "to offer my services to Mattern," Levanevsky said. "I shall take him and his instruments and fittings from the wrecked plane to Alaska.

"I hope to cover the flight from Anadyr to Nome in 24 hours."

Mattern has abandoned hope of making the solo flight on around the world. He was forced down while trying to reach Nome from Khabarovsk last month.

Mgr. Splaine addressed the Pope in Italian, paying homage to his holiness. The Pope, replying, expressed joy at witnessing so large a number of pilgrims, especially in these hard times, and blessed William, Cardinal O'Connell, of Boston; Bishop Francis Spellman, the clergy and parishioners.

State Turns On Witness In Cult Death

Surprises Feature Trial of Seven Charged With Burying Live Woman.

Martinez, Calif., July 12 (A.P.).—Pleading surprise, the State sought in court today to impeach the testimony of its own witnesses in the trial of seven Filipinos on charges of burying a woman of their own race alive.

Prosecutor James F. Hoey chose this course after Mrs. Torebia Santellan, of Pittsburgh Calif., had sworn Pablo Bustamente, the State's star witness, was individually responsible for the death last November of Mrs. Celine Novarro, 29.

This followed the sentencing for contmpt of court of the woman's husband, Pastore Santellan, and Mrs. Eugenia Salles, of Marysville. Each was ordered to pay a fine of $400 or spend 100 days in jail, despite assertions that they feared they would be incriminated by their own testimony.

The trial was resumed today with Mrs. Victor Mapa, of Stockton, testifying to circumstances surrounding the trial of Mrs. Novarro last November 20 before the women's branch of the Cabelleros Dimas Alang, Filipino secret society, on an accusation of marital unfaithfulness.

Mrs. Papa testified Bustamente was the actual killer of Mrs. Novarro. Earlier Bustamente had told how he protected Mrs. Novarro from harm during the trial in the lodge, since he and several other men members were present by invitation.

The district attorney presented Mrs. Santellan's testimony before the grand jury April 3, in which she had not mentioned Bustamente as a participant in the affair.

The witness replied that at the time of the grand jury investigation she had been "afraid of Bustamente."

from the lounge to the deck and saw the two boats locked together, with smoke pouring from the tanker.

"I was afraid at first there might be fire on the boat I was on, but this was soon dispelled."

Miss Jo Zane, of Muese, France, said she "wasn't excited, but rather thrilled."

She said the boat listed somewhat, but not enough to scare them.

The passenger list included Miss Pansie Ruth Cheetham, Silver Springs, Md.; Edward C. Hall, Washington, D. C.; J. W. Holcombe, Washington, D. C., and Miss Annie Verna Isler, Washington, D. C.

Hypodermic Used.

Hospital attendants found that Dr. Engberg had been given a hypodermic. He was suffering from effects of ether also.

Thomas Dahill, chief of police, said he believed the assailants, failing in their plans, shot Dr. Hedberg in an attempt to kill him. The chief believes the men then sought to link Dr. Engberg with the attack by placing Dr. Hedberg's purse in Dr. Engberk's pocket. The chief theorized that Dr. Engberg and the gun were placed in Dr. Hedberg's car and the machine placed near the railroad tracks to indicate an attempt at suicide.

O'Connell Still Lost.

Plans for his delivery upon payment by the O'Connell family's "go-betweens" of part of the $250,000 which the kidnapers originally demanded apparently had fallen through.

St. Louis, July 12 (A.P.).—The kidnaping of August Luer, aged banker and meat packer, was out of the hands of police and Madison County officials tonight, and two agents of the Luer family took over the task of attempting to negotiate with the abductors for Luer's release.

The officers withdrew from the case at the request of Luer's three sons, who then designated Orville S. Catt, of Jerseyville, plant manager for the Alton Packing Co., owned by the Luers, and Lawrence Keller, jr., Alton, trust officer of the Alton Banking & Trust Co., of which Luer is president, to act as their agents.

Pilots' Status Rule Delayed Three Weeks

By Charles E. Planck.

Discipline of pilots who contested in the unsanctioned American Air Races in Chicago and action on the appeal of Col. Roscoe Turner from the decision of the contest committee in Los Angeles will be decided upon by a contest committee of the National Aeronautic Association August 9, the committee decided yesterday.

A group of nationally known pilots who took part in the Chicago Tribune's charity race meet July 1-4, despite the fact the meet was in competition with the National Air Races then in progress at Los Angeles, and consequently not sanctioned by the N. A. A., will face the disciplinary committee, composed of Maj. Walter G. Kilner, Ralph S. Barnaby and James G. Ray. No action was taken by the contest committee at its meeting yesterday, after hearing a report of their participation in the meet.

Lose License for Three Years.

Penalty for such violation of the association's rules is a withdrawal of the special contest license for a period of three years. The disciplinary committee will report August 9.

The committee heard Col. Turner briefly and then ruled that parties to the appeal are entitled to a hearing.

There were six men in the race and the prize money of $7,500 was divided five ways. When Turner failed to round the fourth pylon on the first lap of the race, the contest committee decided he was disqualified, and awarded the first place to Jimmy Weddell, of New Orleans. He would receive $3,375, Lee Gehlbach, second, $1,875; Roy Minor, third, $1,125; George Hague, fourth, $750, and Z. D. Granville, fifth, $375.

If Turner's appeal is sustained, every winner will step down one place and he will take first place. He said yesterday that if he were adjudged winner, he would personally reimburse Granville $375 out of his own prize money, as a matter of sportsmanship. The money has not yet been divided.

All six of the pilots as well as officials at the field during the race will be notified of the next meeting of the committee, and they can appear personally, by proxy or send affidavits for the committee to consider.

The committee considered the records made by previous collegiate flying clubs and awarded the Grover Loening Intercollegiate Flying Club Trophy to the club at William and Mary. Second place went to the club at the University of Minnesota and third to the Harvard Flying Club. Prize money of $500 is divided three ways.

Act on Balloon Race.

In order that the United States may be represented in the forthcoming Gordon Bennett international balloon races to be held at Chicago, September 1 to 5, the committee will invite the Army, Navy and the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. to enter teams. It is expected that economic conditions will prevent the holding of the usual eliminination races by which representatives are selected. If these three representatives are not named, a special committee, consisting of George W. Lewis, Commander P. N. L. Bellinger and Col. C. de F. Chandler, will name representatives.

The contest committee did not consider a press release signed by J. H. Spark and on stationery of the "Albatross Flying Club," of New York, which contained a "vitriolic broadside" against the N. A. A. The release purported to represent the opinions of pilots who are dissatisfied with the "high-handed" management of air meets by the N. A. A.

Facing Loss of License, Yancey Cites His Record

Chicago, July 12 (A.P.).—Advised that the National Aeronautical Association had taken action to revoke his contest license, Luois A. "Lon" Yancey said today: "I'm just a pilot working for a living and I'm not much concerned with what somebody else is doing."

"I'm a member in good standing of the N. A. A.," the noted transatlantic flier continued, "and I'm willing to stand on my record.

"Probably if the N. A. A. thinks the matter over and gets the true evidence the officials will decide against attempting to deprive me of my means of earning a living."

Yancey, who flew to Rome with Roger Q. Williams several years ago, has been ill in a hotel room here for a week, suffering from an attack of malaria fever.

Crowds Greet Lindberghs in Newfoundland

Hop From Halifax Made in Clear Weather; Balbo's Progress Applauded.

St. Johns, Newfoundland, July 12 (A.P.).—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, en route on an aerial mapping tour over Greenland and Labrador, arrived here at 5:46 p. m., Atlantic daylight time (3:46 p. m., Eastern standard time), after a flight of five hours and a half from Halifax, Nova Scotia.

Col. Lindbergh brought down his big red-and-black monoplane on Quidi Vidi Lake. He found the weather clear here and the visibility good.

Later the couple moved their plane from Quidi Vidi Lake to Bay Bulls Big Pond, where they were greeted by a large crowd. They were met by Col. L. C. Outerbridge, at whose home they were overnight guests.

After spending the night here they planned to proceed to Cartwright, Labrador, where the Italian squadron of 24 seaplanes en route to Chicago landed late today after a 1,500-mile hop from Reykjavik, Iceland.

"I am very glad they are on their way again, and I hope they have the best of luck," Col. Lindbergh said at Halifax, when informed of the progress of the armada.

Taking off from Halifax at 12:15 p. m., Atlantic daylight saving time, the Lindbergh plane subsequently passed over Chazzetcook, a few miles from Halifax, over Musquodoboit Harbor, Guysboro, Sand Point and Gabarus Bay, Cape Breton. The ship was sighted at Louisburg, N. S., at 2:07 p. m.

After following the coastline of Nova Scotia they swerved to the northeast instead of coming directly to St. John, being sighted over Cape Ray, on the southeastern tip of Newfoundland, about 3:30 p. m.

Following the Newfoundland coastline, they passed over St. Pierre, Lord's Cove, Burin, Placentia and Bay Bull.

Col. Lindbergh had secured clearance papers for Newfoundland at Halifax, although he said shortly before his departure from that place that he had "no particular destination but was bound northward."

Mrs. S. T. Henning Dies at Hospital

French Marquise's Mother Will Be Buried in Kentucky.

Mrs. Susan Thornton Henning, of Shelbyville, Ky., a frequent visitor to the Capital where she had many friends, died yesterday at Providence Hospital after a brief illness.

Mrs. Henning, whose maiden name was Meriwether, was known throughout Kentucky as the owner and operator of the "Allendale Farms."

Her daughter, the Marquise de Charette, of Paris, advised by cable of her mother's serious illness, reached Washington a few days before her death, as also did her cousin, George B. Allen, of Atlanta, Ga. The body, accompanied by her daughter, Mr. Allen, and a few friends, will be taken to Shelbyville for burial. It rests now at the James T. Ryan funeral home, 317 Pennsylvania avenue southeast.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Charlotte L. Pettis; a daughter, Mrs. Charles C. Corft; a son, William M. Pettis; a sister, Miss E. S. Pettis, and three brothers—W. W. Pettis, Newport, Conn.; H. S. Pettis, Wheaton, Ill., and J. B. Pettis, of Washington.

Costly Smoke

That's $1,460 a year, and the colonel has been smoking some 30 years.

It's not the cost per unit that runs Col. Darrouset's smoking bill to these heights. It's the number of units, for the Texas lawyer and politician consumes 32 high-grade cigars a day.

Col. Larrouset first came to Washington 32 years ago and registered at the Willard the night the hotel opened. He's done the same thing at least once a year since. Although every hotel employe from the manager down knows the colonel, Joe Cagnetti knows him best, for Joe is the only waiter the colonel will permit to serve him.

Four District Forest Workers Ousted From Virginia Camp

Four District reforestation workers have been discharged from a single camp in Virginia, it was revealed yesterday. Two of them were released for serious misconduct, and two more were dismissed because they failed to abide by the rules.

Two men in another Virginia camp were confined to camp and given extra duty for "breaking into the ice box," according to reports of camp commanders. These same reports also give a detailed picture of the leisure activities of the workers.

At Edinburg, Va., for instance, members of a reforestation camp gave a show in the local movie theater and made a profit of $30 for the recreation fund. At this camp classes in arithmetic, bookkeeping and Spanish are given four days a week.

From a camp in Utah comes this report: "The trout fishing here is superlative." Another camp commander reports, religious activities are being taken care of at present with local members of this company. There is a bishop and three missionaries in camp."

Execution Respite Granted Two Men

Boston, July 12 (A.P.).—Gov. Joseph B. Ely and the executive council today granted a respite until November 15 to Herman Snyder, of Boston, and John A. Donnellon, of Los Angeles, condemned to die in the electric chair for the slaying of James A. Kiley, Somerville gasoline station attendant. Snyder and Donnellon originally were sentenced to die during the week of June 11, but a previous reprieve held up the execution.

Counsel for Snyder recently obtained a stay of sentence from Justice Louis Brandeis, of the United States Supreme Court, on the grounds that his constitutional rights had been violated. Snyder contended he had been refused permission to be present when the court and jury viewed the scene of the slaying. It was upon this phase of the case his counsel sought a new trial.

The action of Justice Brandeis stayed execution of Snyder until the Federal Court had an opportunity to act on his case. The execution of Donnellon necessarily would have been carried out unless the council acted today.

Shipyard Jobs Large Part of Navy Program

(Associated Press.)

Employment of all the shipyard labor available yesterday was described by Secretary Swanson as the Navy's objective in asking $127,000,000 of public works money in addition to its approved $238,000,000 ship program.

Swanson has before the Public Works Administration requests for $77,000,000 to modernize ships and $50,000,000 for shore station construction.

"We estimate that these construction plans will give employment to most everybody who makes shipbuilding a vocation," Swanson said. "About 85 per cent of ship money goes to labor. It is spread out to many industries throughout the country.

Expenditures will be distributed throughout the navy yards as much as possible, so as to keep the rate of employment at a fairly even level, Swanson said.

The Secretary disclosed that Rear Admiral Ernest J. King, chief of naval aeronautics, has recommended construction of a new griant airship from the public works money, but, Mr. Swanson added, "I haven't pushed it with the vigor I have some other matters.

"There are other things we are pushing ahead of rigid airships," was the way he put it.

Half of the new $238,000,000 building program has been allocated to private shipyards for bids, which will be opened July 26.

This program includes construction of 2 aircraft carriers, 4 light gun cruisers, 20 destroyers, 4 submarines and 2 gunboats.

This is in addition to the 17 new ships now on the runways.

"Out of the $50,000,000 asked for shore station construction, Secretary Swanson said, "we are hopeful of getting enough for Pearl Harbor, Hawaii and the Canal Zone to make our bases there effective."

Lack of Evidence Frees Cuba Political Prisoners

Havana, July 12 (A.P.).—Eleven more political prisoners were liberated today from Principe Prison on orders of Gen. Alberto Herrera, secretary of war.

All were arrested several months ago charged with seditious activities. They were released for lack of evidence.

KENNY

Thank You, Mr. President.

FAIR treatment has triumphed in the action of President Roosevelt, who orders all legitimate civil service employes who have lost out to be given preference to appointments in the new emergency agencies.

In addition, he has proposed creation of a board of appeals to review complaints of unjust efficiency ratings.

Thus the atmosphere is cleared. The word of the President is all that is needed to rectify these alleged discriminations, and that there have been is a matter of such uncontroverted claims.

The Federal Diary extends its congratulations to the A. F. of L., A. F. G. E. and Civil Service Reinstatement League for their prompt stand and presentations of the facts before the President. At the same time the Federal Diary feels that the presentation should have been made directly in the name of the A. F. G. E. without necessity of formation of the C. S. R. L. But results and quick results have been the crying need.

For the benefit of those who have believed The Federal Diary has been critical of the methods employed in effecting "economy," let it be said The Federal Diary stands by all its former statements. At the same time it recognizes justice as it is dealt out.

So thank you, Mr. President, for clearing the atmosphere, for giving efficient workers hope and assurance that they will not constitute the "forgotten" group in the annals of civil service history. The Federal Diary has felt that if the facts were shown the President that the onrush of job squatters would be stemmed in favor of those who have made Government work their careers.

Dept. .....

CHARLES E. JACKSON, deputy commissioner, U. S. Fisheries, looks forward to the Federal Diary-Outdoorsmen Salt Water Rodeo, Tilghman, July 22-23. The Fisheries Bureau will be well represented at the event. The fact that Commissioner Bell is out of town prevents his joining the party.

Favorable comment was heard yesterday on the statement that the number of participants must be held to 200 instead of the previously announced 300. This step was taken after word was received from Percy Harrison, chairman, Tilghman Guide Association, who had taken inventory of accommodations and asked the enrollment be pared so that every man will have full comfort facilities. Since the rodeo will be an annual event, Chairman Barstow and the Federal Diary want the guests comfortably situated, particularly, the first season.

Since the Izaak Walton League Chapter here previously had announced they would have no outing this year, the third successive season since the last event, the Outdoorsmen column invited the league to join in the event through that medium. Many of the members are in Federal service.

So tough were the roads on his 63-mile route that he was forced to buy a new car, turning in a $698 model at 12,000 miles for another car valued at $648 and making a payment of $173 difference.

Mr. Meek is not so keen on that part of the "new deal," which dispensed with his trained substitute at a time when he wanted to attend his State and national conventions.

"That we would like to feel that our patrons are well and faithfully served during our absence at conventions goes without question and that surely can not be done by green substitutes," said Mr. Meek.

Aphasia Victim At Annapolis May Live Here

Man Is Partially Identified by Suit Marking After Appealing for Aid.

Believed to be a victim of aphasia, a well-dressed man of about 30 years, whom police think is a resident of Washington, is under observation at the Emergency Hospital, Annapolis, Md., where he was taken after he walked into the police headquarters of that city for aid yesterday.

Tentatively identified by a Washington address in his clothing, a check-up with District authorities revealed that a local family had given several suits of clothes to a social agency last fall and that he had probably received one of them.

Describes Highway Walk.

The unknown man had entered the police headquarters and told a story of having walked along a road, which, from his description, led police to believe that he had walked on the Defense highway between Washington and Bowie.

He said that he took shelter under a bridge during a storm marked by sharp flashes of lightning and terrific crashes of thunder. The stranger said that the combination looked as though the "earth had opened." After the storm, he said he walked along the road for more than two hours and was picked up by a motorist who dropped him at Camp Parole, which is 2 miles from Annapolis.

Capital Address in Suit.

Inside of the man's coat sleeve was found a Washington address, 3911 Northampton street northwest. J. Norman Spawn, who lives at that address, stated it was probably a suit of clothes that his wife had given to the social agency.

Dr. Joseph C. Joyce, Annapolis city health officer, who examined the man, said he believed he was suffering from aphasia. The stranger is 5 feet 10 inches in height, weighs slightly more than 130 pounds, has black hair, thin face, and heavy beard. He wore a panama hat that bore the initials "L. M. P.," a coat of light brown material, white, black-striped trousers, white shirt, green tie, green hose, black and white sport shoes. His belt bore the initial "P." In his clothing were handkerchiefs, tobacco pouch and pipe, pair of sun glasses and coins amounting to 95 cents.

Old Timer Is Glad To Be Back in Jail

Kansas City, Kans., July 12 (A. P.).—Luke Parsons, who has called prison his home for 27 of his 65 years, is glad to go back after 3 months of wandering.

Today Parsons announced his pleasure when Judge C. A. Miller sentenced him to four years in the Kansas Penitentiary at Lansing. Parsons was charged with fourth-degree arson. He admitted he set fire to a farmer's barn June 30. He said he was weary of travel.

"Under the law it is discretionary with the court whether you be sentenced to six months in the county jail or four years in the penitentiary," Judge Miller said. "I am going to let you have your choice."

"Well, that's easy, Judge," said Parsons, smiling. "Give me the four years."

3 Men Sentenced In $588,000 Fraud

New York, July 12 (A.P.).—Three men convicted of conspiracy to defraud Mrs. Ella de Bevoise Patterson, of Red Bank, N. J., out of $588,000 in stock of the Curtis Publishing Co., were sentenced today to indeterminate terms, not to exceed three years, in the penitentiary.

The men sentenced by Judge Charles C. Nott, jr., were Ernest Suffren, 53, of Montclair, N. J.; Ronowitz X. Dawson, 59, of Angels Camp, Calif., and David Dyche, 31, of Sewaco, N. J. Judge Nott granted a motion for a certificate of reasonable doubt, so that the convicted men may take an appeal.

The men were alleged to have induced Mrs. Patterson to turn over to them the stock, which they disposed of for $480,000, through the General Industrial Foundation Corporation, which it was charged they had formed for the purpose.

Doctor Poisons Pet Dog Then Dies Same Way

New York, July 12 (A.P.).—Dr. Edwin M. Weil, 60, unmarried and formerly of Roxbury, Mass., committed suicide today by drinking poison in his apartment in Post avenue. He first poured some of the solution into the throat of his dog, Laddie, a fox terrier. A friend, dropping in for a visit, found them both dead, the dog under the bed on which his master lay.

A note on the table, addressed to "the authorities," read:

"Take care of my dog, Laddie. Cremate his body and bury him alongside of me."

Purple Heart

Mrs. A. W. Catlin, Widow of General, Will Get Award Given Him.

It isn't often a woman receives a decoration at the War Department, especially if she is connected with the Marine Corps or the Navy. But Secretary of War Dern announced yesterday that Mrs. Albertus Wright Catlin, widow of Brig. Gen. Catlin, of the Marine Corps, will receive the Purple Heart decoration in the near future.

It happened this way: Brig. Gen. Catlin, distinguished Marine Corps officer, served in France and was wounded during the assault at Belleau Wood. He was nominated for the Purple Heart, and the matter was under consideration at the War Department. Last May 31 he died of a heart attack at his home in Mitchell, Va. In the meantime it was ruled at the War Department that Gen. Catlin was entitled to the Purple Heart. Secretary of War Dern announced that in view of the fact that the officer is now dead it would be presented to his widow.

Gen. Catlin was decorated with the Congressional Medal of Honor for "distinguished conduct at Vera Cruz, Mexico," in April, 1914, when he commanded the Marines there at the time of the American occupation. He also held the Croix de Guerre and was a member of the French Legation of Honor. He formerly lived here at 1502 Crittenden street northwest.

Peter Botkin, Diplomat Of Czar Regime, Dies

Philadelphia, July 12 (A.P.).—Word of the death of Peter Botkin, Russian diplomat under the czarist regime, was received today by a cousin, Miss Kate Kelsey. Botkin, who was in his sixties, was said to have died in Clarens, Switzerland.

Botkin's widow is the former Frances Payson, daughter of the late Charles C. Payson, minister to Denmark. Botkin represented Russia in the dispute between that country and the United States over seal preserves in the Bering Sea.

Soviet Offers Peace Aid for Recognition

London, July 12 (U.P.).—Soviet Russia is prepared to offer the United States cooperation in the maintenance of peace in the Far East in addition to commercial advantages in return for recognition, the United Press learned authoritatively today.

Observers attached considerable importance to this move, which it was felt might appreciably shift the balance of power in the Far East in favor of the United States.

It was believed this conception of Soviet Russian-American cooperation emerged as a result of conversations in recent months in inner political circles at Moscow, where the conviction prevails if such an arrangement had existed in September, 1931, Japan's seizure of Manchuria would have assumed a milder form or been entirely averted.

The Russian authorities, it was indicated, believe future cooperation with the United States could exert a restraining influence on "disquieting forces" in the Far East.

New York, July 12 (A.P.).—A canvass of the members of the American-Russian Chamber of Commerce, it was announced today, has resulted in "an overwhelming expression of opinion" in favor of the early assumption of official diplomatic and trade relations between the United States and the Soviet government.

"The chamber has not officially declared its position on the question of recognition since 1926, when it voted against it," said the announcement.

"During the intervening seven years, however, the chamber has continuously and carefully observed the growing importance of the U. S. S. R. as a world power and the trend of Soviet trade in all parts of the world."

Court Orders Repeal Vote; Ohio Drys Hit

Referendum Proposed by Antisaloon League Is Rejected.

Columbus, Ohio, July 12 (A.P.). The Supreme Court held in effect today that Ohio will vote next November 7 on the question of repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

The decision upheld the Ohio Repeal Council and rejected a referendum proposed by the Antisaloon League and its allies, which would not have passed directly on the question of repeal.

Technically, the court held that enactment of the so-called "Mosier law" by the recent Legislature merely was one step in the process of ratification or rejection of the Federal amendment repealing the eighteenth amendment; therefore the Mosier law is not subject to a referendum.

The Mosier law provided for a Statewide vote November 7 to select delegates to a State convention. Slates of delegates will be committed to vote for repeal of the eighteenth amendment, against repeal, or will be neutral.

The convention will assemble on December 5, this year, and cast votes according to the November 7 election, i. e., either to reject or ratify a repealer to the eighteenth amendment.

The Antisaloon League, by petition filed with the secretary of state, sought to block the selection of delegates to a convention on November 7, and vote, rather, on that date, as to whether Ohio rejects or accepts the Mosier law itself.

This would have had the effect of delaying indefinitely an out-and-out vote on the question of repeal. Soon after the referendum petition was filed the repealists went into the supreme court.

Today's decision upheld their contention that the Mosier law was not subject to referendum. One of the seven justice dissented.

Roosevelt in Paris Cheered by Crowd

Paris, July 12 (A.P.).—Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., son of the President, arrived here today in a second-class railway carriage from Le Havre, where he landed from the steamship Washington.

A big crowd greeted Roosevelt and his three companions, who handed their own baggage from the coach and vainly tried to avoid public attention. They were welcomed first by representatives of Foreign Minister Paul-Boncour of France and the American Ambassador Jesse I. Straus, then the cheering crowd insisted on shaking hands with the President's son.

Mr. Roosevelt thought he would remain in Paris a week, after which he may go to London to visit the World Economic Conference "if it is still running." Then he expects to go to Spain.

"I would like to see the Davis Cup matches; at any rate, say hello to the team," Young Roosevelt said.

Building of 900 Airplanes Asked

(Associated Press.)

The construction of 900 airplanes for the Army was urged upon President Roosevelt yesterday by Chairman McSwain of the House Military Committee, and Representative Hill (Democrat), Alabama, a member of the committee.

Messrs. McSwain and Hill proposed that $120,000,000 for that purpose be taken from the public works appropriation. They said this would give the Army the 1,800 planes which were contemplated under the 1926 aviation program.

The two said Mr. Roosevelt was giving consideration to the proposal, but was waiting first to see what was accomplished at the Geneva conference, which reconvenes this fall.

Chicago Advertising Man Falls to Death

Chicago, July 12 (A.P.).—The body of James B. Heth, jr., 38, an advertising man, was found in an alley behind a Michigan boulevard building today. It was believed he leaped or fell to his death.

Mr. Heth has worked in leading advertising agencies in New York and Chicago.

Oklahoma Votes To Legalize Beer

House Acts to Nominate Delegates for Repeal Convention.

Oklahoma City, July 12 (A.P.).—Oklahoma today joined the parade of States that have legalized the sale of 3.2 per cent beer.

The final tabulation of unofficial returns from yesterday's election made by the Associated Press gave the beer proponents a margin of 94,718 votes. The vote was: For beer, 225,427; against beer, 130,709. Sale of brew got under way quickly today after Gov. W. H. Murray issued a proclamation declaring the action legal.

The House of Representatives, quick to act after the electorate voted for beer, today passed a measure providing for nomination of delegates to a State convention to act upon repeal of the eighteenth amendment. The vote was 62 to 25.

Ascher Rites Scheduled Today.

Members of Firemen Parade Committee

Praise Parade

Prince Georges Firemen Approve Labor Day Event Here.

The Prince Georges County Volunteer Firemen's Association last night approved the national firemen's parade on Labor Day and commended each of the departments of the county which have announced their support of the parade.

Notice was served on the Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis Railroad by the association that the fire apparatus would continue to use the bridges of the railroad in spite of the fact that some of the bridges have warning signs against use by vehicles of weights even less than that of the fire trucks. Some of the bridges have signs warning against weights in excess of 3,000 or 4,000 pounds, it was pointed out at the meeting in Laurel, Md., whereas an ordinary fire truck weighs five tons.

New England Mills Benefit By Cotton Code

Shortage of Help Reported as Thousands Return to Jobs; Boom Seen.

Boston, July 12 (A.P.).—Absorption of idle cotton textile workers in New England and the recall to the industry of many skilled workers were results anticipated by manufacturers and labor leaders today as they awaited operation of the cotton textile code of the National Recovery Act.

Return of some Massachusetts cities to leadership in cotton textile production also was predicted.

Next Monday morning, 120,000 cotton textile workers in New England will go to work under radically different conditions. Their hours of labor a week will be reduced to 40 from 56 in Vermont, 55 in Connecticut, 54 in New Hampshire, Maine and Rhode Island and 48 in Massachusetts. Their minimum weekly wage will be $13. Children under 16 years of age may not be employed.

Cotton textile centers in New England include Fall River, New Bedford, Manchester, N. H.; Providence, R. I.; Biddeford, Me.; Fitchburg, Methuen, Springfield, Lowell and Burlington, Vt.

Revival of the industry has given work to thousands throughout New England. In some places, as New Bedford and parts of Rhode Island, a shortage of skilled help is reported. In New Bedford, which employs approximately 20,000 cotton textile workers, there is a scarcity of skilled box loom weavers, spinners and twisters. Many mills there are running day and night shifts and some planned to continue on that basis with the new 40-hour law.

There existed in New Bedford doubt as to whether there is enough skilled help to run all fine goods mills on two shifts. Former New Bedford workers are expected to return there.

Edward F. Walker, secretary of the Rhode Island Textile Association, reports a shortage of skilled labor in that State. Francis J. Gorman, first vice president of the United Textile Workers of America, said that eventually the operating conditions under the general textile code would "absorb all surplus textile labor in Rhode Island."

Mr. Gorman said his organization "hoped" to restore gradually the 50 per cent wage cut effected in Rhode Island cotton mills since 1929.

French Decoration Presented Ingalls

David S. Ingalls, of Cleveland, Republican candidate for Governor of Ohio in 1932 and Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Aviation in the last administration, yesterday received the French Legion of Honor decoration for his services to France during the World War.

Presentation of the decoration was made at the French Embassy by Ambassador Andre de Laboulaye. Mr. Ingalls, though only 20 years old, was the United States Navy's only war ace.

With Mrs. Ingalls, the former member of the Hoover "little cabinet" is staying at the Mayflower Hotel where they lunched yesterday with Budget Director Lewis W. Douglas.

Legalization of Beer Booms Soda Pop Trade

Oklahoma City, July 12 (A. P.).The soda pop business boomed because of the legalization of beer in Oklahoma.

E. L. Reno, blind proprietor of a cigar and drink stand in the State Capitol, opened for business at 5:30 a. m. At noon he had sold 912 bottles of pop to the hundreds of sweltering beer-license seekers.

48 Governors Are Invited to Firemen's Fete

Representation Is Urged in Colorful Labor Day Parade.

Governors of the 48 States have been asked to review the eleventh annual National Firemen's Parade on Labor Day.

Invitations to the chief executives of the States were mailed yesterday. It was pointed out that, next to the inaugural parade, the fire fighters' event is the most colorful and impressive outdoor spectacle in the Nation's Capital.

The governors were also told that this year's invitations to fire companies have been sent to every State in the country and, that while distant ones may not be able to send men and apparatus, some representation is expected.

In the past, two States have had their governors in the reviewing stands—Maryland and Virginia. Gov. Albert Ritchie, of Maryland, had reviewed many of the parades, and Gov. Pollard, of the Old Dominion State, two of them. Last year Gov. Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, decided only at the last moment that he could not attend.

With the parade this year taking on more of a national aspect than ever before, the parade committee hopes that when Labor Day comes, several States chiefs will be in the stands watching the firemen from their sections compete for applause and prizes.

Yesterday the trophy committee was given additional cups to be awarded winners in the parade. A complete list of donors who followed the lead of RKO-Keith's Theater and Loew's Washington Theaters will be published shortly.

Mine Operators Disagree on Code

Nonunionists to Formulate Own Fair Competition Regulation.

(Associated Press.)

While mine union officials and a group of bituminous operators were putting the finishing touches on a code of fair competition here yesterday, operators unsympathetic with the union last night moved toward New York to formulate their ideas for a code.

As the nonunion operators prepared to hold a meeting of their own in New York this morning, Hugh Johnson, industrial administrator, last night issued the following statement:

"Word has reached me that codes covering substantially all of the bituminous coal industry are nearing completion and will be submitted to the administration early next week. In spite of reports to the contrary, the leaders of this great industry have been working night and day to effect a compromise of their differences, and I am particularly pleased with the progress which has been made in the last few days."

Roosevelt Dashes Hope For Forestry Research

Hopes of the Forest Products Research Laboratory that they would receive funds from the Conservation Corps appropriation to carry on all their investigations were dashed yesterday by President Roosevelt.

The President said that almost all funds for the laboratory had been cut out. It was estimated that $700,000 would be needed by the unit to continue its work on the present scale. This sum would provide work for only about 200 professors and 50 laborers. More men could be put to work by using the money in other ways, the President said.

"Jeff" Davis' Servant, 90, Is Killed by Son

Richmond, Ind., July 12 (A.P.). Robert Schools, a Negro, who said that in the early days of the Civil War he was a servant in the family of Jefferson Davis, President of the Confederacy, was shot and killed last night by his son, Ben Schools.

The Negro, who was 90 years old, said he served in the Union Army as a messenger later in the war and was wounded while carrying a message from his colonel to Gen. U. S. Grant.

U. S. 'Moral Trust' Is Held Necessary

(Associated Press.)

In an open letter yesterday to President Roosevelt, William Sheafe Chase, superintendent of the International Reform Federation, said the "new deal" could not succeed "unless you add to your 'brain trust' a department of morals."

Criticizing the President's appeal for repeal of the eighteenth amendment, Mr. Chase said:

"The issue is not prohibition but honest government. Shall your power as President be used to enable the Democratic party to collect what was apparently promised it for campaign expenses, but which now the wets seem to refuse to pay unless the eighteenth amendment is actually repealed?

"I am creditably informed that the funds upon which the Republican party relied for the presidential campaign, if they came out wet, have never been paid. The Republicans are, therefore, free to ask for a congressional investigation to expose the facts, and are likely to feel justified in so doing."

Home Loan Bank Picks Three State Managers

(Associated Press.)

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board yesterday named the three following State managers for the Home Owners Loan Corporation: Illinois, William G. Donne, of Chicago; New Jersey, G. Frank Shanley, North Bergen; New Hampshire, Charles E. Barlett, Tiltom.

The board said the selection of State headquarters would await the recommendations of these men.

Orphans Mourn Gould

In every Washington orphanage and to several hundred children whose homes are in them, the death of Edwin Gould, millionaire son of the late Jay Gould, was the day's saddest news yesterday.

Dispatches from Oyster Bay, N. Y., where the second son of one of the most powerful figures Wall street has ever known, lived and died, recounted stories of huge profits, railroad reorganization, polo and yachting. But to the parentless children and their supervisors, crux of the news was the death of their friend, the death of one of their principal benefactors—surprising, shocking news.

At the Hillcrest Home, 4119 Nebraska avenue northwest, which was originally founded for orphans of the War of 1812, and where Dolly Madison was the first director, Edwin Gould erected a dormitory. Known as Gould Cottage, it is home for 28 children from 2 to 6 years old. To this Mr. Gould added a trust fund for maintaining buildings and grounds at the home.

Gould Hall, a girl's dormitory at the Baptist Home for Children, Bethesda, Md., was built by Mr. Gould. It is valued at $85,000 and houses 30 girls, 22 of whom were guests recently at one of the Gould camps on Long Island.

Another dormitory at the Methodist Home for Children, 6200 Second street northwest, was built from the Gould fortune. Here 56 children live. The Episcopal Home for Children, Nebraska avenue and Rock Creek Church road northwest, also has received Gould's benefactions.

Gould, who was 67 years old, died Tuesday midnight following a heart attack.

"Goodbye, darlings. Swell wedding, but don't try to beat happy couple to ferry unless you Terraplane!"
"That's telling 'em, Joan . . . So long . . . next time pick a pair that hasn't learned the Terraplane getaway."
It isn't the speed . . . it's the RAPIDITY!
To beat all other cars in an Essex Terraplane, you don't have to exceed the speed-limit.
Terraplaning is fast if you want it to be, even up to eighty-five and more. But conservative drivers are so keen about it because it saves the minutes that other cars waste.
You save minutes in every mile of city-traffic by Terraplaning rapidly into the free lane ahead to command the road. You Terraplane quickly around other traffic by a slight pressure on the accelerator without shifting gears. You Terraplane up the steepest hills in high gear without rushing. You Terraplane around curves in safety without cutting down your normal speed.
And you accomplish all this with a smooth lack of haste that has been the dream of motorists ever since the automobile was invented.
Terraplaning is safer because it is more skillful. It is more thrilling because it is so much easier. Try it, and see.

The "Preferred List."

President Roosevelt has made it known that the Civil Service Commission is drawing up a list of Federal employes who obtained their places by competitive examination, and that this shall constitute a preferred list from which to draw personnel needed in the emergency organizations now getting under way.

Persons in the civil service who did not undergo an examination, but who were "covered in" by preceding administrations, are not to be on the preferred list.

The new council which is to co-ordinate the work of emergency organizations will have authority to employ individuals whose names are on the preferred list.

This is good, so far as it goes, but it does not give assurance that civil service employees recently dismissed will be re-employed. The President does not appear to have suggested or directed that employees shall be taken from the preferred list. Civil service employees are already and always theoretically upon a preferred list, but this fact does not prevent the appointment of individuals through political influence.

Already many positions which normally would be filled by civil service applicants in accordance with the spirit of the merit system have been filled with political appointees. President Roosevelt's implied preference for re-employment of competent civil service workers seems to have no effect upon the officials who hire new personnel.

While wide latitude is necessary in the selection of the most competent executives and their assistants, nothing has been developed to prove that competent and faithful civil service employees are not the best source from which to draw trained personnel for office work. There can be no comparison between the quality of trained service and that performed by inexperienced and untrained political appointees. The recovery program can be expedited by re-employing available civil service employees who are familiar with the technique of governmental procedure.

A word from President Roosevelt to his council, suggesting that civil service workers be re-employed in preference to untrained novices, would insure the best possible clerical forces for emergency organizations. Much time would be saved which otherwise would be lost in training office personnel.

States Lax on Relief.

Harry L. Hopkins, emergency relief administrator, has an especially difficult row to hoe. He has just concluded an extensive conference with State relief executives in which he undertook to avert the unloading of the entire relief burden upon the back of Uncle Sam. President Roosevelt and Mr. Hopkins are determined that the States shall do their share toward relieving the unemployed, but many State officials find it exceedingly difficult to see why they should make themselves unpopular by advocating taxes or bonds for relief when Mr. Hopkins has $500,000,000 to distribute for that purpose.

An astonishing number of States have found it impossible to aid their own destitute people since Congress manifested its generosity. A report covering 28 cities shows that only 7 per cent of the money used for unemployment relief in May came from private sources. Of the remaining 93 per cent furnished by governmental agencies 72 per cent was supplied by the Federal Treasury. Congress went into the relief business on such a grand scale that many other agencies that have heretofore taken care of the unemployed on a community basis decided to withdraw.

Mr. Hopkins is putting up a stiff fight against this tendency. He insists that the Government will not take over the full responsibility for relieving destitute citizens. "The Federal Emergency Relief Administration means business," he said, "and we are not going to string along with these situations. I am beginning to doubt very much if there is a State in the country which can not do something in the way of funds for unemployment relief." Indications are that Mr. Hopkins will use the publicity whip on States that refuse to cooperate. "Some States," he declared, "are due for a rude shock in the very near future if they don't come through with action." In conformity with that remark Mr. Hopkins has notified Gov. Laffoon, of Kentucky, that no Federal aid will be granted that State after August 15 unless it makes arrangements to provide a reasonable part of its own relief needs.

Against Mr. Hopkins' determined attitude is the law which says that half of the emergency relief fund shall be distributed among States on the basis of need. State officials are inclined to emphasize their urgent need of Federal funds by relinquishing their own efforts to provide relief. Congress really placed a premium upon inaction on the part of State and local governments. It is an uphill fight indeed to induce States to carry on adequate relief work in the face of this situation.

Buying Power Lags.

President Roosevelt is reported to have told his new executive council that industrial production is increasing much faster than pay rolls and that a slump may be expected unless this situation is corrected. Most of the administration's efforts toward recovery now seem to be directed toward the stimulation of purchasing power to match the gains in production.

The American Federation of Labor reports that "workers' income increased only 7 per cent from March to May, while factory production increased 35.6 per cent." Other estimates from reliable sources place the industrial gains at 34.6 per cent from March until June. All authorities agree, however, that there has been a remarkable acceleration of factory production. Manufacturers are encouraged by the prospects for improved economic conditions and are hastening to acquire a supply of goods for the market before the prices of raw materials and wages reach higher levels.

There seems to be no question that the increase in pay rolls is lagging behind the increase in factory output. A considerable number of men went back to work in June. Statistics for the entire country are not yet available, but Elmer F. Andrews, New York industrial commissioner, reports that employment increased 4 per cent and pay rolls 5.7 per cent last month. Assuming that this increase was general in all parts of the country, the rise of pay rolls is still far behind the upward movement of the production indices.

Wages are usually slow in falling when a cycle of depression begins, and they are likewise slow in rising when recovery sets in. In many industries wage changes are effected by rather elaborate machinery, and alterations are necessarily slow. Both prices and the volume of production may fluctuate with far greater ease than wages. Since many prices have been sharply increased and larger volumes of goods are being turned out, the administration is making an intensive effort to overcome the delay of pay roll expansion. It has undertaken a very difficult task which is made more difficult by the artificial stimulants that are being applied to prices and factory output. It remains to be seen whether purchasing power can be enhanced enough to absorb the increased output of industry without further maladjustments.

The Pretzel Peril.

The strike in a pretzel factory in Pennsylvania portends dark days for the Union unless Gov. Pinchot immediately exercises the tact and diplomacy for which he is famous. It is only a small factory, and the strike has not gone beyond the picketing stage, but it is from such small beginnings as these that vast evils develop. "Originally the wrongs of this world were no bigger than a mustardseed," observed a Persian sage, "but each newcomer added a little, until now the groanings of the oppressed go up to heaven like the smoke of a world on fire."

The recovery of the United States depends fundamentally upon the resilience of the people. They can endure hardships if surcease is on the horizon. They were solaced by the return of beer, and immediately afterward business activity and stock market agility proved that recovery would come in full bloom as soon as the people's happiness was restored. This process promised to be of an accelerative character, as beer began to flow more freely and pretzel factories sprang into militant cooperation. Now, like a thunderbolt, Pennsylvania threatens to disrupt recovery by leading a national movement to paralyze the pretzel industry.

Gen. Johnson, industrial recovery administrator, is herding industries into code formation as rapidly as possible, and it may be asking too much to demand that he set aside the steel men, the oil men, the shoe men and the butter and egg men while he lines up the pretzel industry in behalf of national recovery. Yet that is what should be done. Not a moment should be lost. If this pretzel paralysis should spread from Pennsylvania to other States there may be a public reaction and an abrupt downward plunge of the employment curve, to say nothing of a return of the worst symptoms of national despondency.

Upon Gov. Pinchot, therefore, rests a heavy responsibility. If he can master the pretzel crisis he will be performing a great social service, besides materially promoting his chances of promotion to wider fields of political activity. In this emergency Pennsylvania is indeed the keystone State. If pretzel recovery should halt there, it would demoralize the rest of the Union. Gov. Pinchot should discard all thought of politics at this critical time, and co-operate earnestly with the administration in stabilizing the pretzel industry for the sake of preserving present gains and encouraging the people to press on to greater victories over the demon of depression.

A New Policy in Order.

President Roosevelt is confronted with a request by patronage seekers to divest about 4,600 Federal employees of their civil service status. An executive order that would prepare the way for dismissal of employees who have been "covered" into the civil service in the last 12 years has been presented to him. The Civil Service Commission has ruled that inasmuch as these Federal workers obtained the benefits of the merit system through executive decree they may be denied such benefits in the same way. Only the signature of the President is necessary to open these jobs to the spoils hunters.

The partisanship involved in this proposed executive order can not escape notice. Only those employees who were "covered" into the civil service during the last three Republican administrations would be ousted. President Wilson also extended the benefits of the merit system to a large number of employees by executive action. Encroachment upon the civil service for mere partisan purposes would be inexcusable.

The situation does not call for the dismissal of employees who have served the Government faithfully for many years under the merit system, but for the formulation of a new policy with respect to "covering" into the civil service men and women who are employed for emergency work. It is generally agreed that employees in this class should not be given the benefits of a civil service status unless they can pass the examinations prescribed by the Civil Service Commission for the type of work they are doing. Some regular procedure could be arranged so as to prevent unqualified workers from obtaining civil service privileges. The question that is now before President Roosevelt would not then arise.

If the issue is considered from the standpoint of preserving efficiency in the Federal service and of fairness to employees who have been taken into the civil service by executive decree, no drastic action will be taken. The merit system would be seriously impaired if groups should be brought within its fold by one administration and ousted by the next. No such procedure has been followed in the past when control of the Government has passed from one party to another. Calm deliberation on the consequences of such a policy may influence the President to turn his back upon the advice of the spoils hunters.

Farms for Surplus Coal Miners.

The bituminous coal industry presents the most difficult problem in the whole category of recovery efforts. The prospect that the industry as a whole can agree upon a code acceptable to the President seems to be remote. The surplus of workers in this industry makes unemployment a permanent evil, even in prosperous times. Wages are demoralized by the pressure of workers for employment at any figure. Differences in cost of production vary, not only between separate fields, but between good and poor mines in the same field. The fluctuations of trade and enlarged use of other fuels disturb the bituminous industry everywhere.

Exhaustive studies of the coal mining situation have been made by State and Federal commissions, the most thorough inquiry having been made under the chairmanship of John Hays Hammond. This commission suggested several palliatives, but short of Federal control of bituminous fields it could not suggest a complete remedy.

President Roosevelt is now said to be considering a plan to draw 200,000 men from the bituminous fields by placing them upon subsistence farms, as he is authorized to do by the industrial recovery act. Congress appropriated $25,000,000, to be expended at the discretion of the President, to aid in the "redistribution of the overbalance of population in industrial centers." He can set up an agency to make loans to individuals for the purchase of subsistence homesteads. Moneys collected as repayment of loans will constitute a revolving fund to maintain the system.

The desperate plight of bituminous mine workers in some fields calls for a powerful corrective. Nothing better than the shifting of surplus labor to subsistence farms has been suggested or provided. If the bituminous industry is to be made healthy, and if the nation is to do its plain duty in succoring helpless humanity involved in a deadly economic coil, some provision must be made for the 200,000 or more who are more or less permanently workless and hungry.

Long-Lived Pensions.

From the Boston Transcript.

The aftermath of war makes long windrows. Have we not heard that Great Britain is still paying for the powder and shot she used on the French at Waterloo? Is the United States not still making disbursements on account of the Revolution?

And here is the little city of Cherasco, a few miles from Turin, which is still paying the interest on tribute levied on the place when Napoleon seized it 137 years ago, during his Italian campaign. Napoleon demanded the tribute in order to clothe and nourish his army, which had suffered terribly during the march across the Alps. Many of the citizens of Cherasco had fled on the approach of the French and the city fathers went round, hat in hand, and begged the money from the few who had remained behind and were able to contribute. The citizens who gave were promised a fixed rate of interest forever. The more public-spirited agreed to take 1 per cent; others bargained for as much as 6. The descendants of these contributors are still getting a fixed sum every year, though the city authorities do not now know how much the tribute was. They know only that the names of those who paid have been kept in the city archives and that their descendants still receive the interest agreed upon so long ago.

And there is the case of the pension to the descendants of Montezuma, Emperor of Mexico. One of the three children of Montezuma married one of Cortes' captains and upon her and two other surviving children of the unhappy Emperor Charles V bestowed pensions, these to continue to their descendants to the last syllable of recorded time. That provision became a charge on the vice regal government of Mexico more than 400 years ago and has been regularly paid to the far-flung progeny of Montezuma during all the vicissitudes of rule which Mexico has experienced since she revolted from Spain in 1821—even during the feversh and tragic reigns of Iturbide and Maximilian. The genealogy of the Spanish line from Montezuma is well authenticated, but there have been endless legal disputes over the claims of the Mexican line, for the records are much confused. There is a movement on foot now in Mexico to discontinue these pensions on the ground that the claimants can show no scars of wounds received during the conquest and that the payments to the family which up to this time amount to nearly $4,000,000 would seem to be ample compensation for the injuries originally inflicted upon their forbears.

The Rescue Squad.

Post Haste.

Secretary Roper adds the gentle warning to industry that managed recovery has a horseshoe handy to insert in its velvet glove.

There's nothing in names. Col. Waite hustles here to prevent delay in public works and Treasurer Walker sits in on the sessions to put industry on the run.

Rye faces are now being made at wheat, which has been outclassed in the running high jump.

We are supposed to hurrah for everything going up nowadays except the lowly dollar.

The administration will have to decide whether the extra supply of professors taken on during Prof. Moley's absence will be longer needed.

Discharged Federal employes will not give up hope of another job until the army to check the 2,000,000 cotton plantations, 4,000,000 farms and a few hundred thousand factories has been appointed.

Labor leaders are strong for collective bargaining, but when they find industrial units getting together for the same thing, that's something else again.

The railroads had better prepare to meet motor competition; and by the way it's increasing, air transport will also soon be on their track.

If folks who put so much emphasis on a billion, more or less, in the money supply would consider its relative importance to bank deposits and the frequency of their turnover, they would find it to be about 1 per cent.

Don't get too familiar on short acquaintance, but some are already calling the National Industrial Recovery Act "Nira" for short.

Hitler prohibits naming babies after him in Germany. This is one decree the rest of the world will also obey.

A dead line is about to be set for the codes that are to put life in industry.

The London conference is again in session and free to discuss debts in the abstract, trade but not tariffs, and any kind of money, so it isn't real.

Golf After Many Years.

For nine and twenty years they've said:
"Be sure you do not lift your head.
Then let your club-head follow through!"
Still something else I try to do.

For nine and twenty years I've known
The clubhead must be outward thrown
To drive a golf ball straight and true.
Still something else I try to do.

For nine and twenty years the pro
Has told me what I surely know.
In his advice there's nothing new,
Still something else I try to do.

For nine and twenty years, the swing
I've known is just a simple thing.
Compact, precise, and timely, too;
Still something else I try to do.

And Billy Phelps, who plays with me,
Agrees that very shortly we Shall celebrate, beside some cup,
Our thirty years of looking up!

Why Should the Lion Beg the Fox to Form a Partnership for Hunting?

By Robert Quillen

YEAR after year, since the bull market ended in 1929, it has become increasingly evident that the future prosperity of America must depend on America alone.

It is true that modern nations depend on one another to a large extent, and all suffer together when one of the great ones is hurt. And it is true that all could benefit themselves by cooperating for the common good.

But it is equally true that the others will not cooperate except on terms that would do America more harm than good. As the price of doing what is good for the world, they ask us to do what is bad for America.

America needs the good will and patronage of other nations, but her need isn't great enough to pay that price for it.

If the others won't play ball without a bribe, it will be cheaper for America to play solitaire.

This Nation is not self-contained. It must buy many things abroad—coffee, tea, tin and silk, for example—and therefore it must sell many things abroad to keep its gold supply from draining away.

But it does not depend on foreign nations for its hope of prosperity. If all other regions of the earth were barren deserts, would America be doomed to eternal poverty and distress? You know better than that.

We must import the things we can not produce, and we must export enough of our surplus products to pay for them. That is reasonable and profitable commerce.

But to export the same things we import—to sell light globes to Brazil and buy light globes from Japan—is merely swapping dollars and in the long run benefits nobody.

It is axiomatic that exports and imports must balance. The butcher will have no money to buy your bread unless you buy his meat. The more we sell the more we must buy; and where there is free exchange of goods between countries, the one that pays the lowest wages and makes the least profit will eventually set the standard for all.

One man's gain is another's loss. America can not grant the advantages desired by other nations without sacrificing something. And our people are not in a humor to make further sacrifices for the good of the world.

If other nations will cooperate on terms profitable to America, well and good. If they will not, common sense demands that we let the world go its chosen way and devote our energies to the business of helping America and America only.

If your neighbors won't help you to dig a public well, forget them and dig one on your own premises.

Another Class Tax?

Chicago News.

Secretary Wallace, of the Department of Agriculture, in discussing a proposal to take corn land out of production and seed it to blue grass, is quoted as having said, "We can put a compensating tax on beef, poultry, fish or any such products to take corn land out of use, inevitably reducing the quantity of live stock."

That the Department of Agriculture has such broad powers under the all-inclusive terms of the farm relief act is true; whether it would be wise to use those powers is another matter. President Roosevelt knows and freely admits that the farm relief measure is a radical experiment, which, it is becoming more and more apparent, will require wise administration to insure its successful operation. The taxes which Mr. Wallace proposes would invite wide resentment in coastal fishery centers, would arouse the antagonism of poultry raisers, and would impose an unfair burden on all consumers for the benefit of a limited farm group.

Party Spoils.

Representative McClintic, of Oklahoma, demands the retirement of Herbert Putnam as Director of the Library of Congress and the reorganization of his staff—presumably to make places for deserving Democrats. Dr. Putnam has held the position for thirty years, making the library not only the largest collection of books in the world, but also in the quality of its works second only to the greatest European libraries. His scholarship has been so widely recognized that a dozen American colleges have been glad to confer academic degrees upon a genius able to weather thus far the severe political storms of Washington.

The Present Problem.

There is no single "economic problem" which the United States faces at present. There are many problems, some of them interrelated. At the moment two questions appear to be especially challenging. The one is the lag of consumer buying behind the rise of prices and the increase of production. The other is the flight of capital from the country which is taking place despite the stringent regulations intended to prevent it.

We know it's considered the next thing to treason for a Republican to criticize the present Democratic administration, but will some one please tell us why boys from California are brought to Minnesota, and Minnesota boys are sent to California to work in the Government forest camps?. Wouldn't it be better to employ boys in camps close to their homes, where they are used to climatic conditions, instead of sending them hundreds of miles away? Anyway, it's nice business for the railway companies, and they probably need it.

Separate Freight Highways Suggested to Prevent Accidents and Facilitate Regulation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The many fatal accidents caused by commercial buses and trucks on our national highways call for prevention. Truck competition with other forms of freight transportation creates a situation that requires adjustment.

The spending of $600,000,000 on public highways offers an opportunity for a national program that should include separate freight highways. Commercial vehicles should be confined to these freight highways and be compelled to contribute their proper share to the cost and upkeep of same.

Allen's Death Confusing to Fairfax Voters

Democrats Believe Regular Candidate Can Be Found for Primary.

Political circles of Fairfax County, Va., are in a turmoil owing to the sudden death of Edmund H. Allen, of Newington, Democratic delegate from the county to the State assembly and a candidate to succeed himself in the primary election August 1. Virginia election laws have always been classed as ambiguous and makes no provision of emergencies such as this.

Mr. Allen's only opponent for the nomination to the State assembly was Langdon C. Painter, of Hybla Valley, who classifies himself as a single-tax Democrat and during past elections in which he was seeking an office has been badly defeated. Democratic leaders never considered his candidacy as serious and say that he is unacceptable to them as a regular candidate.

Under the election laws a person must file notice of his intention to become a candidate 60 days prior to the date of election which precludes regular Democrats filing. Another requisite before a person can have his name filed as a Democratic candidate and printed on the official ticket, the County Democratic Executive Committee must meet and certify his name to the county electoral board, or order the nomination of the party's candidate by a county convention for the local office.

Several Conferences Held.

Several conferences were held yesterday to decide on what course to pursue to endeavor to have a regular candidate's name placed on the ballot. The writing of a person's name on the ballot by the voter in a primary has been made illegal by State law. Another plan was to have the voters cast their ballot for Mr. Allen and then seek a new election on the grounds that the nominee was dead. Leaders decided if this were impossible they would place the name of a regular candidate on the ticket to be voted for in the general election in November and take the chance of having him barred from the regular Democratic caucuses in the next session of the Assembly.

The leaders also stated that in event the governor called a special election to fill the unexpired term of Mr. Allen they would have a candidate.

The most prominent person to be mentioned as a possible candidate in both the special and regular elections was John C. Mackall, of Langley. Mr. Mackall opposed Mr. Allen in the primary of 1931 when Mr. Allen was victorious by a small majority.

Mr. Mackall is a native of Fairfax County. During the World War he was second lieutenant in the Air Corps. After the war he graduated in law in 1921 from the University of Virginia, and has practiced in the county and in Washington. He has been a leader in political activities of the Democratic party and is 36 years old.

Solution Believed Found.

Last night Democratic leaders said they believed they had found the solution to their problem of having a regular Democrat succeed Mr. Allen. They stated the State law requires the county Democratic executive committee to decide the method of selecting the candidate and to certify their names to the county electoral board before the names can be placed on the official ballot.

This they declared had not been done and that the electoral board in placing the names of Messrs. Allen and Painter on the ballot had done so illegally and the ballot was void from the beginning.

It is understood that the executive committee will meet Saturday night to take final action on this question and make whatever arrangements are necessary.

The meeting of the Young Democrats Club of Fairfax County, that was to have been held tomorrow evening in the courthouse at Fairfax, has been postponed until July 19, by President James King, out of respect for Mr. Allen.

Ball's Properties Sold for $12,187

Bonding Company's Deed of Trust Is Basis for Public Auction.

Pursuant to a deed of trust to secure the Fidelity & Deposit Bonding Co., of Baltimore, properties of former Arlington County Treasurer E. Wade Ball, convicted of misuse of public funds, were sold yesterday at public auction by Sheriff Howard B. Fields.

The sale took place in front of the courthouse. The home of Ball brought $8,500 and was purchased by Edward Duncan, formed chairman of the county board of supervisors. The amount derived from all properties was $12,187. One piece is located in Fairfax County. All other properties are in Arlington County.

The bonding company recently paid over to the county $350,000 in full settlement of Ball's alleged shortages, placed at $515,595. He was convicted in the circuit court April 1, and sentenced to two and a half years in the State penitentiary. He is now out on $5,000 bond, pending appeal to the State Supreme Court of Appeals.

Owner of Truck Loses $3,775 Suit to Widow

A judgment for $3,775 was handed down yesterday by a jury in Arlington County Circuit Court in favor of Bettie V. Stoneburner, administrator of the estate of T. R. Stoneburner, against J. Vernon Smith.

The suit was for $10,000. T. R. Stoneburner was killed April 3 by a truck owned by Smith.

Attorneys Frost, Myers & Towers, of Washington, and T. Brook Howard, of Alexandria, appeared for Smith, while former State Senator Frank L. Ball represented Mrs. Stoneburner.

U. S. Lawyer Whose Research Halted Waste, to Be Let Out

Eugene Grissom, Who Also Exposed Bride Racket, Finishes Saturday.

Eugene Grissom, the man who exposed the Japanese "picture bride" racket, and who later saved his government hundreds of thousands of dollars through legal research, is being "let out" of the Treasury Department Saturday.

Although a Federal employe of 43 years service, with an unimpeachable record and a high efficiency rating, Mr. Grissom said he was "summarily dismissed," without allowance for the eight days leave coming to him, and without pay for the two weeks intervening before his retirement pension starts.

The veteran worker, who since 1921 has been with the law division of the Bureau of Industrial Alcohol, said he literally has saved the Treasury "millions." He said he did this by building up cases for district attorneys in lawsuits against violators to collect internal revenue taxes, and in recovering bond money from assets of bankrupt security companies. He said his researches paved the way for saving hundreds of thousands more.

The Japanese "picture bride" racket that flourished before the war was brought to the attention of the Secretary of State at his instance while he was an employe of the Bureau of Immigration of the Labor Department, he said.

It was the practice of certain Japanese immigrants, particularly in California, to marry Japanese girls by proxy, following exchange of pictures. As the wives of the immigrants, they then would be brought to this country, and in some cases "farmed out" as cheap labor on Western farms.

Following his exposure, Mr. Grissom said the Secretary of State at that time made representations to Japan, and the imperial secretary of that nation forbade the issuance of further passports to the so-called "picture brides."

Entering the Government service through the Census Bureau February 14, 1890, Mr. Grissom later was transferred to the old Pension Bureau in the Interior Department, where he served for 20 years. He went to the Bureau of Immigration in 1910, when that agency was under the old Department of Commerce and Labor.

Callahan Heads Museum Group At Alexandria

The Society for the Preservation of Alexandria Antiquities is the name decided upon last night for the organization formed to acquire the antique fixtures, equipment and records of the Leadbeater Drug Corporation, recently liquidated after having been conducted for 140 years by the same family.

The organization meeting was held in the American Legion meeting room in Gadsby's Tavern, and was presided over by Armistead L. Boothe and Mrs. C. A. S. Sinclair as temporary chairmen.

The officers elected were Charles H. Callahan, honorary president; Walter S. Nicklin, executive vice president; Miss Grace Powell, secretary, and Robert M. Reese, treasurer. An executive committee composed of these officers and Dr. E. F. Kelley, of the American Pharmaceutical Association; C. S. Taylor Burke, J. E. W. Timberman, Purvis Taylor and John B. Murphy,, also was named.

Organizations Report.

Representatives of 17 patriotic and civic organizations, engaged in raising funds to purchase the old store, reported that their organizations had pledged money or would solicit contributions among their membership. These were the American Legion post, Alexandria Association, Chamber of Commerce, Alexandria Garden Club, Business and Professional Women's Club, Cameron Club, Colonial Dames, Mount Vernon Chapter of D. A. R., Kate Waller Barrett Chapter of D. A. R., John Alexander Chapter of D. A. R., Ann McCarthy Ramsey Chapter of C. A. R., the druggists of Alexandria, the Kiwanis Club, Knights of Columbus, Lions, Rotary and the Washington Society. Mrs. Robert M. Reese reported a contribution of $100 from one individual.

William A. Moncure, trustee for the Leadbeater Corporation, announced that he hoped to have the historian of the American Pharmaceutical Association make a selection of the equipment desired for a museum and set this aside to be sold at auction Wednesday. Other articles, such as bottles and records, not desired so much, will be sold at the same time.

Estate Owns Four Buildings.

There are four buildings belonging to the Leadbeater estate, and the purpose is to secure cash or pledges sufficient to purchase one or more of them. The museum is expected to be purchased by the American Pharmaceutical Association. It will be allowed to remain in Alexandria, provided the organization will furnish the building.

Mrs. Reese announced she had received a letter from a firm in Brooklyn offering to lease the building and contents when acquired, and to operate it under the name of the Martha Washington Apothecary Shop, or some other appropriate name. An indirect offer from an Alexandria firm has also been received. It is not thought probable, however, that it will be conducted as a store.

Beer Permitted In Mt. Rainier And Riverdale

State Reverses Decision and Holds Towns Can Issue Licenses.

Reversing his decision on the legality of beer in Mount Rainier and Riverdale, William L. Henderson, assistant attorney general of Maryland, yesterday ruled that licenses to sell the beverage could be issued in both towns.

In his decision Henderson held that the act of 1917 repealed all inconsistent laws, including the disputed provision in the Mount Rainier charter. The provision declares that no liquor or malt shall be sold in the town.

The 1917 act, known as the county local option liquor law, was regarded as the ruling factor, in spite of the fact that the charter provision is included in the 1930 Maryland code. This code was legalized by the State Legislature in 1929.

The dispute was begun when officiels of Mount Rainier questioned the legality of beer selling permits being issued by the Prince Georges County Beer Board. The prohibiting section of the charter was referred to as basis for withholding the sales. A similiar provision was found in the Riverdale charter.

On June 19 the attorney general's office was appealed to, and a decision was handed down by Henderson to the effect that 3.2 beer, as an intoxicating beverage, could not be sold in the towns. This was contested by the beer board on the grounds that the beer was non-intoxicating. The contention was upheld.

Takoma Park's Beer License Fee Is Scored

$1,000 Charge Branded as Excessive by Judge in Test Case.

Imposition of a license fee of $1,000 for the sale of beer in Takoma Park, Md., by the town council was enacted purely to prevent the sale of beer and is "not only unreasonable but is excessive and prohibitory," Judge Charles W. Woodward ruled yesterday in an opinion handed down in the case of Nick Bougades against the town officials. The judge indicated that he will issue an injunction restraining town officials from enforcing the ordinance.

The opinion was handed down in Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville, Md., yesterday. Its effect is to permit the sale of beer of 3.2 per cent content in Takoma Park without the payment of the $1,000 fee imposed by the council. The Bougades case was a test case presented to the court by the law firm of Cissel & Whiteford, attorneys for the dealers of Takoma Park.

Judge Woowward said in the opinion that the license fee for the sale of beer in the District of Columbia, just over the town's Maryland limits, is $15, and that the facts in the case "clearly show that it was the purpose of the municipal authorities to entirely prevent the sale of those beverages" otherwise legalized by Maryland law and for which fees had been specified by the State. The judge stated that the fee does effectively prevent all businesses in the town from selling this beverage, in that it is manifestly impossible for the merchants to pay the fee and compete with dealers in the District of Columbia.

The ordinance requiring payment of the fee was adopted two months ago, after the town council had received a petition from dry elements asking that sale of beer be prevented.

Los Angeles, July 12 (A.P.).—A 17-year-old Los Angeles boy, Benjamin Stephens Harrison, today was granted court approval of a $68,750 settlement as his share of the $100,000,000 fortune of Ella V. Von E. Wendel, late New York spinster recluse.

The boy was adopted by Mrs. Laura Oral Harrison, who died June 20, 1931, and was named by Surrogate Judge James A. Foley last June 29 as one of the nine persons to share in the Wendel estate. Mrs. Harrison's husband, James, and Mrs. Thelma, Bart, of Oakland, also an adopted child of Mrs. Harrison, receive a share of her part of the estate.

Head of Bon Secours Will Be Buried Today

Requiem mass will be said at 10 a. m. today at the Bon Secours Convent in Baltimore for Mother St. Urban, founder of the Bon Secours Order in this city, Detroit, Baltimore and Philadelphia, who died Tuesday at the Washington convent of the order, 1401 Yuma street northwest. Burial will be in Cathedral Cemetery of Baltimore.

Mother St. Urban was the mother superior of the convent and hospital of her order in Baltimore. She was born Catherine Tierney in Cork, Ireland, in 1857, and entered a novitiate at Paris and was professed in London at the age of 21. During her early training she was said to be the first nurse ever allowed to use a clinical thermometer. She was one-time nurse of Gen. Phillip Sheridan.

Mrs. Emanuel Is in Reno.

Reno, Nev., July 12 (A.P.).—Mrs. Dorothy Emanuel, wife of Victor Emanuel, Eastern utility magnate, has established residence in Nevada, and will be eligible to file suit for divorce within the next month, it was reliably learned today. She is known to have retained an attorney.

Women Are Urged To Play Foolishly

Chicago, July 12 (A.P.).—Business women today were urged to learn to spend their leisure time unwisely.

Addressing the authors' dinner of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs convention, Miss Catherine Oglesby, of Philadelphia, an editor, said the only real purpose of leisure is to use it "unwisely."

"The true reason for working wisely from 9 to 5 is that it enables one to play foolishly the rest of the time," she declared.

"Wise work and foolish play is a sure means of success. Every business woman when making up her budget should allow for a period of mischief. Psychologists who have studied women in business declare that most women fail to advance because they don't know how to play."

She urged her listeners to take up gardening, forestry or other hobbies.

Drought Area Gets Million Relief Fund

Kansas City, July 12 (A.P.).—Clouds rolled to the defense of the Southwest against a prolonged heat wave today, but the sun prevailed over much of the area to send temperatures above 100 degrees again.

In Oklahoma, the high reading at Kingfisher was 110 for the third consecutive day. It was 104 in Tulsa and 102 in Oklahoma City, where the minimum last night was 82.

Gov. William H. Murray authorized the use of $1,000,000 in Federal relief funds for the benefit of six drought-stricken counties of Oklahoma.

While the Texas Coast was relatively cool, the sun continued to scorch the central and northern parts of the State. Scattered showers were insufficient to break the dry spell. It was 112 at Deleion, 107 at Waco and Kerrville and 104 in Austin.

Clouds which obscured the sun most of the day kept the Kansas and Missouri temperatures down, but forecasters said they saw no immediate prospects for a general rain. The Kansas City peak was 86. It was 95 in Topeka, Kans.

Much of the drought area in the south portion of Missouri has been relieved, but rain is needed in the east central portion of the State, the United States Weather Bureau said in a crop bulletin issued today.

Annapolis Mayor Qualifies for Post

W. E. Quenstedt, Republican Will Take Office on Monday.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., July 12.—While nearly a score of friends looked on, Walter E. Quenstedt, Republican, reelected Monday to his third consecutive term as Mayor of Annapolis, today qualified before Deputy Clerk William A. Nayden, of the county circuit court.

Quenstedt announced that he will administer the oath to his party colleague and running mate, City Counselor Roscoe C. Rowe, and the eight aldermen, six Democrats and two Republicans, next Monday night preceding the first regular meeting of the new council.

The city board of supervisors of elections today canvassed the vote cast in Monday's election, which showed that Quenstedt's official majority over Charles E. Chance, Democrat, was 156 and that Rowe defeated Albert J. Goodman, Democrat, by a majority of 132.

New Yorker Today

By Mark Barron.

New York—It long has been a legend that not even a grand duke can be as haughty and condescending as a Park avenue doorman.

Nevertheless, this encouraging little scene was witnessed on that society street the other afternoon. A policeman, strolling along, stopped to chat a moment with one of these high-hat doormen, and then proceeded along his beat.

When the officer passed out of sight around the corner, the doorman signaled to someone hiding in the lobby of the swank apartment building. "Come on out," he called. "The cop's gone now."

There emerged from within a frayed, old woman flower seller. Dressed like a character out of Dickens, she smiled her thanks to the doorman and hurried back to the corner where she peddles her blossoms.

One-Man Band.

A twist of the wrist and two sticks of wood enabled Jack Powell to transform an infantile nuisance into a career. Oldest of a not-wealthy Brooklyn family of six children, he early became a distinguised annoyance making more noise than any five kids in the neighborhood by banging his mother's pots and pans.

Trained as a musician—he plays more than a dozen musical instruments—he discarded his violin and cornet, deciding to become a one-man orchestra by returning to the pots and pans.

In this town of unusual occupations, he boasts one of the strangest of all. He is the only solo drummer in the world. But he doesn't even require a drum; two drumsticks being all he needs.

A common kitchen chair, a table, or even a bare stage and proscenium arch serve as his instruments, while with a few assorted tin pans and kettles he can produce a veritable symphony of rhythm.

It's all in two drumsticks and a knack of a twist of the wrist, he explains, but it has bought him an estate in Westchester and a garage full of motor cars.

The Spell of June.

In correspondence with George Jean Nathan, back in the far from heart warming days of winter, I attempted to elicit from him a brochure on his views on marriage. While willing to discuss almost any other subject, he was cold to the matrimonial idea. "I've said all I want to say on that subject," he wrote. "I don't want to talk about it again."

So what? So when the romantic days of June arrive, with the news columns filled with details of fascinating weddings, we find the good Prof. Nathan essaying at length twice in one week on the subject of marriage. June gets all of us that way.

Robert Sisk, publicist, is not only an avid stamp collector, but he also has the town's best exhibits of Bernard Shaw and Eugene O'Neill first editions.

Culbertson's Bridge

THE DANGER OF DELAY.

FEW Bridge players appreciated the importance of the time factor both in attack and defense at Contract Bridge. Quite often the timing of trick taking by the Declarer is the decisive factor in the fulfillment of a contract. It is particularly important in the matter of Forced Lead plays, where the moment that a chosen adversary is saddled with the lead must be carefully determined if one is to realize the advantage of the maneuver.

On the defending side the time when a trick should be taken is often based upon the factor of removing stoppers in one suit before the Declarer has the opportunity to establish involvement of the heart in the course of an acute attack of rheumatism is common, and perhaps constant.

Sugar in Blood.

K. A. writes: Is it possible to eliminate excessive sugar from the blood?

Reply.

It is. There are several ways. Using insulin will do it. A simpler but much more inconvenient method is to eat less bread, cereals, pastries, potatoes, corn, peas and beans, and sugar and all other sweets. Some cases require attention given to some ductless glands.

Be Careful.

P. K. writes: When taking sunbaths should a person apply anything to his skin? If so, what and when—before or after taking the sunbath?

Reply.

No. But be careful to graduate the exposure so as to prevent sunburn. By being careful you can get a good tan without any burning or blistering. Caution, not chemicals, is what you need.

Mr. John W. Jacobson, of Toronto, is recognized as one of Canada's strongest Contract players. The hand below, which he played in a Rubber game, illustrates the importance of the time factor in defensive play. The West player had chosen the only Opening lead which would permit the defeat of the contract, but failed to grasp the significance of Mr. Jacobson's lead to the second trick of the hand.

South, Dealer.

The final contract was four hearts, though Mr. Jacobson states that he knows it should have been three notrump. Against this contract West opened the ten of diamonds, and when the Dummy was spread on the table Mr. Jacobson could see the possibility of losing two clubs, a diamond and a heart. He won the first trick with the King in his own hand and, correctly refusing to give up hope, laid a clever trap for his opponents, into which West fell headlong.

To the second trick he led the club seven, and West, usually a very fine defensive player, failed to play the Ace. East won the trick with the King, but in his situation there was nothing that could be done to repair the damage caused by West's play. West could not be placed in the lead again before the Knave of clubs in Dummy was established for a diamond discard. West's choice of an Opening lead was very fine, but his failure to realize that if East won the club trick he could make no advantageous defensive return counteracted his splendid Opening.

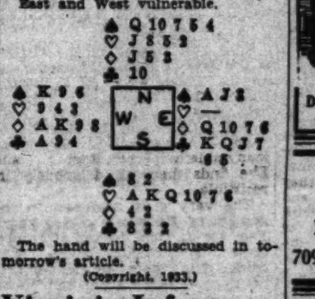
No Charge for Answers.

Recently I have received a number of letters from Bridge lovers in all parts of the country, telling me they have been informed that I charge a fee for answering questions relating to Bridge. This story has not the slightest foundation in fact. I am very glad at all times to answer free of charge questions relative to the bidding and play of Bridge hands for my friends throughout the world.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

How can East and West convey to each other a maximum of information with maximum safety on the combined holdings shown below in order to reach the best Grand Slam contract?

West, Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.



The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Acute Rheumatism.

PHYSICIANS are greatly interested in rheumatism. They feel that something must be done against heart disease, and rheumatism is the key to that problem. Besides those who are threatened with fatality because of heart disease, there are hundreds of thousands who are very much crippled and very uncomfortable because of various forms of arthritis. The interest of health officers in rheumatism and heart disease is still more urgent. Their, up till now, tasks are almost completed, and they are preparing to take up new ones. The great heart disease question joins mental disease in challenging them. To make headway with the prevention of heart disease, they must find something to do about rheumatism. And, finally, the people themselves have an enormous interest.

This article deals with the symptoms that mean that one variety of rheumatism is present, or is scheduled to appear within a few days. The kind referred to is acute rheumatic fever or acute rheumatic arthritis, the physicians being engaged just now in picking a bone over the name.

Whenever a sore throat appears, rheumatism is one of the possible sequences, and heart disease is next in line. This is true of the simplest forms of acute pharyngitis and tonsillitis. Dr. Harlow Brooks, who has studied the subject of rheumatism extensively especially in relation to heart disease, thinks that sinus trouble is one of the antecedents of rheumatism. There are other physicians, however, who clear the sinuses of blame. Certainly whenever a case of acute rheumatism develops, the nose and the sinuses should be examined, and an inquiry should be made as to recent attacks of sore throat and sinusitis. Some hold that in every case of acute rheumatism there should be treatment of the throat as the point where the disease gets into the system, even though it comes to rest in some joint a long way off. Conversely, Dr. Brooks holds that, in the case of sore throats, the possibility of rheumatism as a sequence must be kept in mind. In cases of rheumatic fever, the glands of the neck should be examined. Dr. Brooks says they are usually found to be enlarged.

The fever of acute rheumatism is quite marked. It comes and goes, but it appears to have a good hold. The fact that the fever goes down does not mean that it will stay down, if a joint is still inflamed. Chills in connection with the fevers of acute rheumatism are rarely observed. Sweating is profuse and characteristic; in fact, the people know about the sour sweat of rheumatic fever. But the disease does not start with sweating, nor is this symptom present until after several days of the fever and joint trouble.

A peculiarity of the disease is that it involves several joints. If one joint is inflamed and swollen—let us say one knee—the disease is liable to jump to another and then another. This tendency to jump around from joint to joint is marked.

The swelling, heat, redness, tenderness and pain of the disease are quite different from the symptomatology of most kind of arthritis. Delirium is infrequent, even in severe cases; as a rule the mind is very clear. The physicians should watch the lungs closely. Some pneumonia is present during a large part of the cases.

The disease spares the kidneys, but not so the heart. Dr. Brooks

I AM related to things ill-fated, to every scheme that fails; I am the Mentor of those who enter the poor farms and the jails. I am the father of pests that bother the plants when they are green, that kill the lilies and give the willies to roses in between. I am the mother of fogs that smother the airmen in their flight, and send them falling, all spent and sprawling, from an unholy height. I am the sister of every twister that lays a village low, and causes wailing and bitter railing from people in their woe. I am the uncle of that carbuncle which makes the good man swear; his code forgetting amid his fretting, his language jars the air. I am the cousin of the flies that buzz in, and poison things we eat, that spoil the cheeses and spread diseases with their infected feet. I am always present when things unpleasant disturb the poor man's peace; I am the auntie of bailiffs jaunty. I am the sheriff's niece. I am on duty when youth and beauty must face a ruined life; they're pinched for speeding, the laws unheeding, and I'm the copper's wife. I am the granny of things tin-panny, of schemes that don't pan out, of bonds defaulted and mines besalted, cigars made out of kraut.

Secret Hearing Set Monday in Roosevelt Suit

Cruelty Decree to Be Given Wife of President's Son, Attorney Says.

Reno, Nev., July 12 (A.P.).—Elliott Roosevelt, second son of the President, will file suit for divorce at Minden, Nev., Friday, and three days later the decree will be awarded to his pretty young wife on a cross-complaint charging extreme cruelty, according to plans announced today by Samuel Platt, attorney for the husband.

Testimony of Mrs. Roosevelt, the former Elizabeth Donner and daughter of a millionaire steel executive, will be presented in a deposition to be dispatched from Philadelphia by airmail as soon as the complaint is filed.

Details of her testimony will not be divulged, Mr. Platt said, adding that the case will be heard next Monday behind closed doors before Judge Clark J. Guild.

Terms of a property settlement agreement, which Mr. Platt said makes "adequate provision" for the support of the couple's infant son, likewise will be kept secret.

While plans for the divorce went forward, rumors were heard here linking young Roosevelt anew in a romance with Miss Ruth Googins, of Fort Worth, Texas. Although both have previously denied they are more than just friends, reports persisted they might be married.

Mr. Platt said today he had instructed Elliott to say nothing about Miss Googins.

Family Now Spends Many Happy Hours Enjoying Modern Recreation Room

Luggage Now Must Match Traveling Suit

By The Meanderer.

It's no longer a case of matching your traveling suit to your luggage, shoppers, but of matching your luggage to your traveling suit. Hat boxes, suit cases, traveling bags of all varieties come in many materials and all colors. The Meanderer was interested in some of the tweed luggage displayed in an F street store. There are several species in this family. The smallest member is the zipper bag, practical for an all-day automobile trip, the beach, or golf.

Next in line is the weekend case neatly finished after the English fashion and nicely fitted for short trips. Following this are the hat box hanger case, and the somewhat larger suit case hanger box. If one doesn't suit you the other must. Here is a family, shoppers, well worth cultivating.

An excellent bargain in traveling facilities at a G street shop is a three-piece black luggage set in suede finish, with the locks of silver metal. An artful contrast is the lining of light pique. Accoutrements such as these will compel your casual acquaintances along the way to place you well in the millionaire class. Rightfully or wrongly, let us add. This prestige may be acquired for the sum of $10.

If you would leave no doubt in their minds that you are no mere tourist, by all means procure, for both appearance sake and utilitarian reasons, some of the made-to-order luggage covers of either duck, macintosh or canvas. These, mesdames, are the nth degree in traveling style. Take this hint from the Meanderer, for the Meanderer thinks she knows.

For the serious traveler who would dispense with all but the essential piece, let her consider the hat, shoe and clothes box. The Meanderer saw one in a lovely top-grain cowhide binding, with duck finish, set off by brass locks. Two red stripes across the top indicate that stripes are a new note in luggage fashions. This case is an ample 12 inches in depth. Price, $20.

We don't mean to say that luggage is the only item worth the traveler's notice. If you like the atmosphere of real luxury around you on the road or off, see the new portable radio-victrola combinations. These are built so that they can be used on any current, and those of you who are familiar with the continental arrangement of things will readily appreciate the value of this adaptability.

Go to the beach and go native might be the by-word of a novel seashore costume the Meanderer found. Although patterened after the latest in South Sea Island styles, it is made of terry cloth. A scant bandana top joins with a scantier wrap-around skirt. What a top! What a skirt! What effect. This costume can be bought in a variety of colors. The Meanderer immediately took to one in yellow and orange, but the best guide to color schemes is in milady's hair and eyes.

P. S. Shopper, do be careful. Color schemes are to be treated with care. Shades fascinating on a blonde may be utterly detrimental to a brunette. The Meanderer extends an invitation to all of you who wrestle with this problem to write to her about any color difficulty you're up against. State the color of your hair, eyes, and skin, and she will tell you what long shopping experience has taught her. Please inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Incidentally, have you heard the latest? The grandfather clock-radio has a new grandchild. The infant, an electric clock-portable radio, is a bouncing baby of 8 pounds. It is already lisping WRC. Better buy it and tie it down. This youngster can be bought in brown, black, marble or white for $34.50. The line forms on the right.

Telephone questions on The Meanderer's column in The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 27, or address The Meanderer, The Washington Post, inclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Creative Urge Gives Fashion New Impetus

By Dare.

I suppose we all agree that fashion, style itself, is born in Paris. Then, from what source does Paris get style? Which is just as hopeless to answer as if you asked the origin of life, or death . . . or demanded an exact definition of electricity.

But since Paris is the average woman's idea of paradise, suppose we say that Paris finds inspiration in its own variable sky. And, as there must be some intermediary between heaven . . . or shall I say, between God and Man . . . and more particularly between God and woman . . . what could be more reasonable to imagine than that the serpent in this Eden of style might take the form of the great couturier—of each generation?

Thus, the tempter, or the serpent in the days of Marie Antoinette was known to the world as la Bertin. Under the Restoration, Palmyre held sway.

Today, it would be difficult to name any one serpent; Satan has many able helpers in Eden . . . and Eve finds them all deliciously irresistible.

The very girls who sew in the ateliers of Paris are a race apart. They spring from the soil of France, these clever needle-women. They bring with them an unteachable deftness. Every stab of their flashing needles adds savour, and a new zest to all they touch. The cutters . . . sculptors in cloth, combine with the great designer who rules and inspires them all. The joy of original creation is expressed in a new neck-line, a new sleeve—a new color, a new material, or an old one used in a new way. But why try to describe, explain or define—beauty, love or Paris!

Perhaps you can feel in your heart what all three mean . . . and that is the only true definition . . . for you!

Besides, nobody has ever been able to tell me why what we call "truffes" . . . truffles, appear mysteriously under the great trees at Perigord and no place else! . . . There are many great trees throughout France . . . but under no others do you find truffles!

So-o-o when I find out about truffles may-bee . . . I will be able to tell you why it is that with all the fine couturiers elsewhere in the world, it is only under the subtle skies of Paris that they become serpents . . . and you and I become Eves.

* * * *

And here I am sailing to Paris! That is, of course, if I don't forget to go——or if I don't change my mind about the outfit I want to wear. As it stands today——with the boat sailing Saturday, no less ——the skirt is a lightweight wrap around navy blue woolen, the scarf navy blue broadcloth with white dots, the hat my panama with a red band, the gloves navy blue with white cuffs. By the way, here's a we-e-e-e-e little secret —— these gloves are as old as the hills, and the cuffs are buttoned on, cut from that new sway de swah which can be bought by the yard, you know. Well, and then the bag is white, the shoes white sport shoes in the new funny material which is washable and everything——and there you are——or I am, rather.

Many of the family's most enjoyable hours may be spent in a room such as the one illustrated above. In all plans of modern homes, recreation rooms are being included. Even more, recreation rooms are being featured as a most appealing part of the plans. Home owners insist upon them, and real estate men point out the recreation feature in their sales talks.

Such rooms may be on the top floor of the home, or in the basement, or in a more important part of the dwelling if the family home is spacious enough to allow for it. The illustrated room has been given wide windows and is placed to capture a view, if it is only a hypothetical view possible from a model room in a department store. The room presupposes a spacious house, as it is as large as the living room in many homes.

The home bar, with its dashing black and chromium design, and its up-to-date refreshment glasses and amusing bar towels, is easily the feature of the room. The price tag on the bar reads $17.95. Bar stools, with all their sophistication, cost the modest price of $3.95.

A black, shiny waterproof fabric, resembling oilcloth, covers the settee and the small chairs about the game table. Scarlet fabric of the same kind is used on the lounge chair near the windows and beyond the game table. The chromium frames of the furniture are nontarnishable and, in combination with black and scarlet, will always contribute a cheerful effect essential to such a room.

Trailing greenery might be used with good effect at the many-paned windows of this recreation room. Or colored beverage sets would be effective. on glass shelves across the windows, much as glassware was used in the setting in the Long Island barn-cottage in the film of "When Ladies Meet." Women everywhere have exclaimed over the cozy, appealing effects in that livable house that once was supposed to have been a barn.

The curtains in the recreation room are so gauzy as to be almost no curtains at all. They are made of 10 yards of celaness material, costing only 49 cents a yard, and are arranged on a puley rod to make versatile arrangement of lighting and vistas.

The wall paper in this room is particularly entertaining, printed with music and words of songs of the gay, older days—"Sweet Adeline"—"In the Good Old Summertime"—and others, with caricatured figures singing the old songs, so irresistible that the occupants of the room find themselves bursting forth into the same melodies. Truly, a room fit to chase away the most deep-seated blues.

This recreation room appears to be mostly of a character for adults enjoyment. Tomorrow a play room for children, with furniture built on small scale—low bed, low chest, benches and table—will be shown as the fifth of a series of home-like, well-arranged interiors which The Washington Post Woman's Department is presenting, with the cooperation of furniture merchandising executives and decorators.

Thirsty Americans

In case you never considered what a thirsty Nation we Americans are, here are some facts and figures from the Federal Food and Drug Administration. Experts on beverages there say that we need eleven billion bottles of nonalcoholic beverages each year to quench our thirst. And this figure doesn't include the quantity of unbottled mixed drinks sold at soda fountains. This is equivalent to about 91 bottles annually for every individual in the United States. Experts estimate that the value of these drinks runs well over $500,000,000 a year.

Sheet Makes Smart White Sport Frock

Like the Mahatma, the modern miss goes around in a sheet. Not of course, the toga-like affair that the Oriental celebrity wears, but a fashionable frock that never would hint of its origin.

Linen sheets are more high-class, but the humble variety that looks like a heavy broadcloth makes excellent material. A true child of the depression will scorn to use a new one and will select for her Gandhi gown one which is no longer useful for its original purpose.

The dress we saw was made from a simple sport pattern, with a "V" neck and a low "V" sun back. Shoulder ties were cut with pointed ends, and a large, shiny button that looked like a cherry was sewn on each end. A belt of the material was fastened with a red buckle.

Look through your linen closet and your rag bag. One old sheet, split through the middle and worn quite thin, equals one new sport dress, right out of the style book. The model suggested can be varied by accessories of different colors, augmented by a cape, jacket or swagger coat or any deviation that the fertile mind of the dressmaker may select. A warning: Don't tell your friends when they admire your frock that you and the Mahatma have things in common.

Mrs. Thomson Writing For Husband's Paper

Genevieve Champ Clark Thomson, daughter of the late Speaker Champ Clark and Mrs. Clark, is actively engaged in journalism in New Orleans, where she is in charge of a page on her husband's paper, the Item-Tribune.

Mrs. Thomson, whose marriage to the New Orleans publisher was the aftermath of a romance which began at the Baltimore convention in 1912, where her father was defeated for the Presidential nomination by Woodrow Wilson, was one of the big factors in the election of her brother, Col. Bennett Champ Clark, to the Senate from Missouri. Mrs. Thompson will be in Washington shortly, en route to Summit Point, W. Va., where she will pass part of the summer with her mother-in-law, Mrs. Augustus P. Thomson.

Easy Ironing

Outdoor Drying, Smooth Steady Board Help Lighten Task.

Ironing is a hot job for hot weather and unfortunately there's more of it to do just because of the hot weather. Summer clothes are wash clothes, light in color and fabric, easily soiled, and so we make more changes, wear more different garments. More laundering, and especially more ironing, is necessary to turn us out in fresh, crisp prints and other cottons and linens every summer morning. Happily the vogue for sunsuits for little children helps to reduce their hot weather washing.

The housewife who does all the home laundering must look to little tricks of good management to lighten her job—little ways of saving steps and motions, and particularly, of saving her back. The Bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture has a number of hints along this line that merit attention.

Hinged Board Saves Work.

First, a good board makes a big difference, and costs no more than a poor one. Is the ironing board set at a comfortable height, so you do not have to stoop? Too high a board is also bad. Is your board firm and steady? Many women like the ironing board firmly hinged to the wall so that when not in use it can be folded out of the way. This makes a steady board, if you have a place for it where the light is satisfactory. Smooth, firm, well-padded covering without lumps and creases is essential to good, rapid work. Remove the cover frequently and wash it, or it may stain clothes. Keep the iron on a stand where it can not scorch the cover when you set it down between pieces.

If you have an electric iron, keep it on a shelf near the ironing board, with your pressing cloths, paraffin and other ironing equipment. Cover it or put it in a box as a protection from dust and rust when not in use. Look at the bottom of it before you heat it. You can easily wash off any scorched starch or soil while it is cold. When it is hot, rubbing it with salt will clean it.

The way you wring the clothes makes a difference in the ease of ironing. Shake each piece straight before you put it through the wringer. Wrinkles are hard to iron out when pressed in by the wringer. Out-of-doors drying, especially in a breeze, makes clothes easier to iron. Hang each article smooth and straight. Dresses hung on wooden hangers dry in better shape than those hung haphazard. Bath towels, dish towels, even sheets and counterpanes, can be hung so carefully that they won't need ironing. When you take clothes from the line, fold them into a basket instead of wadding them into a mass of wrinkles.

Sprinkling Important.

Sprinkle your clothes evenly, but not too wet, with a sprinkler-top bottle or a clean whisk broom and warm water, for better penetration. Spread flat articles flat, one on top of the other, and roll them up tight, letting them stand at least half an hour. Do not let sprinkled clothes remain damp too long in summer, or they may mildew.

Iron sleeves, collar and other parts that hang away from the garment, first, then the back, and last the front. In this way the garment wrinkles least as you move it around. Iron with the threads, and iron each part of the article dry or it will pucker. Give special attention to seams, hems and double thicknesses. Pull seams straight and smooth and hold them at a slight tension to keep them straight until they are ironed dry.

If your dress has pleats in the skirt, iron the hem first, then press the plaits in place, creasing them to a uniform width with the fingers. Nose around buttons with the point of your iron, or iron rows of small buttons wrong side up, pressing them into a Turkish towel.

Make it a rule to sit down for as much of the ironing as you can. You will need a high stool that brings your arm to just the right level. If ironing tires your back, work for short stretches and do something else between times, rather than iron too steadily. Children like to iron, and they can relieve you of many of the small flat articles like handkerchiefs and table napkins. Better still, substitute materials that require no ironing at all for napkins, towels and handkerchiefs, as well as underwear, and so reduce the total amount to be done.

Fair Weather Parent Fails His Children

Father Who Turns Deaf Ear to Troubles Is Unjust.

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne.

Mr. Roberts is a proud, and in his own way, a devoted father. His four children, gifted and well brought up, are all a credit to him. He loves to hear of their successes.

Bill graduates at the head of his class; John writes a prize winning short story for the school magazine; Ted plays on the basketball team, and bright little Marcia is the most graceful in her dancing class. All such laurels won by his children please him enormously, and eagerly he plans to give them the best of everything.

He thinks of each as an individual and to each he tries thoughtfully to give just those opportunities which particularly suit his interests and aptitudes.

But what of those times when things do not go so well? Bill, for all his brilliant scholastic record, does not fit it off too happily with his classmates. John comes to him troubled because his teacher told him he needs special coaching if he is to pass his college entrance examination in mathematics.

Teddy shows signs of an unfortunate jealousy of John and there are occassionally unpleasant quarrels between the two. Marcia resents being youngest, and clamors for the greater freedom and privileges which her brothers enjoy.

But of all such difficulties their father wants to know nothing. When the children come to him with them, or when some unpleasant incident brings them to his attention, he turns a deaf ear, or irritably refers them to their mother. Appreciative as he is of his children's successes he will have nothing to do with their faults and failures.

Picnic Paragraphs

Use earthnware casseroles as food containers on picnics for those who do not want a meal that is entirely cold. These containers hold heat a long time if packed in thick layers of newspaper.

Peeled iced cucumbers in an air-tight jar are an appetizing picnic food. Chopped egg salad may be carried and preserved well in glass jars.

On the picnic where there is a camp fire cut a few strips of bacon into small pieces and cook over the fire. Add lima beans and some fresh or canned corn. Heat thoroughly and season with salt and pepper.

What Today Means

"CANCER."

INFLUENCES operating on this date will be productive of great calm and serenity. People generally will be inclined to view the spiritual side of all matters and will accordingly accomplish much good. Children will be most attentive to and considerate of their elders on this date.

The child born on this July 13 will in all probability be a striking little one. He will attract much attention because of his sunny disposition, his friendly attitude and his absolute fearlessness. You will find this little one in the midst of any excitement. Invariably he will do what is right.

If July 13 is your birthday, you are quite likely one who is quick to take a stand on any matter. You are very definite in your speech and you are not afraid to lay down the law. Unfortunately, you do not have great reasoning powers, nor do you have the equipment to grasp intelligently and properly weigh broad principles. Your sincerity, which no one can doubt, is your greatest asset. You probably look on yourself as a broad-minded and tolerant person, whereas, as a matter of fact, you are neither. In a sense you lead a rather secluded life and you are limited in your knowledge of many of the things that go on. Brought face to face with any situation outside your own experience, you would be the last to understand it and probably the first to condemn.

Born on July 13, you enjoy travel, but you do not like long trips, for you are too fond of home life. You are an easy person to live with as long as things run along smoothly; when your routine existence is interfered with in any way you allow yourself to become irritable and easily angered.

Beer Suppers Put Pep Into Summer Menu

One summer comfort nowadays that summers for many years have lacked, is ice-cold beer. The immense popularity of beer suppers continues to make a demand for "Seven Menus for Beer Suppers," offered by The Washington Post to readers who send stamped, self-addressed envelopes.

Thick cheese sandwiches so much relished with beer may pall a little on warm days. The "Seven Menus for Beer Suppers" offer a number of original, easily digested suggestions.

Two appetizing ways of using cheese, with or without beer, are here suggested:

Stuffed celery—3 stalks celery, 2 ounces butter, 3 ounces Roquefort cheese, 1 pimento.

Wash, scrape and cut celery stalks into 2-inch pieces. Work butter and Roquefort cheese together until thoroughly blended, season with salt and finely chopped pimento, stuff into celery stalks. Serve on chopped ice garnished with radishes.

Luncheon tidbit—10 thick slices of tomatoes, 6 ounces Roquefort cheese, 24 anchovies, 2-3 cup tartar sauce.

Put two anchovies on each slice of tomato, mix tartar sauce and cheese together, cover tomato slices with a thick layer. Serve on lettuce leaf.

In addition to the "Seven Menus for Beer Suppers," the Woman's Department of The Washington Post has available to readers this list of leaflets, which will be sent on receipt of a self-addressed, stamped envelope:

The Etiquette of Wine Serving.
Decanting, Serving and Temperatures of Wines.
The English Method of Making Tea.

Jellied Tomato Salad

1 cup tomatoes
½ cup boiling water
1 bay leaf
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspon sugar
¼ teaspoon paprika
1 slice onion
2 celery leaves
2 whole cloves
1 tablespoon granulated gelatin
6 tablespoons cold water

Mix tomatoes, boiling water and seasonings. Cover and simmer 15 minutes. Strain and heat to boiling point. Add gelatin, which has soaked 5 minutes in cold water. Stir until gelatin has dissolved. Cool and pour into mold. Chill until stiff. Unmold on lettuce and top with salad dressing.

Cool Gelatin Salads.

Jellied vegetable salad served with mayonnaise is a cool-looking, attractive summer dish. You can make it the feature of a summer noon luncheon. Or you can serve it with the dinner in individual molds. Leftover cooked vegetables, like green peas or diced carrots, you can mold in a lemon jelly mixture made without the sugar. Chopped green pepper, diced celery, chopped raw carrots and other crisp raw vegetables are also nice in jelly. For a colorful salad, mold your vegetables in tomato jelly.

A Robe for Judy

By Mary Brook Lucas

Again Dad has been delayed in his plans for a trip to Chicago, so to pacify the disappointed Judy he promises her a new robe. That young lady, who makes the most of every opportunity, joyfully sets out to find something different. She first tries a brocaded satin with youthful collar, sleeves and sash.

Ice blue satin, very [illegible] a slight back train next captures [illegible]. The frilly sleeves of silk point d'[illegible] flattering to a youthful person. Its [illegible] back is the fact it is hard to pack [illegible] decides to be more practical. That [illegible] a hit with Dad!

The practical idea turns out to be a quilted crepe de chine pajama and knee-length coat cut on tailored lines. It is surprising what a small space it takes up in an overnight bag. It looks heavy, but is extremely light and wads into a ball. Because of the novelty material it never looks wrinkled.

Judy decides there is something awfully sad about youth going practical. Lovely crisp robes or organdie were made for youth and they aren't expensive! Perhaps Dad won't mind if she gets this one, too, since the practical one is such a bargain. Pale blue is contrasted with a cluster of pink and yellow wild flowers.

Tomorrow—Hats and a Tea Gown.

Radio Dial Flashes

By Robert D. Heinl.

THE broadcast yesterday morning from London by Rudyard Kipling, G. K. Chesterton and Marquess of Crewe from the Royal Society of Literature's luncheon for Canadian authors doubtless will be remembered by all who had the good fortune to hear it.

Although this was his first appearance before the microphone, Mr. Kipling showed not one iota of fright in a speech polished and effective to the last comma. Nowhere was his salient ability to get things across with no lost motion better demonstrated.

The Marquess made an excellent introductory talk, and Mr. Chesterton gave America listeners many chuckles occasioned not only by his remarks but by his typical British verbalisms.

A thing which struck us in listening to the affair was its contrast to some of our luncheons. There was no story about the two Irishmen, no slap-stick comedy, no girls in from the vaudeville theater, and no second-rate music. The orchestra, as was everything else connected with the British luncheon, was subdued. All, in fact, was what seemed to us tremendously good taste.

One rarely hears a softer or more pleasing voice than that of Kipling, whose remarks he addressed to "My lords, ladies and gentlemen." Chesterton, over the radio, came most to sounding like a "stage" Englishman but even so, was delightful as was the whole affair.

It was too bad that it came so early in the morning that so few could take time to tune it in because listening to the luncheon (which we did before we had had our breakfast) was like a visit to old England itself. The broadcast was by far the clearest we have ever heard from overseas and gives an idea of the improvement in transatlantic broadcasts and what we may expect in the future.

GRACE GEORGE, in a scene from Sardou's "Divorcons," Cliff Edwards, Larry Adler and Joe Penner will be among the entertainers on Rudy Vallee's varieties hour at 7 p. m. over WRC.

Miss George, a leading actress of the stage, has not been heard previously in the dramatic bits on this program, but her husband, William A. Brady, has appeared on two occasions.

Cliff Edwards, "Ukulele Ike," will do some of his specialties and Adler will exhibit his virtuosity with the humble harmonica, which he has turned into a respectable concert instrument. Joe Penner, favorite of vaudeville audiences, is a newcomer on the program.

A grapevine wireless from Mexico City is to the effect that the Radio Conference may last two months, which if true, will be pretty soft for the boys down there on expense account.

Gadget & Wheelbase, a comedy skit, will start a series of 13 weekly programs over Station WRC at 5:30 o'clock tonight. Walker Hale takes the part of Gadget and Stanley Simmons is Wheelbase, both of Washington.

Youth's chance to make good will be considered by Dr. Mather Abbott, headmaster of Lawrenceville School, N. J., in "What Has America to Offer Its Youth?" over WRC at 2:30 p. m., in the Woman's Radio Review.

THE Western Reserve University Chorus of 100 voices and the school's symphony orchestra of 90 pieces will present a concert over WMAL at 9:30 p. m. The concert will originate in Severance Hall, Cleveland, and is a feature of the school's summer session.

Senator James P. Pope, of Idaho, will speak on "A Forward Step in International Relations" over WRC at 10:15 p. m.

Senator Pope is expected to use recent developments abroad as the theme for his address. Before his election to the Senate he was Mayor of Boise for several years and was influential in the Democratic party in his State, having been assistant attorney general of Idaho, chairman of the Democratic State central committee and a delegate to two Presidential conventions.

During the past six months WRC was on the air 3,165 hours. Of this time only 1 minute 32 seconds was lost in transmitter trouble.

"A PAGEANT OF MELODY" will make its bow tonight. Edwin Steffe, barytone, and Dorothy Randolph, soprano, will be the singers and Raoul de Costa will direct the orchestra. The program will be sponsored by L. P. Steuart, Pontiac distributor.

Stories come thick and fast from Chicago about Ben Bernie, who is said to be really the star out there of the world's fair. For instance this one from Variety:

"Ben Bernie avers the most annoying kind of heckler is the mugg who gains a commanding position near the microphone at the Pabst Casino and waits until Bernie is in the midst of a vocal. Then the heckling takes the form of a persistent beckoning motion with the finger. No hiss ever could break up an actor like that beckoning gesture, Bernie.

Donald, 14-year-old son of Gus Kahn, of Hollywood, gets a $5 note from Ben Bernie for supplying him with half a dozen or so gags. Eddie Cantor decided he also wanted some gags from the youngster. He wired Bernie.

The latter replied, "Stop. I've exclusive on the kid. You can have the old man."

Another one from Variety proves our contention that no one radio announcer, no matter how versatile he may be, can be good at every kind of announcing. This has to do with what is said to have been a recent experience of Graham McNamee.

"Mac, who went to Chicago to broadcast the all-star baseball game was pulled out after the seventh inning," the story goes. Hal Totten finished the broadcast. Sidney Strotz, Chicago program director, did the pulling after McNamee's insufficient knowledge of baseball became increasingly evident.

"McNamee was alternating every other inning with Totten, a baseball expert, and the contrast was painful. A few minutes after Strotz silenced McNamee a message came through the N. B. C. in New York making the same suggestion that had already been carried out."

A MESSAGE to workers in the Government's conservation camps and to the Nation will be given by President Roosevelt over WJSV Monday at 9:30 p. m. Following the President, four members of his Cabinet will speak on various phases of the movement, the entire program to last one-half hour.

The third in the series of vacation broadcasts to be given under the auspices of the Elementary Science Corps of the District of Columbia Public Schools will be given over WRC this noon at 12:30 o'clock.

The speaker will be Dr. Doris Cochran, assistant curator, division of reptiles, New National Museum. Miss Cochran will tell some interesting things about the reptiles that may be found in the District of Columbia.

The purpose of this series of radio talks is to interest children in a worth-while use of their leisure time, by suggesting to them interests which they might have, or activities which they might carry on in elementary science. These talks are given each Thursday.

Chicago, July 12 (A.P.).—The late Charles F. Unrath, pioneer Chicago meat packer, who died several weeks ago in St. Petersburg, Fla., left an estate estimated at more than $1,500,000 to his widow and two sons, it was disclosed today with the filing of the will in Probate Court.

Capital Woman Is Amnesia Victim

Macon, Ga., July 13 (A.P.).—A comely young woman, who fainted on a street and lay unconscious two days in a hospital, has been identified as Mrs. Billie Woods Broom, of Washington, D. C., a former stage dancer, and relatives at Dublin, Ga., have removed her to their home.

She fell to the pavement while waiting for a bus, and after she was revived at the hospital she told physicians she was unable to remember her name or home.

Newspaper descriptions led L. Doughty Wood, a railroad official of Dublin, to suspect she was his sister, so he hurried here and identified her. She recognized him when he entered the room and her memory was gradually restored. Mrs. Broom, known on the stage as June Woods, was stricken en route from Washington to Dublin to visit an ill relative.

Group Protests Against Curtail Of Farm News

(Associated Press.)

The contention that the administration program to raise farm prices would be largely frustrated if the Government fails to furnish the farmer with adequate market information was presented to Secretary Wallace yesterday by a delegation of senators and farm representatives.

Senator Byrd (Democrat), Virginia, who headed the delegation, said he would take the protests against curtailment of the Agriculture Department's market news service to the President if necessary.

Funds for maintaining the market news service, described by Mr. Byrd as "the most valuable service the Government renders the farmer" have been cut from $1,300,000 to $575,000. A number of offices have been discontinued.

Senator McNary (Republican), Oregon, said:

"What is the use of passing a bill for the relief of agriculture and denying necessary funds to carry it out successfully? The market news service is so important to farmers that I would favor taking money from the public works fund to continue it."

Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, protesting against discontinuance of the Baltimore office, said this was the only time he had asked any relaxation in the economy program. He said farmers of Maryland, Virginia and parts of Pennsylvania and North Carolina were dependent on the Baltimore office for market prices.

Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, and Fred Brenckman, representing the National Grange, said the absence of reliable market information would place farmers at the mercy of dealers.

Others expressing opposition to the curtailment included Senators Steiwer (Republican), Oregon, Trammel (Democrat), Florida, King, (Democrat), Utah and Kendrick (Democrat), Wyoming.

Mr. Byrd said the delegation would confer with Budget Director Douglas and if necessary would call on President Roosevelt.

72,063 Cotton Curb Contracts Signed

Atlanta, July 12 (A.P.).—The extension service of the University of Georgia announced today 72,063 cotton reduction contracts had been signed by Georgia growers involving 1,552,204 acres of which 541,102 would be eliminated. J. Phil Campbell, in charge, said the figures did not represent complete returns for Georgia as many contracts are being held by county farm agents for alterations.

The figures represent $2,564,468 cash without options and cash with options total $3,740,447. Bales optioned 164,207.

Campbell said the greater percentage of the farmers have signed to take land out of production. Many of those failing to sign as reported by county agents are small growers who have planted without fertilizer and whose yield will not reach the minimum requirements of the allotment quota.

U. S. Acts to Cut Production of Country's Oil

(Associated Press.)

The Government yesterday took a decisive step toward curbing overproduction of oil through an order by President Roosevelt prohibiting the shipment in interstate commerce of petroleum produced or withdrawn from storage in violation of State conservation laws.

The order, issued under the authority given Mr. Roosevelt in the industrial recovery act, applies also to oil shipments in foreign commerce.

The Governors' Oil Conference, which met in Washington two or three months ago, advocated giving the Chief Executive the authority he used today. The provision was written into the industrial act after efforts to give the Government broader powers to control the oil industry had failed.

Over State Lines.

Secretary Ickes, an advocate of Government regulation of oil production, estimated that 500,000 barrels a day have been shipped over State lines in violation of State quota allotments.

He described the executive order as the first move by the Government to bolster State efforts to control excess oil production.

Mr. Ickes said Texas and Oklahoma, among others, have attempted to regulate production but that petroleum in excess of quota established had been shipped out of both States. This order, he said, would stop that, adding:

"This is one of the things all the oil interests want."

Interior Department officials pointed out, however, that the executive order would do no good in such States as California, where there is no limit on State production.

Penalties of Violations.

The penalties for violation of the executive order are $1,000 fine or imprisonment for six months, or both.

Senator Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, who, with a delegation from his State, called on Hugh S. Johnson, industrial administrator, earlier in the day to discuss the oil situation, said the President's order would prove helpful.

Thomas estimated more than 10,000,000 barrels of oil had been "run contrary to State laws during the last few months."

"At the present time," he said, "the big companies are running oil illegally from their own wells and buying up stolen oil cheaply. They are filling storage tanks with this cheap oil before any code affecting the industry is adopted and made binding on all."

Foreign Markets.

(Associated Press.)

London—Profit taking caused some easing in prices of speculative issues on the stock exchange today, but fresh support which included some from America helped industrials and transatlantic issues to recover later. Kaffirs, oil shares and gilt-edged securities were also supported. Trading was more quiet pending developments in the United States and in various commodities. The market closed steady.

Paris—Prices on the bourse advanced moderately on short covering and the firmness in London metals. The closing was firm.

Bonds Resume Upward March To New Highs

Three-Tenths Gain Scored as Sales Mount to $17,300,000.

New York, July 12 (A.P.).—Bonds rallied today under the leadership of various specialties after prices had fluctuated somewhat irregularly throughout most of the session.

Sales totaled $17,300,000, par value, slightly higher than yesterday, and the average for 60 domestic corporate loans advanced three-tenths of a point, to 81.6, another new 1933 higher.

Western Union issues made the best recovery with gains of 2 to 5 points following announcement of the company's earnings for May, which showed a net of about $1 per share. Postal Telegraph 5s also got back a point and some of the International Telephone issues rallied a point or more. American Telephone maturities were slightly irregular.

The rails moved rather indecisively, but gainers of 1 to around 2 points included some loans of Baltimore & Ohio, Burlington, St. Paul, Rock Island, Illinois Central, Louisville & Nashville, Southern and Texas & Pacific.

Among the better industrials, with advances of 1 to 2 or more, were issues of Bethlehem Steel, Colon Oil, International Paper, Shell Union Oil, Studebaker, United Drug and Wilson & Co.

Foreign obligations were a trifle mixed. The Australians were in demand at gains of nearly 2 points, and Italian Loans advanced 1½ to 3⅜ points. German and Swiss issues rallied a point or more and some of the Argentines and Japanese improved. French bonds were again under pressure for losses of 1 to around 4 points. British issues also were heavy. United States Government were fairly firm, but dull.

Goods Markets.

New York, July 12 (A.P.).—Cotton goods were firm today and trading light. Merchants are unwilling to sell and until confusion attending the inauguration of the recovery act clears away. Dress goods agents are overwhelmed with demands they are unable to meet due to yarn scarcity and a sold-up condition on many cloths. Rayon producers are now about as closely sold for September deliveries as they care to be. Burlaps were easier, affected by exchange. Silk merchants are awaiting developments in the filing of a silk code at Washington.

Specialty Stocks Climb Under Wet Leadership

Industrial and Utility Issues Improve; Gains Average 1.2 Points; Volume of Sales Increases to 5,189,160 Shares.

New York, July 12 (A.P.).—A vivid display by specialty issues, including the irrepressible alcohols, illuminated the stock market again today.

However, some of the more sedate industrial and utility leaders tended to improve and net changes averaged into a gain of slightly more than a point.

Stock traders found a number of willing movers in the share list and concentrated on them. Wet shares continued their big boom, finishing 2 to nearly 13 points higher. Western Union had a big day, jumping 9 points after publication of a favorable May earnings statement. Auburn, Celanese, Commercial Solvents, Peerless, International Silver, American Sugar, Great Western Sugar, Lehman Corporation, U. S. Smelting and U. S. Leather rallied well. Rails were quiet; New York Central, Southern Pacific and Delaware & Hudson rallied a point, but Union Pacific lost 3.

U. S. Steel, Allied Chemical, Union Carbide, Chrysler, Du Pont, Consolidated Gas, International Nickel, Woolworth, American Tobarro "B," Texas Corporation, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Transamerica rose a point or more. American Commercial Alcohol led the repeal division, which obviously reflected a scarcity of offerings, with a spurt of 12¾ net. Sales totaled 5,189,160 shares.

With the administration embarked on its reemployment and wage-lifting program, Wall street feels that the dollar will be left to its own devices. Whether this means a period of wide fluctuations, to be followed in the fall by an advance under seasonal influences, remains to be seen, but many bankers here believe such improvement is quite possible, especially if this country retains its favorable trade balance. British foreign trade figures for June showed decreases in both exports and imports from May, 1933, and June of last year.

Midweek business news provided the now familiar reports of rising activity. Electric power output has been rising for ten consecutive weeks.

Output of Automobiles Is Up to 195,178 Cars

New York, July 12 (A.P.).—The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce today estimated June production by its members, including all important manufacturers except Ford, at 195,178 cars and trucks against 172,276 in May and 95,713 in June of last year.

For the first six months of 1933 output was 800,290 units as compared with 680,218 in the same 1932 period.

Curb Is Pushed By Distilleries To High Levels

New York, July 2 (A.P.).—Wide spurts in distillery issues and other specialties featured trading on the Curb Exchange today. A number of industrials were indifferent, but the closing tone of the market was firm on a late demand for a variety of shares.

A few industrials were reactionary at times. Aluminum Co. of America was off 3 points, while New Jersey Zinc and Safety Car Heating lost substantially. On the other hand, Dow Chemical soared 10 to close at 75, while Armstrong Cork was in good demand.

Among the "wets" gains of 4 to around 6 were recorded in Hiram Walker and the Canadian Industrial Alcohol issues. Distillers Corporation-Seagrams firmed 2½.

Utilities closed higher, athough activity was rather restricted. Electric Bond & Share gained a major fraction, while Consolidated Gas of Baltimore and Commonwealth Edison each firmed a point or more. American Gas & Electric eased a shade.

Oils were steady to slightly higher, excepting Humble Oil, which added 4 points in quiet dealings. Mining issues were improved, Newmont advancing 2. Transfers increased to 1,004,000 shares, compared to 859,000 for Tuesday.

Business Notes.

He did not say whether the increases would absorb previous salary cuts.

New York, July 12 (A.P.).—Edison Electric Institute reported today electric power output made the largest gain during the week ended July 8 since the start of the upturn early in May. Output increased 14.7 per cent over the same week last year.

Bigelow-Sanford Carpet Mills announced today that wage increases of 5 per cent, affecting more than 7,000 employes, and price advances of 5 to 7 per cent would go into effect Monday at its local and Thompsonville (Conn.) plants. The wage announcement did not specify if previous cuts were restored.

Pontiac, Ill., July 12 (A.P.).—J. E. Legg, president of the Pontiac Shoe Manufacturing Co., announced today a 10 per cent wage increase affecting 435 employes July 20. The company did not state if the increase absorbed previous cuts during the depression.

New York, July 12 (A.P.).—Cotton consumption by American mills in June was 690,000 bales, the New York Cotton Exchange Service estimated today. This compares with Census Bureau figures of 621,000 in May and 323,000 in June last year.

Dollars Yield To Pounds on Foreign Marts

New York, July 12 (A.P.).—Foreign exchanges rallied against the American dollar today, although the recovery was not altogether bouyant.

The British pound sterling got back about 5 cents of its losses of yesterday at $4.70 for cables. Dutch guilders advanced .58 of a cent, to 57¼ cents; French francs gained 1-20 of a cent at 5.55 cents and Swiss francs and Belgium belgas were up around 1-5 of a cent each. Canadian dollars advanced ⅜ of a cent, to 95.12½ cents and Japanese yen and Shanghai dollars were firmer.

Leading European currencies exhibited strength in early trading, then reacted moderately before again turning upward. Bankers here reported the market was still extremely thin and that speculative operations abroad furnished the principal activity.

London, July 12 (A.P.).—Offerings from a number of sources sent the American dollar to an official close of $4.70¾ on the London market today after earlier covering operations and trade demand resulted in an appreciation to $4.46½. The official closing figure represented a gain of 2¾ cents on the day.

Buying orders after the official close, however, pushed the rate back to $4.68½.

An early gain in gold currencies also was lost and they closed a bit below yesterday's last prices. The French franc closed at 85.03 to the pound, the Dutch guilder at 8.24 and the German mark at 13.07½.

The opening rate of the dollar was $4.65½.

Wheat Repeats Advance Under Rye's Guidance

Latter Grain Continues to Lead Market; Corn Slightly Down.

Chicago, July 12 (A.P.).—Rye jumped 5¼ cents a bushel today and, with wheat, corn and barley, far surpassed all recent high-price records. The principal stimulating factor, aside from indications of a "corner" in rye, was an authoritative estimate that the Canadian 1933 wheat crop outlook rivaled the acute crop shortage in the United States and promised to be 50,000,000 bushels less than was unofficially forecast on July 1.

All grains closed nervous, rye 3 to 3½ cents above yesterday's finish; wheat, 1 to 1⅞ up; corn, unchanged to ¾ down; oats, ¼ to ⅝ off and provisions unchanged to 30 cents decline.

For the first time rye sold higher in some cases than did wheat. As an example, rye at today's top brought $1.07¼ a bushel, whereas the highest price reached for July wheat contracts was $1.06¾. Usually the rye pit holds hardly a dozen brokers. Today the rye crowd overflowed to a circle much larger out into surrounding spaces. Every trader in rye had handfuls of orders, and the tension apparent on every side did much to encourage belief that the limited supply of rye in the United States had been virtually concentrated in a few strong interests.

Fluctuations in Rye.

So violent were the fluctuations in rye values that one upshoot from the day's bottom level amounted to nearly 8 cents a bushel, much of it within a few minutes. Setbacks followed confirmation of extensive imports of rye from Canada.

Traders in wheat took considerable notice of assertions that any rains from now on in the United States will be too late to be of much benefit. In addition, there were reports of renewed heat in some sections, threatening further curtailment of crops.

Corn and oats averaged lower owing to reports of rains in Nebraska and Iowa. Besides, rural sources were heavy sellers of corn to arrive here.

Italy Plans Issuing Five Billion Loan

Rome, July 12 (A.P.).—Financial circles said today the Italian government will issue a 4,000,000,000 to 5,000,000,000 lire loan in September or October. It will include an offer to exchange the new bonds for the Morgan $100,000,000-loan dollar bonds at par instead of the depreciated dollar rate. Morgan bonds consequently jumped from $85 to $91 on the market here.

Holders of the Morgan bonds, which are now worth 1,210 lire for a hundred dollar bond, at the present rate of 13.30 lire for the dollar, would receive bonds worth 1,900 lire.

However, the new bonds will bear 4 or 4½ per cent interest whereas the Morgan obligations carry 7 per cent. This will reduce the government's interest charges.

The new loan will be used partly to retire 9-year Treasury bonds falling due in 1934.

Bar Silver Prices Rise Again to New High Peak

New York, July 12 (A.P.).—Bar silver advanced into new high ground for the year today with a rise of ⅜ cents to 38¼ cents an ounce. The futures market was firm and fairly active, extreme gains ranging to about half a cent an ounce.

Recent firmness of the metal, after a period of dullness, has been associated with reports that the Pittman committee at the London conference was making progress with plans for controlling silver's world market.

I. C. C. Considers Fight On Pulp Rates Boost

Boston, July 12 (A.P.).—The Interstate Commerce Commission today took under consideration Boston's protest against a proposed increase in wood pulp freight rates from this port to the Midwest. For two days, more than a score of railroad officials appeared before the commission examiner and offered testimony for or against the proposed rates.

The rates will remain suspended until December 5. No decision is expected for a month. Those in charge of Boston's case said if necessary the fight might be carried to the Supreme Court.

$5,310,000 Gold Cargo From U. S. Now in Paris

Paris, July 12 (A.P.).—One hundred seven kegs of gold, valued at $5,310,000, sent by the New York Federal Reserve Bank to the Bank of France, arrived on the Aquitania today.

Continental Motors Get Relisting on Exchange

New York, July 12 (A.P.).—The New York Stock Exchange announced today that the shares of the Continental Motors Corporation, suspended from the list a few weeks ago, will be readmitted to trading next Friday. The exchange halted dealings in the stock pending an investigation of the company's methods of distributing treasury stock.

The exchange said that "in certain particulars" a circular used in connection with the sale of a part of the company's authorized but not issued stock was considered objectionable, but that the management had agreed to eliminate the objectionable feature in the offering circular.

Arkansas Nears Cotton Cut Quota

Little Rock, Ark., July 12 (A.P.). With the cotton abandonment campaign scheduled to end tonight at midnight, T. Roy Reid, assistant director of the State Extension Service, said today that reports at the close of business last night showed Arkansas was "better than two-thirds of the way to securing its State quota" of 1,002,000.

Although the exact figures were not disclosed, it was reported that acreage actually signed up approximated 700,000 acres. Mr. Reid said that in many counties today, business men were in the field helping county committees obtain signatures for acreage reduction.

U. S. Cotton Mill Activity Sets Highest Record of All Time

New York, July 12 (A.P.).—The New York Cotton Exchange Service reported today that domestic cotton mill activity during June was the highest on record. Mills last month ran at 125 per cent of the average rate of operations from 1922 to 1927, inclusive, as compared with 109 per cent in May. In June, 1932, the rate stood at 58 per cent; in the corresponding month of 1931 it was 83 per cent, and in June, 1930, the rate was 77 per cent.

The previous high record for cotton mill activity was 120 per cent, registered in February, 1929, and in March and June, 1927. Since March of this year, it was reported, cotton mills have stepped up operations by 45 per cent, although normally there is a decline of approximately 11 per cent during this period.

Tobacco Growers Plan Cooperation

Springfield, Tenn., July 12 (A.P.). Members of the Eastern Dark Fired Tobacco Growers Association met here today in annual session. The board of directors was scheduled to meet later in the day. A. L. Dorsey, general counsel for the association, forecast that the members would adopt a resolution authorizing the board to contract with the United States Department of Agriculture for handling rentals and benefits for the membership under the agricultural adjustment act.

Railways and Barges Agree on Rates Plan

Chicago, July 12 (A.P.).—Two railways and a barge line have reached a consultive agreement to eliminate "surprise" cuts in freight rates. The agreement was announced today by L. A. Downs, president of the Illinois Central. That line, the Missouri Pacific, the Inland Waterways Corporation and the Mississippi River Barge Line Corporation will hereafter "consult each other before making any revision in freight rates," he said.

"This definitely eliminates 'overnight' rate cutting," Downs said, "and greatly improves the position of the railroads against unregulated water competition."

Cotton Textile Brightened by Recovery Plan

Industry Expects Increase in Activity, Absorbing Idle Workers.

Boston, July 12 (A.P.).—Absorption of idle cotton textile workers in New England and the recall to the industry of many skilled workers were results anticipated by manufacturers and labor leaders today as they awaited operation of the cotton textile code of the national recovery act.

Return of some Massachusetts cities to leadership in cotton textile production also was predicted.

Next Monday morning 120,000 cotton textile workers in New England will go to work under radically different conditions. Their hours of labor a week will be reduced to 40 from 56 in Vermont, 55 in Connecticut, 54 in New Hampshire, Maine and Rhode Island, and 48 in Massachusetts. Their minimum weekly wage will be $13. Children under 16 years of age may not be employed.

Cotton Textile Centers.

Cotton textile centers in New England include Fall River, New Bedford, Manchester, N. H.; Providence, R. I.; Biddeford, Me.; Fitchburg, Methuen, Springfield, Lowell and Burlington, Vt.

Revival of the industry has given work to thousands throughout New England and in some places, as New Bedford and parts of Rhode Island, a shortage of skilled help is reported. In New Bedford, which employes approximately 20,000 cotton textile workers, there is a scarcity of skilled box loom weavers, spinners and twisters. Many mills there are running day and night shifts and some planned to continue on that basis with the new 40-hour law.

There existed in New Bedford doubt as to whether there is enough skilled help to run all fine goods mills on two shifts. Former New Bedford workers are expected to return there.

Shortage of Labor.

Edward F. Walker, secretary of the Rhode Island Textile Association, reports a shortage of skilled labor in that State and Francis J. Gorman, first vice president of the United Textile Workers of America, said that eventually the operating conditions under the general textile code would "absorb all surplus textile labor in Rhode Island."

Mr. Gorman said his organization "hoped" to restore gradually the 50 per cent wage cut effected in Rhode Island cotton mills since 1929.

The revival of business in New Bedford, while it has not brought the city back to its normal industrial status, has reduced welfare costs measureably. welfare cases now approximate 1,600 as compared with 2,867 a year ago. In Fall River, welfare cases dropped from 4,410 in August, 1932, to 2,200 in July of this year, reflecting the increase in employment. Welfare cases in Lawrence, a woolen textile center enjoying increased employment conditions, dropped from a high mark of 1,474 in April to 575 last week.

Alabama Cotton Curbing Reaches 718,656 Acres

Auburn, Ala., July 12 (A.P.).—With the campaign deadline set for midnight, official returns at headquarters here today showed 718,656 acres of cotton land under contract to be retired in Alabama's drive to remove 988,000 acres from production and stabilize prices. The final result will be announced tomorrow. Dr. L. N. Duncan, campaign director, said he was confident the total figure would exceed the State's quota.

"Our total figure today is much smaller than the actual number of acres under contract," he said, "for we have received complete reports through yesterday from only 14 counties. Ten counties have not reported since Friday, 30 since Saturday and 13 since Monday."

12-Cent Cotton Reappears on Curbing News

The upsurge marked the return of 12-cent cotton for the first time since March, 1931. October deliveries closed at 11.70. The general market closed strong at net advances of 83 to 89 points.

Initial prices were off 6 to 13 points on rather disappointing Liverpool cables. Some Southern selling was also reported, but offerings were absorbed by further trade buying and covering.

Dry Weather Reports.

Reports of continued dry, hot weather in the Southwest also encouraged buying and the market worked quite steadily upward with the demand becoming active and excited in the late trading. December advanced from 10.87, the early low price, to 11.92, while May sold up to 12.25. Closing prices were at approximately the best of the day on most of the active months.

Washington reports quoting Secretary of Agriculture Wallace as believing that the campaign to destroy some 10,000,000 acres of cotton had been successful, were considered the chief factor on the late advance.

Exports today 4,073, making 8,905,520 so far this season. Port receipts 11,063. U. S. port stocks 3,314,312.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was firm today on renewed covering and speculative buying, promoted by the sharp advance in cotton, higher hogs, firmness of grains and the strength of crude oil.

Final prices were 12 to 17 points net higher, with sales of 123 contracts. The June consumption report, placing the disappearance at 280,274 barrels, was a little disappointing, but was offset by the decrease in the visible supply to 2,211,000 barrels. Bleachable spot and July closed 6.70; September, 6.85; December, 7.09; January, 7.13.

By Nelson B. Bell.

Ethel Barrymore, deemed by many the "First Lady" of the American theater, will make her first Washington appearance as a star of picture house vaudeville at the Earle Theater at an early date, according to announcement made late yesterday from the executive offices of the Warner Brothers in the Earle Theater Building.

Her vehicle will be Sir James M. Barrie's one-act playlet, "The Twelve Pound Look," in which she was seen here many years ago in the National Theater, where she presented this brief drama of domestic infelicity as a curtain raiser to one of her more pretentious plays.

While this engagement has been rumored for several days past, the booking was not definitely confirmed until yesterday afternoon. No date as yet has been set for Miss Barrymore's appearance on Thirteenth street.

It is the present plan of the Warner management to make Miss Barrymore's vaudeville debut in the National Capital doubly notable by securing a prerelease screen feature to serve as a fitting companion piece to her appearance in person on the stage.

What this picture will be, or when it will be possible to secure it, is not known at this time. It is upon the consummation of such a screen booking that the definite date for Miss Barrymore's Washington engagement at the moment largely depends.

With regard to "The Twelve Pound Look," that has always been a cryptic title in the view of a large number of people. Once the little playlet has been seen it becomes, of course, vividly clear; until then, it means practically nothing to the casual amusement seeker.

Briefly, Barrie arbitrarily sets 12 pounds in British currency—approximately $60 at the time the piece was written—as the purchase price of a typewriter. An unhappily married young wife discovers that a typing machine has brought complete independence to a contented and self-reliant young stenographer. The idea seems to point the way to a solution of her own difficulty.

Would "The Twelve Pound Look" mean anything to you in such circumstances?

Almost simultaneously with the announcement of the Barrymore engagement, John J. Payette, general manager of Warner Brothers theaters in the Washington territory, made public a list of six noteworthy film productions to be presented in the Earle and Metropolitan theaters during the next six weeks.

These productions all are completed and ready for release and, in part, were personally viewed by Mr. Payette as special home-office screening in New York, from which he has just returned. Under the industry's former rules of practice these pictures almost without exception would have been held on the shelf for fall presentation well after the evanescence of what is still disturbingly referred to as the "summer slump." It is significant of the new point of view that they are being rushed to the key city screens at the season of the year when they are most needed.

Several of the pictures in question are already known by reputation to the public as a result of favorable reports of their excellence emanating from the studios during the period of production.

The list includes "Captured," starring Leslie Howard; "Mary Stevens, M. D.," with Kay Francis in the title role; "Voltaire," starring George Arliss; "Good-Bye Again," with Joan Blondell and Warren William; Somerset Maugham's "The Narrow Corner," with Douglas Fairbanks, jr., Patricia Ellis, Ralph Bellamy and Dudley Digges heading the cast, and "She Had to Say Yes," a breezy comedy, featuring Loretta Young, Lyle Talbot, Regis Toomey and Winnie Lightner, the last named long absent from the pictured scene.

In contemplation of these forthcoming Warner releases, it is reassuring to know that it was "Captured" that so impressed the Warner production chiefs with Leslie Howard's admirable endowments as to prompt them to sign him immediately to a long-term contract. It is the present intention of the producers to present this picture in New York as a road-show attraction at the $2 scale of prices.

"Voltaire" is worthy of particular attention because it is the last picture made by George Arliss under his Warner Brothers contract and also the last production directed by the late John Adolfi prior to his tragic death in the north woods while on a "between pictures" vacation outing. Mr. Arliss' future productions will be made for Twentieth Century and released through United Artists.

"Good-Bye Again," naturally, is the screen version of the amusing stage hit presented locally this spring by the National Theater Players while the original Osgood Perkins company was still packing them in on Broadway.

Since it was tentatively announced in this space yesterday as a possibility, the playing dates of the Great Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus have been made definite. Mr. Melvin D. Hildreth, who knows all there is to know about circuses, where they play and when, informs me that the Hagenbeck-Wallace show will be presented in Washingtno on Wednesday and Thursday, August 2 and 3.

Dates on the Hunt Circus, considerably enlarged and improved since its extended season in and about the Capital a year ago, will be made known at a later date.

Of more immediate concern, no doubt, is the line of march across the downtown, first-run screens, scheduled to begin tomorrow, with the Columbia an added Monday starter, to wit: Palace, Kay Francis, Walter Huston and Nils Asther in "Storm at Daybreak;" RKO-Keith's, Ann Harding and William Powell in "Double Harness;" Earle, James Cagney in "Mayor of Hell," and Joe Penner headlining the vaudeville bill; Loew's Fox, Preston Foster and Zita Johann in "The Man Who Dared," and Vittorio Podrecca's "The Piccoli," greatest of all puppet shows, on the stage; Metropolitan, Mae West in a downtown return engagement of "She Done Him Wrong;" Columbia, Eddie Cantor in a revival of "Whoopee," all in Technicolor.

Scattered about somewhere among these major features—probably at the Palace and RKO-Keith's—will be two of the most elegant examples of animated cartooning ever to find their way out of an ink bottle.

One is "Mickey's Gala Premiere," travestying a typical Hollywood "permeer," and caricaturing practically the complete stellar roster of the film colony; the other, "In the Park," a less pretentious bit of limning, but just about as funny in its own distinctive way.

You would have to travel far and search long to find two cleverer short-reels.

And speaking of Podrecca's "The Piccoli," it is a pleasure to report that all of the program gems that were so enthused over by last spring's audiences at the National—at $3 per enthuse—have been retained in the program to be presented next week at Loew's Fox.

This assurance is given by Advance Representative and Company Manager Maurice Winters, representing Signor Podrecca, a brief caller at this outpost of pandemonium yesterday afternoon.

The typed program for the Fox engagement handed me by Mr. Winters includes the condensed version of Sidney Jone's operetta of "The Geisha," the "Divertissement de Ballet," "In the Manner of Josephine Baker," "Bil Bal Bul," the little arcobat; "The Bull Fight," a complete spectacle in two scenes; "Clowns," "In the Manner of Mistinguett," "The Learned Donkey," and that sublime satire, "The Concert Party."

Miss Harding's recently negotiated contract for four pictures in one year for Radio, was abrogated on July 8, by the drawing of a new agreement which provides for a two-year term of service and six pictures, to be made at the rate of three a year.

This announcement is from the office of Merian C. Cooper, executive producer, who already has done much to restore Miss Harding to her former high estate as a star of the first flight. The new contract becomes operative immediately upon the completion of her next picture.

On Saturday night the Glen Echo Volunteer Fire Department will hold a hookup tournament in the parking area adjoining the resort. Fire companies from Bethesda, Rockville, Gaithersburg, Sandy Spring, Cabin John and nearby points in Virginia are expected to enter the competition. The Glen Echo Fire Company is presenting a massive silver cup to the winner of the tournament. Battalion Chief Stanton of Engine Company No. 8, will be in attendance.

On Monday, July 17, a swimming meet of national proportions, sanctioned by the A. A. U. of the United States and the D. C. Association, will be held in the crystal pool.

The next day, Tuesday, July 18, will be "Boy Scout Glen Echo Day," when it is expected some 2,000 members of the organization will avail themselves of the park's diversified amusements, many to be thrown open by the management and concessionaires free of charge.

The slightly more distant bayside amusement place, Seaside Park, at Chesapeake Beach, Md., is enjoying a sudden spurt in attendance following the recent reduction of excursion fares put into effect by the Chesapeake Beach Railway. The new rates of 25 cents, round trip, for adults, and 10 cents for children, are scarcely more than city car fares, and make possible a pleasurable al fresco outing at negligible cost.

Having spent an entire delightful evening on the fifth floor trying to stare the darn thing out of countenance—with completely indifferent success—I am now in a position to state that the sand blast, rejuvenating the facade of The Post, is the best I have ever tasted!

Why any ostrich should ever voluntarily bury its head in that stuff, I shall never know!

"Pardon, Old Kid, Must Be the Heat!"

At least that seems a reasonable explanation for Mr. Jimmy Cagney to be making his shaggy young friend, since in his newest picture, opening tomorrow at the Earle Theater, he is to be seen as "The Mayor of Hell!" We wouldn't be certain that the pup is in it, but Madge Evans, Allen Jenkins, Sheila Terry, "Farina," Dorothy Peterson and scores more are, so what difference does it make?

A Drama Critic Pens Amusing Three-Act Play

"LITTLE WHITE MICE." A comedy in three acts, presented last night in Pierce Hall, Fifteenth and Harvard streets, with Maude Howell Smith, Olao Helms, Carolyn Irish, Rose Ellen Mattern, Fritz Firey, Howard L. Knight and others in cast. Supervised by Clifford Brooke. Reviewed by Dorothea Lewis.

Mr. Edward De Selding Melcher, a young man about aisle seats, proved last night that he has a right to be a critic and that he knows his way about behind the footlights as well as out in front.

His double debut last night as a playwright and actor was most auspicious and with the more than able assistance of the up-and-coming Pierce Hall Players, provided an evening of entertainment of the very first rank.

Facile writing, exceedingly clever and telling dialogue with very few dull spots and nice ideas, make all three acts interesting but, and this is the first and biggest of the only two quarrels we have with the play, the third act doesn't fit the first two.

Suddenly, at the very end of a splendid second act, Smith, an amazing young man who has been complicating the lives of Mr. Melcher's little white mice (strange people going round and round in circles trying to escape themselves while bleating, or more properly squealing, that they're seeking themselves) turns into Noel Coward's twin brother. And the white mice turn into guinea pigs performing for Mr. Coward's twin's playwrighting experimentation.

We'd rather have Smith come to almost any other end; we'd really prefer to keep him as mysterious and unknown as the stranger in "Pigeons and People."

The third act, on its own merits, is amusing, and we'd hate to lose that "But oh, God, mother at 9 o'clock" line and scene, but we'd rather have it in another play and keep our white mice, mice, and the rather excellent combination of fantasy and comedy that make the first two acts so interesting.

Our second quarrel is that the play's types are too flambuoyantly and determinedly, in writing, costuming and playing tempo, types. A little more subtlety would make them just human enough to have all their weaknesses and yet, possibly, to be capable of fooling themselves, or at least the others about themselves.

As for the acting end, Mr. Melcher valiantly carries his own play, performing most ingratiatingly and with a certain Robert Montgomerish flavor to his snippishness as Smith. A very nice, and nicely shaded, job, with just a little extra knee bending to show him not too old a hand at the acting chore.

William Rodon, as Ramon, is outstanding in a devastatingly amusing and almost cruelly pointed caricature of a second-rate opera singer. Other particularly good performances are turned in by Olga Helms, in Kiki-at-her-worst costumes, as April May; by Rose Allen Mattern, as a quiet, sweet and very pretty Tony; by Maud Howell Smith, in an extremely long and difficult and a bit too breathlessly directed role as Rose, and Fritz Firey as Jennifer Sims.

The Ten O'Clock Club trio played delightfully between acts. The audience was large and enthusiastic. The play will be repeated tonight.

Bars Hold

Zoo Chimpanzee, Tangled in Blanket, Fails to Free Self.

Stone walls may not a prison make, nor iron bars a cage, but they're awfully confining, Soko, the Zoo chimpanzee, has learned.

Soko is a sort of chattering advertisement for the coolness of Rock Creek Park because he always sleeps under a blanket, though the rest of Washington may be sweltering. That's what got him into trouble yesterday morning.

Along about getting-up time, Soko discovered he was unable to unravel from his covering. Try as he might, he couldn't budge his feet. They were securely tangled.

And then he tried to get out of his cage, but it wouldn't work. He banged against the bars and the walls with equally as much disappointment.

Then he did what a lot of people would have done—he yelled for help. It came, along with the dawn, in the form of Headkeeper W. H. Blackburn, who quickly released the animal.

Nats Score 3 Runs in 8th to Defeat Chisox in Mound Duel, 4 to 1

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

THE customers at Griffith Stadium who used to chant that old grand stand ditty, "Take him out!" haven't been able to exercise their vocal chords this season with that doleful tune which reached the heights of its popularity during the regime of Walter Johnson, when Washington pitchers were being left to suffer in the box long after they had outlived their usefulness.

Joe Cronin doesn't trifle with his pitchers. They get the hook at the first sign of futility. No Washington manager has yanked a faltering pitcher with the speed of Cronin. The case of Earl Whitehill yesterday was typical.

The White Sox had made only five hits off Whitehill and he still had a three-run lead with one out and two on in the ninth. He did not appear in particular distress, but Cronin had seen enough. He bade Whitehill begone and summoned Bill McAfee.

Play Psychology.

But Cronin isn't playing simply the percentages. He's old kid psychology himself. Half the time, he pulls his pitchers, it is for no other reason than to preserve their morale. He'll tell you so himself.

"I don't like to see my pitchers take a bad beating out there," says Cronin. "There isn't any need of it. There's always plenty others to help out. A hard pounding only ruins a pitcher's spirit and destroys his confidence in himself.

"Pitchers more than any other players are easily discouraged. Theres' no sense in leaving a man in there when he's getting pounded or pitching a losing game. It takes some of 'em a long time to recover from a hammering, and as long as I've got eight pitchers on the staff, none of my pitchers is going to be subjected to needless pounding."

Cronin Getting Fat on Job.

This Cronin fellow is worrying so much about his managerial responsibilities that he's actually getting fat on the job. Joe hasn't lost a pound since the season started and it's lucky for his weight chart that he's in there playing every day.

When Clark Griffith confounded the baseball world by appointing his 26-year-old shortstop manager of the Nats it was the unanimous opinion of New York critics that the Washington club owner was merely ruining a great shortstop in a grand gesture. The worries and responsibility would be too much for him.

Somebody was wrong. Apparently is wasn't Griffith. Cronin's worries did affect his batting average all right—shot it 40 points upward until he is now pressing for the league batting leadership. He's only first in fielding among the league shortstops. And his management of the club has been so poor the Nats are in front by two full games. That's tough on Cronin. He was a great shortstop.

Runs, Hits and Errors.

Al Simmons still refuses to run 'em out . . . he lined to Goslin in the third inning and was all of 4 feet from the plate when the Goose made the catch . . . his last season with the A's, Simmons used to call on his valet to run out ground balls . . . which is one reason Mack traded him . . . the Sox sent Billy Sullivan home . . . never a brilliant ball player, Sullivan succeeded in spiking himself on the hand in a slide into first base and rendered himself useless for the rest of the trip . . . Evar Swanson had hit in sixteen straight games until he met up with Whitehill . . . and Simmons had hit in eight. . . . Buddy Myer is meeting the ball again . . . with Boken on the bench. Myer lacks no incentive. Jimmy Dykes wears the biggest infielders' glove in the league . . . the kid in the upper right-field stands brought his glove with him again, but he didn't have a fielding chance . . . Uncle Sam profits 12½ cents on every ball knocked into the stands . . . from the 10 per cent Federal tax on new baseballs that sell at $1.25 when bought in wholesale lots.

Yankees Win Their Fifth Straight

Attack on Wells Led by Chapman, With 4 Hits, and Lazzeri.

NEW YORK, July 12 (A.P.).—With Johnny Allen outpointing Ed Wells in a pitching duel, the New York Yankees today defeated the St. Louis Browns, 4 to 2, for their fifth successive victory.

Allen, yielding seven scattered hits and striking out ten, lost a shut out only because of his wildness in the last two innings. The Yanks got to Wells for 10 safe blows, but he kept them well scattered except in the second, seventh and eighth innings, when the world champions bunched six of their hits for all of their runs.

Pirates Nose Out Braves in 10th, 9-8

Win After Meine Blows up in Ninth and Boston Scores Eight Runs.

Pittsburgh, July 12 (A.P.).—Boston's Braves, scoreless for eight innings, suddenly came to life in the ninth frame of today's game with an eight-run rally that tied the score, but the Pirates bounced back with a tally in the tenth to win, 9 to 8.

Heine Meine held the Braves to two hits in eight innings, but collapsed in the ninth and gave up seven hits during a Boston uprising that also drove Chagnon from the box.

Pittsburgh triumphed in the tenth, Vaughan's second triple of the game sending Traynor home with the winning run. Vaughan also connected for a double and a single, driving in five runs and scoring one himself. Pinch Hitter Mowry batted twice in the Braves' ninth.

Technical K. O. Awarded to Petrolle

By Edward J. Neil.

POLO GROUNDS, New York, July 12 (A.P.).—Billy Petrolle, the tough old fellow from Duluth, won as wild and wooly a battle as he has ever been in tonight, scoring a technical knockout over Bep Van Klaveren, the belting Dutchman, in four rounds, before a turbulently partisan crowd of 10,000.

The fight was stopped by Referee Billy Cavanaugh on the orders of Dr. Joseph Sheridan, New York State Athletic Commission physician, as the Dutch welterweight's seconds sought frantically to stop a deep gash in their warrior's right eyelid between the fourth and fifth rounds.

In the uproar that followed a policeman had to jump into the ring to get the weeping Van Klaveren out as he stormed about protesting, alternately chasing the referee and daring Petrolle to get up off his stool and fight, while the crowd roared and took violent sides.

Fans Begin to Battle.

The ring was cleared and order finally restored, but not before several impromptu scuffles developed at the ringside and Tim Mara, the promoter, pressed his personal protest on Gen. John J. Phelan, chairman of the commission.

From the ringside it apeared that the cut had been closed and there was no sign of bleeding as Van Klaveren, getting his first "big league" opportunity and doing very well indeed with it, wept and shouted and pleaded to be allowed to continue. His taunts at Petrolle did not improve the situation when Willie tossed aside his ancient Navajo blanket and accepted the challenge, but the official decision stood on all sides.

It was a ferocious battle while it lasted, but it was apparent from the start that Van Klaveren, former

British and Australians Open Davis Cup Zone Finals Today

LONDON, July 12 (A.P.).—Australia's drive back toward Davis Cup tennis heights opens tomorrow as Jack Crawford, new singles king from "down under" faces Henry W. (Bunny) Austin, and Young Vivian McGrath tackles Fred Perry in the European zone final with Great Britain.

The play opens at Eastbourne with these two singles, continues Friday with a doubles match, and ends Saturday with another pair of singles contests pitting Crawford against Perry and McGrath against Austin. Three or more match victories determine the team that will play the United States in the interzone final next week-end for the right to challenge France for the cup.

Prospects Are Bright.

Not since the heyday of Norman Brookes and A. F. Wilding some 20 years ago, and Gerald Patterson and John Anderson, heroes of a later day, has an Australian team entered the closing rounds of the Davis Cup play with such bright prospects.

Crawford, the 25-year-old stylist who battered down Ellsworth Vines, United States champion, in five sets last week to win the Wimbledon crown, seems certain of two singles victories, but the way to the third and deciding victory may be long and hard. While England in the draw today named Perry and the veteran George Patrick Hughes as its doubles team, the Australians preferred to wait the outcome of the first two matches before choosing a pair.

If the matches are even at the end of the first day, it was considered likely that Crawford and McGrath would attempt to carry a three-day burden by teaming for the doubles.

Dempsey May Wed Actress, He Admits

Kansas City, July 12 (A.P.).—Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, said here today "there might be some truth in a report he will marry Hannah Williams, New York actress, but "I don't think I'll get married right away."

Dempsey said Miss Williams, the former wife of Roger Wolfe Kahn, son of the banker, Otto Kahn, left Kansas City last night by train for Los Angeles to appear in a motion picture.

The former champion said he intended to meet Miss Williams when he and his fighter, Max Baer, arrive in Hollywood later in the month.

Losing Streak of Giants Is Ended

Cards Bow as Schumacher Turns in Sixth Shut-out of Year, 3-0.

ST. LOUIS, July 12 (A.P.).—Hal Schumacher scored his sixth shut-out of the season today as he pitched the New York Giants to a 3-to-0 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals—a victory that snapped the league leaders' seven-game losing streak, dropped the Cardinals into third place, and gave the Giants a three-game lead over the Cubs, who also won.

In winning his tenth game of the year and the fourteenth shut-out scored by the Giant pitchers, Schumacher held the Cardinals to six hits, doling them out one to an inning except in the eighth. He hurled so effectively that only two Cardinals advanced as far as second base.

No Errors Charged Giants.

The young St. Lawrence University graduate also received perfect support from his mates—the first time in nine games played so far on the road that the Giants have made no errors. Little Bernie James replaced the veteran Travis Jackson at shortstop and in addition to bolstering the defense, kicked in with a single, scored a run and stole one base.

Bill Hallahan, the Cards' star southpaw, was the losing pitcher, but Dazzy Vance hurled the ninth after Roger Hornsby had batted for Hallahan in the eighth. The Giants Whitehill Gives But Five Hits; Is Relieved in 9th by McAfee.

By Shirley L. Povich
(Sports Editor of The Post).

THE Sox had a run in them yesterday, but the Nats had four, and recoiled from two straight defeats with a 4-1 victory over the visiting Hosemen, which was a nice game to win, in view of the developments up in the Bronx, where the Yankees continued to fatten themselves on the Browns.

The Sox were comparatively sock-less yesterday under the powerful sedative administered by Earl Whitehill, who suffered the Chicago club only five meager hits until he did a fade-out in the ninth, when Bill McAfee applied the finishing touches quite painlessly with the tying run in the batters' box.

Retain Two-Game Lead.

So the Nats have a new winning streak of one straight and their two-game lead in the American League pennant scramble is safe from further inroads until late this afternoon.

But they didn't beat Bull Durham, who did a masterly job himself out there in the box for the White Sox, until the Chicago infield, namely Luke Appling, exposed Durham's chin in the eighth inning with a wild throw on a ground ball and invited the Nats to step in with the haymakers, which took the form of a single by Buddy Myer and another by Goose Goslin.

Score Tied in Fourth.

Durham was locked in a pretty 1-1 duel with Whitehill in the eighth inning after the Sox had negotiated a run off the Washington southpaw to tie the score in the fourth, but Appling betrayed him with a wild heave to first on Bluege's easy hopper that put the potential winning run on first with none out.

The conventional sacrifice bunt was provided by Luke Sewell and then Durham lapsed to the extent of walking Whitehill.

That put the issue squarely up to Buddy Myer, who picked on a cripple with the count at 3 and 1 and rifled a single to center that brought Bluege prancing home with the run that eventually won the ball game.

Bases Are Filled.

But the Nats weren't through. Heinie Manush beat out a hit that Jackie Hayes was lucky to knock down over second base and the bases were filled. The inning totaled three runs for the Nats when Goslin dumped a hump-back single

Crowder to Face White Sox Today; Nats Buy Pitcher

By Frank H. Young.

"GENERAL" AL CROWDER, pounded out of the box by the Chicago White Sox before three rounds had ended Tuesday, will take another fling at them this afternoon. Manager Joe Cronin admits that, perhaps, he used Crowder a little too soon after his previous start when he gave him the Tuesday assignment, but figures he will be at his best today.

"The little work he did Tuesday amounted to just about as much work as would have been a regular warm-up," said Joe last night, "and Crowder ought to turn in one of his good games tomorrow."

President Clark Griffith has decided to give his Nat mound staff as much help as possible, and so yesterday added another pitcher to the roster, bringing it up to the 23-limit. The newest Nat, due to report today, is John Campbell, a 6-foot right-hander, who has been toiling with the Albany Internationals.

Although Campbell's record this season is no better than 50-50, he having won and lost six games the Nats bought the youngster. His forte is good speed and an exceptional curve. He will be kept until a better prospect comes along, the Nat owner announces.

There was some eyebrow-lifting among the fans when Buddy Myer and Goose Goslin were benched in the Tuesday fracas because Southpaw Walter Miller was doing the Chisox flinging. This does not mean, however, this this pair will remain inactive against all southpaws.

"I was simply playing what I thought was the percentage," Cro-

Falling Back, Helianthus Runs 2d

Ayston, Cruz up, Has Easy Time Winning at Empire City.

ARLINGTON PARK, Ill., July 12 (A.P.).—Doing most of his running in the stretch, Abraham Barthelstein's Polydorus won the Garfield Purse at Arlington Park today, turning in a 1:36 4-5 performance for the mile.

The Brookmeade Stable's Helianthus set the pace into the stretch, but surrendered the lead to Polydorus, which came on to win by three lengths. Big Brand finished third, with S. W. Labrot's Ted Avon, the well-basked favorite, a struggling fourth. Polydorus paid $6.18 to win in the $2 mutuels.

Broad Meadows Wins.

Latonia, July 12 (A.P.).—Selling platers and maidens dominated today's racing program, but interesting sport was provided the big off-day crowd. In the absence of a stakes or handicap, the Buena Vista Purse, a claiming affair for sprinters, served as the feature and resulted in a popular victory for the silks of Col. E. R. Bradley as Broad Meadows romped home in advance of a field of eight.

The race, in a measure, resembled a parade inasmuch as there was no change in the relative positions of the first three horses at any stage of the 6-furlong spin. Alertly handled by the veteran Jimmy Smith and carrying top weight, Broad Meadows broke on top and led throughout to win by a half length.

Racing Commissioner S. S. Combs' Plumage, an outsider, always was in closest pursuit and held that position to the wire, despite the determined challenge of J. C. Ellis' Ellice, which saved the show.

Ayston Romps Home.

Empire City Race Track, New York, July 12 (A.P.).—After three straight favorites had bitten the dust, the B. B. Stable's 9-to-10 shot Ayston brought relief to the talent when he accounted for the Crestwood Purse by five lengths here this afternoon. Jack Richardson's Wedding Ring showed improvement to garner the place award by a length and a half from Modern Ace. Ayston, in scoring his second triumph in a row, ran the abbreviated six furlongs in 1:10 2-5.

Boxing in District Favored by Lyon

"Senator" William Lyon, administrative assistant to Postmaster General Farley, in answer to a direct question yesterday expressed himself as being in favor of legalized boxing in the District. Long a prominent figure in the boxing world, the former Colorado State senator no longer maintains the close contact he once enjoyed with affairs pugilistic, due to the stress of his activities as Mr. Farley's assistant.

"Speaking as an individual, I may say, and I see no reason why, with boxing bouts being held in Alexandria and other places adjacent to the District, there should not be legalized boxing in Washington.

"Our leading schools, colleges and clubs have for some time recognized the value of instruction in the manly art of self-defense as a builder of bodies and character. Some of our leading citizens are enthusiastic fans, and the sport has long ago passed the stage when pugilists and their followers were recruited from undesirable classes."

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

THE St. John River, at St. John, New Brunswick, Canada, exhibits a strange effect of the tide by flowing part of the time toward the sea and the rest of the time—when the tide comes in—it actually flows away from the sea into which it empties.

One of the most remarkable features of the tidal effect on the St. John River is the Reversing Falls at St. John. When the tide ebbs the river's current increases enough to form a waterfall—a fall toward the sea. The flood tide, however, backs up the stream and the opposite is true—the uprush of water actually reverses the waterfall and the stream forms a waterfall away from the sea.

Strange as it seems, the unerring eye of Ty Cobb, one of baseball's greatest hitters, was also a defective one. Cobb suffered from a slight astigmatic condition of the eyes—the result of an unequal curvature of the cornea. His vision was improved when he cocked his head a little to one side so that his eyes were not in the same horizontal plane. The slightly "off-keel" attitude of Cobb at bat is one remembered by many old-time baseball fans.

The silk on corn, which bears the pistils of the plant, grows on each cob with one strand for each kernel on the ear. The average ear of corn has 800 kernels.

Dear Al: Arlington Park, July 12.

Good old Mike saved the Bennings interests today. While the more famous Bill watched his choices do everything but win, Mike was down at the poolroom iffing and reversing his guesses at other tracks. In six chances, he only had one out of the money. His chief good thing was Amscray at a $19 mutuel. He had Wedding Ring, Ever Fair and Marcasite second at good prices. Cannon Law showed for him. For tomorrow, he's going to Little Wing, Petee B, Free Helen, General Lejeune, Silver Scepter and White Bud. And I'm going to bed.

BILL.

FIRST RACE—ALCORAH gets the rail position in this dash and has the necessary early speed to take full advantage. DAVOC is the one that must be beaten. PEEDEEQUE is always dangerous in a field of this sort.

SECOND RACE—HELIOS seems as well suited by this race as any of those named. I'll take LASALLE and the cheap THREAT for the other money positions.

THIRD RACE—I'm going to give KUMMEL another chance. Failed to get the best of the breaks. Light weight will help tomorrow. COG-AIR and DORIS JEAN will be ready if my hero makes any mistakes.

FOURTH RACE—FULL TILT has been whispered to me a possible surprise here. This is no Man O'War but a juvenile that has been working impressively. Worth taking a chance. PRINCE POMPEY to beat the WHITNEY ENTRY for the place.

FIFTH RACE—PRINCESS CAMELIA can run for the Bennings dough in this. We may get a fair mutuel. CLEAR seems to have the edge on the others. OLD BALDY for the show and this one goes on top if the mud comes up.

SEVENTH RACE—Here's the STONE MARTIN boys at work again. They've picked quite a tough spot for the veteran but I believe he can do it if the command is given. STREET SINGER and ONDOTT appear to be the chief troublemakers.

EIGHTH RACE—I'll take MAD CAREER, ADSUM and FINNIC in the finale. What's your guess?

Burl Matched With Sarron Monday

Good Bout Is Promised at Laurel; Brown, Tow Also Are Signed.

TWO of the greatest crowd-pleasers ever to show in this section, Petey Sarron and Eddie Burl, will be thrown together in the main event at Laurel Monday night.

Neither Sarron nor Burl has ever participated in a disappointing fight before Washington fight fans, and several of the bouts in which they have thrown leather against top caliber oppponents have been punching classics. The fans will long remember the Burl-Mack embroglio, which saw Burl returned the winner after eight of the most furious rounds ever enacted here. This bout, Burl's first here, served to establish him as a local favorite.

Has Lost Two, Won Two.

Since then he has lost to Benny Schwartz and Le Roy Dougan and has won from Dougan and Billy Landers. In both his losing fights Burl was far out of condition. His four-round technical knockout performance over Landers at Laurel two weeks ago testifies to the fact that he is now in perfect fighting condition.

Sarron, the sawed-off Birmingham bruiser, never has lost a fight here. He started a winning streak by knocking out Frankie De Angelo, following it up with a knockout over Benny Schwartz, decision over Miki Gelb and two draws with the former N. B. A. featherweight champ, Tommy Paul.

In the six-round semifinal Natie Brown will take his first step forward—or backward—in an attempted comeback against Bob Tow. The preliminaries will be announced later.

Vines, Allison, Lott and Van Ryn Are Named as U. S. Davis Cup Tennis Team

Singles Play Only for Allison

Vines Gets Other Singles Berth Against British-Anzac Victor.

By Wallace Carroll.

PARIS, July 12 (U.P.). — The United States Davis Cup Team which will meet the winner of the England-Australia tie for the right to challenge France for the classic trophy will be composed of Ellisworth Vines, Wilmer Allison, George Lott and Johnny Van Ryn, Bernon Prentice, of the United States cup committee, told the United Press today.

"Vines and Allison will handle the singles assignments and Lott and Van Ryn the doubles," Prentice said. "We did consider allowing Allison to play in the singles and then team with Lott in the doubles, but finally decided three straight days of play was too much for any man.

Team Practice Needed.

"Individually, Lott and Van Ryn are as fine doubles players as the game knows. All they need to knit into a smooth-working combination is work. We have arranged for them to get it, too, in a series of exhibition matches. On Friday they will play the French team of Martin Legeay and Robert Jornau and the South African combination of Virgil Kirby and Norman Farquharson. On Saturday George and Johnny will engage another French team, Andre Merlin and Marcel Bernard. The showing the boys make in these exhibitions will not affect our choice."

Prentice asked to be excused when asked his opinion on the outcome of the England-Australia European zone final which begins tomorrow.

"Both are very strong teams. In Austin and Perry England has two of the finest players in the world. And both are noted for their abiltiy to lift themselves on great occasions. In Crawford, Australia has a master shotmaker, and a player of great courage."

Prentice was asked which of the two teams he thought would give the United States the hard fight. Again, he had no choice.

He was asked how he thought Vines would fare with Crawford in their next meeting.

"They are such great players that the outcome would depend largely on which happened to be having his day. When Crawford defeated Vines at Wimbledon he was in magnificent condition, and all his shots were working perfectly. Maybe the next time Vines will have one of his super days, and then he'd be unbeatable."

Errors Aid Nats, Chisox Bow, 4-1

into left to score Whitehill and Myer, who almost ran up the pitcher's back rounding third base.

Whitehill's romp around the bases took its toll in the ninth and Cronin suspected as much when, with one out, Appling rattled a double off the right-field wall, and Dykes walked. He summoned Battling Bill McAfee from the bull pen and Pinch-Hitter Webb and Berry succumbed to the sure-handed play of Buddy Myer and Joe Cronin to seal the Nats' victory.

The combination of a double into left by Manush and a single between Dykes and Appling by Cronin had given the Nats a run in the first inning, which the Sox offset in the fourth after threatening a big inning.

Whitehill walked Hayes, who advanced to second on a passed ball and scored on Berry's single into left. Durham's bunt was thrown away by Bluege in an effort to force Berry at second and there were two on with none out, but Joe Cronin started a brisk double play on Swanson's hot smash and further damage was averted.

And it came to pass in the eighth that the Nats won the ball game, as aforesaid.

The Dutchman came into the ring with four small strips of plaster bolstering a wound in his right eyelid, suffered in training. Apparently word of the injury, not made public, influenced the wagering, for Petrolle entered the ring a 7 to 5 favorite.

Easy Way to Make a Living . . . If You Like It

Louis Johrden, Post Staff.

IT isn't necessary to be crazy to make a living as the Kern twins do—but it helps. These two favorite sons of Waynesboro, Va., classify their trick dives and falls from a 75-foot board as sport, but to the average person they would be slow—or probably not so slow—suicide. And the funny part of it is, they like it.

The Post photographer had no idea just how well they liked it, or he would never have brought up the matter. The boys are easy to start, but very, very hard to stop. They are used to working in the movies with Sammy Cohen and just can't seem to realize that every camera isn't loaded with a few hundred feet of film.

Their Opening Number.

As their opening number, they climbed to the uppermost rung of the extended diving tower at airport pool, a very flimsy affair at best, and came hurtling down in a made mixup, hitting the water upside-down. The cameraman snapped, set down his camera, lighted a cigarette and looked around for the boys. They hadn't come up. And didn't come up until, just as the photographer had about decided he should throw in a flock of life-preservers, they popped up at the other end of the pool.

"Yoo, hoo, here we are" they yodeled.

A life-guard explained that the boys have quite a reputation as underwater swimmers, having been called in numerous times to assist in locating bodies.

"Don't go away yet, we have a lot of good stuff left. Watch this one."

Elmer lay down on the regular high board, held his feet in the air and inserted them in Ernest's stomach. Elmer, being five minutes older than Ernest, always gets the easiest part of the job. Elmer shoved his feet forcibly in Ernest's stomach, Ernest grunted and they both fell off.

In and Out of Water.

They clambered out of the pool blowing streams of water at a recumbent bather. But in a trice they were back in the pool, stunting in and out of the water, working in tandem in every conceivable dive, and some that defy description.

The Kern boys have been swimming since they were 3. They learned to swim by being pushed in the water by five older brothers. They have been in South America, Central America, Australia, New Zealand and all over the United States with their trick dives, and they have a one-legged brother who is also a very good diver and swimmer.

The last seen of the Kern twins they were standing on their heads on the 75-foot board, getting ready for another dive for the fun of it.

Cubs Beat Dodgers And Take 2d Place

Are Victorious by 5 to 3 as Guy Bush Turns in 4th Straight Triumph.

Chicago, July 12 (A.P.).—Converting three Brooklyn errors into as many runs in the opening inning, the Chicago Cubs today defeated the Dodgers, 5 to 3, for their seventh consecutive victory and took second place in the National League standing. The triumph sent the Cubs a half game ahead of the Cards, who lost.

Gabby Hartnett led the Cubs' attack, driving in three runs with a pair of doubles. He also scored one run. Hack Wilson, with three singles, led the Brooklyn offensive.

Crowder, Gregory Mound Foes Today

nin explained last night. "When we beat Miller in Chicago, Dave Harris played right, so I figured I would use this same winning lineup. As to using Boken in Myer's place, the understudy hit well in New York against Russ Van Atta, a left-hander with stuff similar to Miller's, so I thought I would switch to him. As a rule, though, I'm not planning to make any changes in the team, irrespective of what type of pitching we face."

About 100 members of the Citizens' military training camp at Fort Myer were guests of the Nats yesterday, occupying some field boxes back of third.

A stiff breeze played havoc with outfield flies, causing the ball to do all kinds of tricks. In the first round Simmons came within an ace of missing Goslin's looper, finally grabbing it down by his shoe-tops after a halfway dive.

Whitehill jumped a mile high to grab Berry's bounder with his gloved hand in the third.

Durham probably was as surprised as was any one else in the stadium when he doubled in the third. His late swing resulted in a dinky pop-fly just back of third. Manush overran it, trying to scoop up the ball while tearing in, and it went as a double. It was the Sox's first hit of the game.

There seemed to be considerable discussion among the cash customers as to Durham's being credited with a sacrifice when he lay down a bunt in the hope of advancing Berry from first to second in the fifth. Bluege, fielding the ball, pegged poorly trying to force Berry midway; hence the play was recorded as a fielder's choice. That Berry advanced was due to the error and not to Durham's bunt.

Buddy Myer was the Nats' official inning-ender over a three-frame stretch, throwing out the last Chisox in the fifth, sixth and seventh.

Durham did not issue a pass until the eighth. Then he picked a bad spot in which to do so, walking Whitehill with one down and Bluege on second.

Sports Writers' Trap Title Is Captured by Hollander

DICK HOLLANDER, sports editor of the News, who used to hunt big game down in South America, won the District sports writers trapshooting championship yesterday in the tournament sponsored by the Washington Gun Club at its traps near Benning.

Lewis F. Atchison, of The Post, took third prize. Kirk Miller, Times sports editor, was awarded the low trophy by cracking two. Bob Considine, of The Herald, managed to crack five. In the informal shoot among the members, Frank Huseman with 73 out of 75 and R. D. Morgan, with 34 out of 35, led the way.

66 Is Recorded by Shorey at Kenwood

East Potomac Pro Takes Only 24 Putts and Is Five Below Par.

A PAR-SMASHING 66, 24 putts, 12 of the 1-putt variety, 5 birdies and 13 pars—and there you have the latest feat of Mel Shorey, East Potomac golf professional.

Playing in an informal sweepstakes yesterday at Kenwood, Shorey developed into a demon scoring machine as he sizzled his way over the first nine in 32 shots, and blazed home in 34, thereby finishing 5 below par for the 18-hole jaunt.

Putting Spectacular.

Never over par on any hole, Shorey nailed putts from all angles, sinking 'em from 30 and 40 feet. On the sixth hole Shorey saved himself a putt by chipping in from off green for a birdie deuce. Beautiful recovery shots also featured his performance. Time and again he appeared to be headed for trouble, but coolly shot out of the dangerous spots with his irons to nab his pars and birdies.

Frank Cunningham, of Burning Tree, and Houghton tied for second money with 70 each, while Walter Cunningham of Burning Tree, carded a 71; Cliff Spencer, Beaver Dam, 77, and Al Tredor, Manor, 78. A record best ball of 30—30—60 was established by the foursome consisting of the two Cunninghams, Houghton and Shorey.

PHILADELPHIA, July 12 (A.P.).—A three-run rally in the sixth inning, touched off by Jimmy Foxx's twenty-fifth home run of the season, gave the Athletics a 6 to 4 victory over Cleveland today, their second straight over the Indians.

Rube Walberg went the distance for the Athletics, while Oral Hildebrand had to be relieved in the first inning because of a sore arm. While he remained on the scene Hildebrand was hit for two singles and a double that resulted in two runs.

Willis Hudlin, first relief pitcher, hit a home run with the bases empty in the fifth inning to tie the score at 2 to 2.

Road Repairs Urged, at Cost Of New Routes

Virginia Director Warns Lack of Maintenance Would Be Costly.

Richmond, Va., July 12 (A.P.).—State Highway Commissioner Henry G. Shirley today said lack of proper maintenance of the State's roads would cost the people of Virginia $54,000,000 annually in depreciation of automobiles.

He said tests have shown that "an automobile owner can afford to pay as high as $140 for a license and 27 cents for gasoline tax rather than run his car over roads which are not kept up to maintenance standard.

Citing these figures, Mr. Shirley asserted the highway commission would prefer to see all highway construction stopped rather than to see a material reduction in the highway maintenance fund.

License Cut Sought.

"Whatever may be done about the construction fund, the maintenance fund should be guaranteed," the commissioner said commenting on a letter from former State Senator Holman Willis, Roanoke, to a Richmond newspaper warning against candidates for the House of Delegates committing themselves to cuts in automobile license taxes which go to the maintenance of the highway system.

The total now approximates $5,000,000 a year.

Mr. Shirley said the highway commission estimates Virginia has $135,000,000 invested in improved roads on the primary system, and $240,000,000 in improved roads on the secondary system.

Fast Deterioration.

Of the primary system investment, he said, $85,000,000 represents surfacing and various slopes which engineers consider as the "destructible parts" of roads. These, he said, will deteriorate at the rate of $15,000,000 for the first year and at a greater rate afterward, with the whole road destroyed within a few years.

A similar deterioration, possibly not so rapid, would occur on the secondary system, he said.

The commission said curtailment of maintenance would prevent any extension of oiling, would reduce the reoiling of roads and would force cessation of the policy of placing calcium chloride in front of churches and other public buildings on the highways.

Trial Is Ordered On Bigamy Charge

Former Head of Credit Body Will Be Tried in Elkton Court.

Elkton, Md., July 12 (A.P.).—Circuit Judge J. Owen Knotts ruled today that Justin H. Edgerton, of New York, former president of the National Credit Men's Association of America, must stand trial here on a bigamy charge.

The case is to determine if Mr. Edgerton's Mexican divorce is valid in Maryland.

Mr. Edgerton was married here June 17 to Miss Grace Adams, of New Bedford, Mass. The bride's father, James A. Adams, then swore out the warrant charging bigamy. Mr. Edgerton's attorneys sought earlier in the week to quash the warrant and also to strike out the $5,000 bail under which Mr. Edgerton is being held. Judge Knotts denied their requests.

Truck Operators In National Link

Meeting at the joint invitation of the American Highway Freight Association and the Truck Executives of America, more than 250 representatives of State and local truckers' associations from every State voted to recognize the A. H. F. A. as their national organization.

Numerous changes will be made in the corporate structure of the association to fit its new responsibilities. Present officers, including J. L. Kesshin, of Chicago, president, will resign September 1 and new directors will be named from each State.

Local Bakers Resent Probe In Bread Price

Department of Justice Only Stirs Up Trouble, They Say.

As the Department of Justice pressed its probe into District bread prices, local bakers appeared resentful of an investigation one official described as "just stirring up trouble" when no price increase has been made.

Meanwhile, yesterday Henry Stude, president of the American Bakers Association, again repeated his promise to the Secretary of Agriculture that the baker would not pass to the consumer any more than he was forced to pay in meeting higher wheat prices and the processing tax.

The move of the Bureau of Investigation in the Washington price probe was ordered after information had been received bread costs were going up. It was seen as an effort to forestall any unreasonable advances.

Says Charge Unwarranted.

Stude said in his letter to Secretary Wallace that "not in one single instance" had the charges of unwarranted raises in bread prices been substantiated in the list of cities the Secretary sent him.

The baking official asked Mr. Wallace "if you can not stop this base innuendo."

"Do you not think our industry is entitled to greater consideration?" he asked.

In reply Secretary Wallace issued a statement saying his charges had been made "entirely with a view to protecting the consumer."

"Evidence that the consumer's interests are being safeguarded and indications of cooperation of bakers in this regard are a source of satisfaction to this department," he continued.

According to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics "any increase in bread prices of more than 1½ cents on a pound loaf can not be justified on the basis of higher costs of materials to bakers."

The Department of Justice is carrying investigations in many parts of the country, where, according to complaints, bread prices have been raised past that figure.

Little Increase Justified.

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics declared that bakers' costs of materials were about 1 cent per loaf higher on July 8 than they were four months previous, and that the processing tax should only add another half-cent a loaf to bread prices if passed to the consumer.

"Rising wheat prices justify but little increase in the price of bread," the bureau said. "Baking formulas vary, but most modern bakeries use milk, sugar and malt, in addition to flour, yeast, shortening and salt.

"The prices at which bakers can buy some of these ingredients vary considerably, according to their monthly purchases. Using prices typical for medium-sized bakeries, however, the total cost of these ingredients in February was 1.84 cents per pound loaf. On July 8 the cost of these had increased to 2.79 cents—an increase of slightly less than 1 cent per pound.

District Building Wage Dispute Hearing Is Set

A public hearing of the charges that the Catalano Construction Co., of Baltimore, has been violating the Bacon-Davis prevailing wage act was scheduled yesterday by the District Commissioners to begin at 1:30 p. m. Tuesday.

Corporation Counsel William W. Bride, who will conduct the hearing, yesterday also received affidavits making similar charges against another contractor engaged in District work, but he declined to make the contractor's name public until the charges are investigated.

Self-Service Thieves Dine Heartily in Cafe

When Edith Youngquist opened her lunch room at 821 Vermont avenue northwest, yesterday morning, she discovered that self-serving customers had called during the night. And apparently they had dined heartily and well.

On the counter were several empty milk bottles and a check of the contents of the ice box revealed that a dozen eggs, a dozen lamb chops, a half pound of bacon, and other items of food in lesser amounts were missing.

New Chief Inspects Park Policemen

Ritual Marks Final Review Of Park Police

Last Inspection Is Held Before Transfer to New Department.

With burnished bicycles, shining buttons and in spotless blue, the United States Park Police, 80 strong lined up yesterday afternoon for inspection and to say farewell to a name.

The semimonthly inspection at Sylvan theater was something of a rite, for by the time the month is out the men will be transferred from the War to the Interior Department.

It was a day of farewells, for Lieut. Col. J. A. Woodruff, successor of Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant, 3d, as director of Public Buildings and Parks, was introduced to the men just as he will leave the office.

Col. Woodruff reassured them that their fear of being clothed in green-like forest rangers uniforms was hardly a possibility.

"I have talked with Secretary Ickes," he said. "He has indicated that there will be no changes in pay, privileges or uniform."

Green uniforms and soft hats are anathema to the park force, who point out that they are "cops" doing cops' jobs of policing in a large metropolitan area.

Capt. D. O. Hickey, superintendent of the force, made his farewell speech to the men. He, too, will lose the assignment when the buildings and parks administration go to the Interior Department.

"You have been loyal, faithful and efficient," he said, and added that the Interior Department officials were well aware of the nature of the duties of the force.

Capt. P. J. Carroll, ranking officer of the force, said that green uniforms, copied from German foresters' clothes, were tried by the Park Police about 20 years ago. After a year or two, he said, they were back in the blue of a policeman.

Mother, Child Die From Gas In Home Here

Washington and Baltimore police last night were searching for relatives of the woman and 2-year-old baby who were found dead in a gas-filled room at 208 E street northwest yesterday morning.

A check-up in Baltimore revealed a vacant house at 1307 North Calvert street, the address given by the woman when she registered at the rooming house here Tuesday afternoon.

Among the woman's effects was found a letter addressed to Mrs. Charles R. McGowan, 5221 Florence avenue, Baltimore. The return address was Mrs. Reba Ward McGowan, corner of Kentucky and Pacific streets, Atlantic City, N. J.

After registering at the rooming house as Mrs. McGowan, the woman paid in advance for one night's lodging. She said, however, that she might be there a week, according to the proprietor, Albert E. Burrell.

She explained that her husband was driving into Virginia in a truck, but since the weather was uncertain, she was not going with him as they had planned. If no word was received from him the next day, she would probably remain in Washington a week, she said.

4 Enter Pleas Of Not Guilty In Bank Cases

Arraignments Held in Park Savings Failure and in Shortage.

Four men who are under indictment in connection with the collapse of the Park Savings Bank, and a $3,000 shortage in the Mount Vernon Savings Bank yesterday denied they were guilty when they were arraigned before Justice Peyton Gordon in the District Supreme Court.

David P. Smith and Benedict M. McNeil, who are allegedly connected with the Park bank case, and Samuel Borden and Charles A. Monroe, who were indicted for their alleged activities in the shortage at the Mount Vernon Bank were the four. All were given ten days within which to file answers to the indictments.

Attorney F. Joseph Donoghue represented Smith, James T. Slattery represented McNeil, while Attorney Charles E. Ford acted for both Monroe and Borden.

Two others remain to be arraigned. They are John Cooke Grayson, former Treasury Department officer, who is ill in Charlottesville, Va., and Alexander McNeil, father of Benedict McNeil, who is in Nova Scotia.

Saturday Deadline For Cab Licenses

P.U.C. Orders Prosecution of Hackers Continuing Without Permits.

Corporation Counsel William W. Bride yesterday was instructed by the Public Utilities Commission to prosecute any taxicab drivers who continue operation after Saturday midnight without renewing their licenses.

Less than 600 of more than 4,000 cabs have been relicensed, the commission said, although an extension of 15 days was granted July 1. The law requires that the cabs be inspected before being relicensed.

Even if all cab operators sought renewals before the end of the week it would be almost impossible for the hack inspector to examine them, as a maximum of 200 can be inspected in a day.

Virginia Child Dies Here From Lockjaw

Dr. S. Newman was called to the home of Charles C. Cardell Tuesday and was told the child had complained about a stiffness in her neck. Discovering the seat of the trouble, Dr. Newman immediately ordered the child taken to the hospital.

Woman Badly Injured When Struck by Auto

Mrs. Minnie L. Condrey, 60, of the Gordon Hotel, suffered a fractured hip and severe bruises yesterday when she was knocked down by an automobile at Thirteenth and " streets northwest. She was taken to Emergency Hospital. Her condition is regarded as serious.

Mathew P. Toughey, 34, 3016 Rodman street northwest, driver of the car, was not held. Police said the man overran the cross walk when caught by a changing traffic light, and knocked the woman down in backing off the walk.

First Lady Donates Dolls to Church Fete

The doll stand at the St. Gabriel's Church carnival on the church grounds at Grant Circle is one of the most interesting parts of the show. On it are dolls donated by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Alfred E. Smith, Martin Conboy, New York attorney; Mrs. D. J. Dunigan and Miss Helen Smith, of this city. An autographed picture of former Gov. Smith is hanging at this stand also.

The carnival will continue through next week. There are 30 different attractions for those who attend. Last night's crowd was estimated to be nearly 2,000.

Assessor Still Checking Beer Dealers' Returns

The District tax assessor's office was still checking returns from beer licenses yesterday to determine how many have failed to pay the June taxes which were due to be paid before last Monday midnight.

Although a score or more were still unrecorded, delinquent payments were being accepted, and indications were that only a handful, if any, would be recommended to the Commissioners for revocation of licenses.

Howling Law

Gotwals Learns City Has Anti-Bark Rule as Two Women Complain.

Engineer Commissioner John C. Gotwals yesterday learned to his surprise that the District has a police regulation which prohibits the keeping of a dog which "shall by barking, howling or in any other manner whatsoever disturb the comfort or quiet of any neighborhood."

Two women yesterday called to complain that the dogs kept by Dr. James E. Chamberlin, veterinarian, at 4813 Conduit road, were disturbing them. When he countered that nothing could be done about it, the regulation was produced.

And now, after his experience with musical studios and other things, he wonders whether the regulation might be sustained in court.

Locked Out

U. S. Treasury Nonplused as Burglar Alarms Ring Falsely.

William Julian, Treasurer of the United States, was locked out of the Treasury Building yesterday morning at a very crucial moment—just when the burglar alarms were being sounded and it looked as if there had been a raid on Uncle Sam's money tills.

While Secret Service men rushed into action and guards snapped out of their everyday apathy, the guardian of all the money owned by Uncle Sam stood by wondering what to do. A friend of Mr. Julian remarked:

"They might take all the money out of the vaults, Bill."

"Just so they leave us some printing presses, everything will be O. K.," Mr. Julian said, and went into his office after the emergency passed. Some one had accidentally kicked a button, or something like that, setting off the alarm.

Mr. Julian was locked out for five minutes, until let in by a Secret Service man.

Police to Aid Moving of 60 Lorton Rebels

Transfer to U. S. Prison at Lewisburg May Begin Today.

Sixty Lorton Reformatory malcontents shortly will be shipped to a Federal prison. They will be transferred under the supervision of prison guards and Washington policemen.

The transfer may begin late today or tomorrow, depending on arrangements by the Department of Justice. Meanwhile, Washington policemen will maintain their vigil over the purported trouble makers.

A special car will be provided for shipping the prisoners to their new jail. Guards will be armed with tear gas, rifles and pistols.

The men probably will go to Lewisburg, Pa., where a new Federal prison is situated. Some, however, may be shunted to the Federal penitentiaries at Leavenworth and Atlanta.

The transfer of the men is the outgrowth of the threatened insurrection at the Lorton Jail recently. The prison activities are now described as almost normal, and the heavy Washington police guard has been diminished to 12 men.

Tenants Body Asks For Public Hearing

A dozen representatives of the Washington Unemployed Council and the Unemployed Tenants League yesterday obtained 75 complaint forms and a promise to consider a petition for a public hearing after a brief but stirring session with the Public Utilities Commission.

Heckled by Charles Spencer, leader of the delegation, and others, Riley E. Elgen, vice chairman of the commission, finally agreed to release the complaints in bulk after at first holding that they could be given only to tenants who made personal applications.

During the course of the session, Spencer declared he had no faith in the Senate authorized rent inquiry and charged that the commission is inclined to protect the landlords rather than the tenants.

Hearing Delayed In Gas Valuation

Postponement Again Made on Plea of Washington Light Co.'s Head.

Valuation engineers and utility attorneys breathed a sigh of relief in unison yesterday when the Washington Gas Light Co., valuation hearing was again postponed, this time until October 2 and cooler weather.

The Public Utilities Commission announced the postponement following receipt of a request from Marcy Sperry, president of the gas company, on the grounds that a hearing the middle of August would disrupt the schedule of work planned for the engineering witnesses.

The hearing was resumed last Monday only to be postponed for 30 days to allow time to notify the Washington and surburban companies and the minority stockholders that they had been made parties to the hearing.

Ice Van Kills Capital Boy, 5; Driver Is Held

Five-year-old Edward Passero was killed almost instantly yesterday morning when run over by an ice truck which was pulling away from the curb in front of his home, 618½ H street northeast.

Neither the driver of the truck, Joseph C. Longest, 145 C street northeast, nor his two helpers, William Prichett, 125 C street northeast, and Robert Stark, 1719 Lincoln road, could explain exactly how the accident occurred.

Children who had been playing with the boy said he was seated on the running board eating an ice cream cone when the truck started moving. The father and mother of the child, Anthony and Jennie Passero, could offer no explanation.

Lawrence Waple, 635 Massachusetts avenue northeast, a passing motorist, took the boy to Casualty hospital, where he died about five minutes later from a fractured skull and internal injuries. The rear wheel of the truck had passed over his head and chest.

Envoy to Resume Georgetown Post

Officials of the Georgetown University will welcome the return to Washington of Dr. William S. Culbertson, Ambassador to Chile, who is again to become actively associated with the faculty of the university, after an absence of eight years in the diplomatic service, it was announced yesterday.

President Coleman Nevils, S. J., received a personal letter from Dr. Culbertson several days ago, confirming press dispatches of his resignation, and stating that he desired to practice law in Washington and resume his former professorship at the university.

"From the very beginning of the School of Foreign Service in 1919 until his first appointment in 1925 as Minister to Roumania, Dr. Culbertson had been a very valued member of the faculty," President Nevils said yesterday. "He was professor of tariffs and treaties, as well as a member of the executive faculty of the school. When Dr. Culbertson left Washington he said he did not wish to resign from the executive faculty and in the intervening years he had retained that position and in many ways demonstrated his interest in the university and cooperation in its affairs." It is not known now what faculty assignment will be given him, but he probably will conduct a special seminar.

Injuries to Woman in Collision Are Basis of Actions.

Two suits, aggregating $20,000, were filed against the Washington Railway & Electric Co. and Edward C. Kemper, 1741 New York avenue northwest, yesterday in the District Supreme Court.

One suit was filed by Mrs. Sarah Zeoli, 1246 Seventh street northwest, and was for $15,000. The other was filed by her husband, Samuel Zeoli, and was for $5,000 for the loss of his wife's services.

The basis of the suits was a collision at Wisconsin avenue and Massachusetts avenue northwest last November. A bus in which Mrs. Zeoli was riding and an automobile operated by Kemper were in collision, with the result that Mrs Zeoli suffered serious injuries. Attorneys James B. Flynn and S. J. L'Hommedieu filed the papers.

Chamber Plans To Keep Up Aid For Bay Ferry

Opposition Selfish, D. C. Group Says in Pledge to Continue Battle.

Terming opposition to the Chesapeake Beach Railway's bay ferry project "selfish," the Washington Chamber of Commerce yesterday indicated a stiff fight would be made to carry the transportation link through to completion.

This attitude was made known on the heels of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's refusal of a $425,000 loan to the carrier for the ferry project. Other civic groups and trade bodies, long interested in expanding Washington's trade area to the Eastern Shore, will back the fight, it was learned.

The railroad's ferry plan already has been through many vicissitudes. A court fight which ended in the Superme Court's rendering a favorable decision as to whether the carrier could operate a ferry across the bay has marked the project's progress.

Interstate Commerce Commission approval was given the loan that the R. F. C. turned down. A total amount of $900,000 is needed for the ferry project.

Have you been renovizing?

The renovize Washington committee would like to know, so that comprehensive statistics concerning renovizing in the Capital may be secured.

Heaton, general chairman of the campaign, invites the public to attend the renovize exposition at 1485-37 K street northwest, and to view the remodeled house at Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

The firm listed liabilities of $13,682.99 and assets of $12,157.07.

2 G. P. O. Men Submit Replies To Accusations

Public Printer Out of City, Action Is Expected to Be Held Up.

Frank S. Lerch and James E. Rennie, suspended employes of the Government Printing Office, yesterday submitted written replies to Public Printer George H. Carter's accusations they solicited funds in an attempt to restore $954,000 in earned leave of which G. P. O. workers were deprived by the economy act.

At his residence, 1661 Hobart street northwest, Mr. Carter was said to be out of the city last night. He may not return until the week-end. Action on the replies of Lerch and Rennie is expected to be held up until the public printer resumes his duties here.

The answer by Lerch, an assistant foreman, contained essentially the same declarations which he laid before the Central Labor Union Monday night. He is a delegate from the Typographical Union to the central body.

Lerch stated he did not employ an attorney or legislative representative, that he collected no money and that his only share in the alleged "lobby" was to contribute $21.60. Rennie, a proofreader, said he hired Frank J. Gardner as legal adviser with the approval of the district attorney.

Gardner, who lives at 3500 Fourteenth street northwest, said yesterday his part was "strictly ethical and legitimate," adding he has practiced 40 years.
